Opposition Rallies to Defeat Scheme.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—There was increasing evidence today that several important parts of President Roosevelt's new 3 billion 860 million dollar lending-spending scheme will be defeated.

Harry F. Byrd.

Republicans and conservative Democrats denounced the new pump priming program as a subterfuge to evade the statutory limitation of 45 billion dollars on the national debt, which will be reached by the end of the next fiscal year. They called "illusory" and "delusory" President Roosevelt's claim that the projects under the new program will be self-liquidating, and cited the losses of existing government lending corporations to prove their contention.

Creates Federal Corporations.

The President's plan calls for the creation of new government corporations or expansion of the lending authority of existing agencies to extend loans for so-called self-financing projects. The agencies would operate entirely outside the federal budget, selling their debentures, wholly guaranteed by the government, directly to the public.

"Such practices set up a double budget and a double debt system, which are most dangerous," said Senator Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.]. "It is merely a system of bookkeeping which will obscure the new debts and deficits."

Senator Byrd said the passage of such legislation would expand a fourth branch of the government which has been operating through government corporations and which is largely independent of the control of congress in expenditures, and outside of budgeting jurisdiction."

Demands Financial Statements.

He introduced a resolution directing Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau to prepare and submit to the senate forthwith a complete financial statement with respect to thirty government corporations enumerated in the resolution.

"Financing new expenditures by government corporations will avoid the necessity of congress increasing the present debt limit, which will be reached July 1, 1940," said Senator Byrd. "This, no doubt, is one of the reasons why it is desired that the new spending program function through government corporations instead of through the federal treasury. "If it is proposed to expand this massive plan for public spending, the congress should know what has happened to the billions of public funds already disbursed, for which the federal government is obligated in the operation of thirty government corporations, as such expenditures are exempted from budget control as well as in many instances from the regular audit control of the controler general.

Eight Billions of Debt.

"About 8 billions of debt have actually been created by these thirty agencies. Authority exists without further congressional action to increase these debts by some billions more. Federal financing should be done in the open and all expenditures should be under the control of congress, function through the budget system, and be included in the published public debt."

Representative John Taber [R., N. Y.], ranking minority member of the house appropriations committee, agreed with Senator Byrd's assertion that the new spending scheme was designed to evade the statutory debt limit. He recalled that early in the present session Secretary Morgenthau proposed to increase the limit from 45 to 50 billion dollars, but abandoned that plan when congressional leaders rebelled.

"Once the budget act and the statutory debt limitations are in effect I hope out there is no safeguard against reckless spending," Taber de-

OIL MAN SHOT BY HITCH-HIKER, SHE DECLARES

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 23.—[Special.]—The body of George G. Hall, a Detroit oil promoter, was found tonight several hours after his attractive woman companion told an unusual story of his wanton slaying by a hitch-hiker.

The bullet pierced body was found by state police on a lonely road near the village of Laingsburg, in Shiawassee county. More than 100 state policemen, sherif's deputies, and volunteers had searched the countryside throughout the day for a trace of the victim.

The finding of the body spurred a search here for the slayer. Hall's woman companion, Miss Ruby Colby, 32 years old, of Pinconning, Mich., said the oil man picked up the hitch-hiker on the outskirts of Grand Rapids and the slayer left the victim's automobile here early today.

Some Angles Baffling.

Although authorities were baffled by some angles, the finding of Hall's body supported in the main the story told by Miss Colby. She admitted she had been keeping company with Hall for some time, although he is married and the father of two children.

Miss Colby told police she and Hall left Allegan, Mich., where he had oil interests, to drive to Pinconning late yesterday. Just east of Grand Rapids, she said, they picked up a young hitch-hiker, who sat in the back seat while Miss Colby, who was driving, and Hall occupied the front seat.

After conversation which might have led the hitch-hiker to believe Hall was wealthy, the man ordered Miss Colby to drive onto a side road, she said. When she refused, she related, the hiker suddenly drew a revolver and shot Hall in the back. The slayer robbed his victim of $10, a wrist watch, and a ring, and took $3 from her, the woman said.

Long Drive Described.

Miss Colby said the slayer forced her to continue driving until she became so nervous that she almost lost control of the car. The hitch-hiker then took the wheel, she continued, and she sat between him and the unconscious Hall. The victim died about a half hour after he was shot, she said.

The slayer drove for some time, looking for a place to hide Hall's body, Miss Colby asserted. When he finally found a brush covered ditch, she said, he prevailed upon her to wrap the body in a blanket on which they had been sitting in the front seat. This explained the absence of blood stains in the car.

After disposing of Hall's body the hitch-hiker drove about the countryside for eight hours, holding her captive and making advances to her, Miss Colby related. She said she finally promised him she would accompany him to Chicago as a ruse to escape.

Slayer's Departure Told.

Some time after midnight the slayer drove into the business district of Grand Rapids and left the car, Miss Colby declared. She quoted him as telling her he would be gone only a short time and would meet her later.

As soon as the hitch-hiker left, the woman said, she drove to a garage, where she told her story to attendants. They summoned police.

Authorities said they were still investigating some unexplained angles, particularly the absence of blood in Hall's car and on Miss Colby's clothes, although she said she held the bleeding man in her arms. After lengthy questioning she was released.

Several business associates of Hall and friends of Miss Colby also were released after questioning.

Holding Company Official.

Hall was vice president and secretary of the Hal-Be-Oyle and Gas corporation, a holding company for ten Michigan concerns. He was interested in oil pools in this vicinity.

Hall and two associates, Langdon E. Doyle, president of the company, and Sidney E. Beach, treasurer, were charged with violating the Michigan blue sky law in warants issued last Feb. 7. The charge is still pending.

TO THE RESCUE AGAIN

Seize Suspect in Wieboldt Strike Slaying

Oscar Kofkin, business agent of the Taxicab Drivers union, was held last night at the detective bureau as a suspect in the killing April 12 of James Lawrence, who was shot down during a strike of teamsters against the Wieboldt department stores. Lawrence was a truck helper employed by the stores.

Oscar Kofkin.

The arrest of the business agent was made at the request of the state's attorney's police. Police said he resembled closely the description of one of the men who poured gunfire from an automobile into the Wieboldt truck.

Kofkin is 31 years old and lives at 4423 North Lawndale avenue. He was arrested near the cab union headquarters at 1219 Blue Island avenue by a bureau squad. His union is affiliated with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, which called the strike.

Admits Doing Picket Duty.

Questioned by Sergt. John Hanrahan, Kofkin admitted that he had done picket duty at two of the Wieboldt stores, but denied knowing anything about the Lawrence slaying. It was announced by Assistant State's Attorney Richard Devine that Kofkin will be taken to the state's attorney's office at 10 a. m. today to be viewed by witnesses of the killing.

Records of the police show that Kofkin, a powerfully built blond weighing more than 200 pounds, was arrested April 10 after a load of clay was dumped in an alley near the Wieboldt store at Monroe street and Ogden avenue with the aim of blocking egress of trucks. He was charged with disorderly conduct, but failed to appear for trial.

Another Unionist Hunted.

For more than two months, it was disclosed, the police have been looking for another taxicab union official, suspected of having had a part in the Lawrence slaying. Suspicion has been directed at several persons since a reward of $5,000 was offered for the apprehension and conviction of the slayers.

The Wieboldt strike, which was marked by many disorders, was settled in May. At that time the police and the state's attorney's office announced that the search for the Lawrence killers would be continued.

TRAFIC LAW VIOLATOR REWARDS POLICEMEN FOR DOING THEIR DUTY

Nashville, Tenn., June 23.—(AP)—A motorist who broke a minor trafic law accepted his ticket quietly, posted his forfeit at court, and didn't fight the case. But the arresting officers received this letter from him today:

"I broke a trafic law for which there was no alibi. It was downright carelessness. I want to commend you both for being alert and doing your duty. Please accept the enclosed with my good wishes."

2 COLLEGE MEN PROMISED NEW MATH COURSES

Clinton, N. Y., June 23. — (AP) — Hamilton college professors will work overtime next year—because two students have exhausted the college's existing mathematics courses.

Harry J. Kolb, Kenmore, N. Y., and George Schacher, Eden, N. Y., have successfully petitioned the faculty to conduct a special advanced course in "purely theoretical mathematics of problems dealing with higher space" for their especial benefit.

It will be discontinued following their graduation next June.

Caesarean Operation Delivers Boy Triplets

Albion, N. Y., June 23.—(AP)—Triplets were born here today in a Cæsarean operation on Mrs. Lloyd Jones of Lyndonville, N. Y. The babies, all boys, weighing from three pounds and four ounces, to four pounds and two ounces, were placed in an incubator, where they were said to be doing well. The mother is recovering.

Harvard Phi Beta Kappa Ends 90 Year Dry Rule

Cambridge, Mass., June 23.—(AP)—Harvard's Phi Beta Kappa society ended a ninety year dry spell today when it voted to repeal a rule prohibiting the serving of liquor at the society's annual dinner. The rule became effective in 1847, and since has been rigidly enforced.

35c Loan of 40 Years Ago Repaid with $5.60 Interest

Tignall, Ga., June 23.—(AP)—Forty years ago Bob Lee Sutton lent Ben Weingott 35 cents. A few days ago Weingott — now a California hotel chain operator—returned for a visit, reminded Sutton of the loan, and repaid it at compound interest, $5.95 in all.

Falls to Death as He Watches Windsor's Fete

PARIS, June 23. — (AP) — Tragedy marred the duke of Windsor's birthday party tonight when a man unofficially identified as Bedrich Benes, military attaché of the Czecho-Slovak legation in Paris, plunged 186 feet from the first platform of the Eiffel tower, where the duke and duchess were celebrating.

It was said the man was not related to former President Eduard Benes of Czecho-Slovakia, who now is in the United States.

A woman companion said the man had been taking pictures through a window of the first platform, where the duke's 45th birthday and the Eiffel tower's 50th anniversary were being observed simultaneously. In the gravel courtyard below police found a movie camera still strapped to his wrist.

Tragedy Interrupts Party.

Several guests hurried out on the platform when the companion's screams interrupted the party inside. Police said the duke later inquired after the man's condition and was told he was dead.

The duke and duchess dined with a 19 year old bakery salesgirl, and oddly enough the salesgirl was the guest of honor. She was Jacqueline Vialle, 6 feet 3 inches tall, elected last night to be "Mile. Tour Eiffel."

She was selected from a group of tall French girls as symbolic of the 984-foot spire. Her appearance tonight was in an evening gown hastily made for the occasion.

Duke Talks to London.

She dined with the duke and his American-born duchess on one of the tower's three platforms, and simply being on the tower was as much of a thrill for her as meeting the duke and duchess.

"To think," she exclaimed, "that I had never before gone up in the tower which has brought me so much happiness."

Friends of the duke said he had telephone conversations with members of the royal family in London.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 23.—The American Women's club of Berlin had planned to give a garden party at the Wannsee golf club in which Suzanne Kenyon of New York was to sing, with Catherine Stoneman Browne accompanying her. She had planned a program of Negro spirituals. The American Women's club was told its program was forbidden because it included music that was not Aryan.

SECRET MOVING OF NAZI TROOPS CAUSES ALARM

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 23.—Several persons who live in the poorer and more densely populated district around Alexanderplatz said today that the Alexanderplatz railroad station was cordoned off by police last night while troops entrained for an unrevealed destination.

Berlin has numerous stations on the outskirts of the city which usually are used when troops are being transported and their movements are to be kept secret. Those alarmed saw an ominous sign in last night's departure, but officials ridiculed their fears, pointing out that the regular German maneuvers are beginning and that if "a surprise were really under way troops would not be entrained in the heart of the capital."

Der Angriff, official Nazi publication, this afternoon also increased tension by alleging that "large shipments of British war material for Poland are being unloaded every night in the Polish port of Gdynia." The newspaper claimed that British and Polish vessels, as well as the American freighter Mormac Port, are unloading tanks, artillery ammunition, airplanes, and airplane motors and copper and zinc for the Polish war industry.

Plays for Another Munich.

BERLIN, June 23.—(AP)—Nazi Germany is playing for another Munich, but if she fails to get Danzig and the Polish corridor by negotiation as she got Sudetenland, one official said tonight, it then "will be just too bad for the Poles."

Repeated statements on German military might and the Nazi challenge to British interests throughout the world, of which the press is filled, are in the opinion of some watchful observers all a part of a diplomatic maneuver — which top ranking Nazis say they believe will end in capitulation by those who are trying to thwart German expansion.

Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels appeared to refer to this today in a speech to Berlin's street car and bus employés when he said:

"Critical weeks and months might come. Then we shall have to keep still—and negotiate."

Outsiders Help Buildup.

Reports, from outside Germany, of German troop movements toward the Polish border and the fortified line facing France and of continued speculation as to zero hours, when the Nazis are supposed to be prepared to strike, are regarded as serving this buildup toward another crisis — for which the Nazis say they will in no wise be responsible.

WOMAN REGAINS HEARING AFTER AIRPLANE DIVE

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 23. — (AP) — A swift dive in an airplane from a 5,300 foot level restored to Mrs. Frances Decara of West Palm Beach, Fla., the voice and hearing she had lost for five days, Pilot Raymond Elder reported today.

The dive was made at the suggestion of a physician after she had told him a fast automobile ride down a mountain road had opened her ears a little.

As the ship zoomed up to 1,500 feet, Elder said, Mrs. Decara cried:

"O, my ears popped!"

At 5,300 feet she talked normally. Then he dived at 110 miles an hour. At the 1,000 foot level Mrs. Decara said one ear had plugged up again. On the ground she still could hear with one ear and speak.

NEW JAP INSULT CHARGED AFTER BRITISH PROTEST

Accused of Stripping Another Briton.

TIENTSIN, June 23. — (AP) — Maj. D. A. Herbert, British consul-general, sent a new protest to the Japanese today against undressing and searching of British subjects at the barriers on the border of the blockaded British concession here, but a fresh incident of that kind was reported almost immediately thereafter.

Frederick W. Hinke [American consul in Tientsin.] [A. P. Wirephoto.]

Cecil Davis, an honorary agent for the New Zealand government, said he was slapped three times with his passport by a Japanese sentry who, with three colleagues, forced him to stand naked in the examining shed through which a dozen foreign women were passing.

Davis was the ninth Briton in the last two days to report being subjected to indignities by the Japanese, who established their blockade of the British and French concessions ten days ago.

Japs Call It Propaganda.

Domei, the Japanese news agency, quoted Japanese authorities as charging that the British were spreading slanderous reports of indignities to arouse sympathy abroad, and adding that the British government should change its attitude if it does not want subjects searched. Searching was conducted in a courteous manner, Domei declared.

Maj. Herbert also reported to London on the detention by the Japanese since June 17 of G. A. Smith, a British exporter. The Japanese have made an agreement by Smith to leave Tientsin a condition for his release, Herbert said. Smith was active against Japanese-Corean smuggling as trafic superintendent of the Mukden-Peking railway in 1935-'36.

Foreign residents are watching the case closely, since under extraterritoriality laws in China Smith should have been handed over to British authorities upon demand.

Demonstrate Against Britain.

The Japanese advised government at Chefoo sponsored a massmeeting at which slogans were displayed asserting that the British are the world's greatest aggressors. Two British warships arrived at Chefoo, but the visit was said to have had no connection with the demonstration.

Anti-British demonstrations were reported also in Peking, Tientsin, Tsinan, and Tsingtao. In Peking only 500 persons, most of them children, turned out instead of the 100,000 hoped for by the Japanese. Today was the fourteenth anniversary of the firing upon a group of Chinese students by British sailors at Canton during a period of tension between the British and Chinese governments.

The Japanese appear to be confining their searching to British subjects, but Frederick W. Hinke, American consul, made representations against inconveniences suffered by Americans at the barricades. Consulate attachés said there was no formal protest.

Food Situation Grows Worse.

The food situation in the concessions became worse. Meat and fresh vegetables especially were scarce.

A Chinese coolie was found dead today, his hand grasping the high tension wire the Japanese erected around the concessions.

It turned out that those Japanese sentries moving stealthily across the international bridge toward the French concession this morning were looking for shade—not Frenchmen.

Consternation spread in the concession when the Japanese drew closer and closer. French residents saw themselves in the same predicament as their friends in the neighboring blockaded British concession.

Ends as a Great Joke.

Alarmed French officials investigated and found to their great relief the sentries were moving with the shadow of a beam on the international bridge to escape the blistering, 106 degree sun. Everybody laughed and the "incident", which threatened French-Japanese relations was forgotten.

French-Japanese relations continue good even though the French concession is included in the Japanese blockade of the British concession. The Japanese have publicly expressed regret that they considered this inclusion necessary because the British and French areas are contiguous.

Nevertheless it was disclosed tonight that the latest letter of demands upon the British by the Peking provisional government also had been sent to the French embassy at Peking.

The situation in South China was quiet today.

LONDON WARNS TOKIO

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 23.—Viscount Halifax, British foreign secretary, tonight delivered another protest to Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese ambassador, against insults and indignities suffered by British men and women in Tientsin at the hands of Japanese authorities. He lodged the protest shortly after Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told the house of commons he did not think the time was ripe to impose retaliatory measures for the blockade of the British concession in Tientsin.

Viscount Halifax also conferred with Ivan Maisky, soviet Russian ambassador, concerning the negotiations with Moscow for a mutual assistance pact. He also had a talk with Charles Corbin, the French ambassador, presumably on the same subject.

Asks Japan to Explain.

Halifax is reported to have pressed the Japanese ambassador strongly for an explanation of the Japanese aims in Tientsin and to have demanded that the issue be settled without further delay in order to avoid more serious consequences which might follow from a continuation of mistreatment of British subjects.

The Japanese ambassador, it is understood, was unable to do more than indicate that he would communicate the British views to his government.

Chamberlain in the house of commons this afternoon referred to the Japanese treatment of Britons as intolerable insults and said Viscount Halifax would make very clear to Shigemitsu the British government's attitude. The prime minister said arrangements were being made to assure an adequate food supply for the blockaded concession, but in answer to a question as to whether he would put into effect immediately any retaliatory measures, he said:

"I don't think we have got to that stage yet."

Silent when Questioned.

Chamberlain made no answer when he was asked if he was aware that the temper of the British people was rising as a result of the humiliation of Britons by the Japanese.

In his conversation with Maisky, Halifax was understood to have attempted to feel out the soviet ambassador on what price Moscow was asking for a British-French-soviet pact.

Halifax was represented tonight as being at a loss to know what further steps can be taken to convince Russia that Britain is sincere in wanting to enter a mutual assistance agreement. It is understood that Britain has offered another modification of its original proposals.

Cuba Orders 52 Jewish Refugees Back to Germany

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, June 23.—Fifty-two Jewish refugees who have been held at the Tiscornia immigration station since their arrival May 15 on the Hamburg-American liner Iberia will be returned to Germany on the Orinoco of the same line, which is scheduled to sail from Havana July 4. The deportation order will be issued in the form of a presidential decree in a few days.

20 Perish as Rainstorms Lash at Central Europe

BERLIN, June 23.—(AP)—Twenty persons were believed today to have perished in former Czecho-Slovakia in rainstorms which swept Central Europe. Eight children drowned in a flood in the Visovich area of Moravia. Nazi party organizations were mobilized at Thalheim, in the Saxon ore mountains, to help firemen save a dam from breaking after cloudbursts inundated the town.

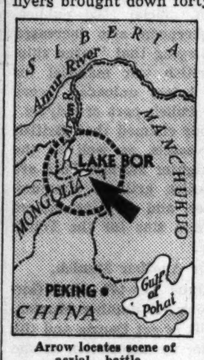
JAPS CLAIM 18 ARMY PLANES DOWN 49 OF 150 RUSSIAN SHIPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, June 23.—Japanese army flyers brought down forty-nine to 150 soviet Russian warplanes which participated in a battle over Kanjulmiad in the Lake Bor area on the Manchukuo-Outer Mongolian border yesterday afternoon, the army announced today.



Arrow locates scene of aerial battle.

Eighteen Japanese planes went to the attack and five failed to return, the army communique said. Japan charged the soviet air force has been continuing illegal actions on the Manchukuo border since the battle of Nomonhan late in May.

On June 19 about a dozen soviet planes crossed the border and bombed several Manchukuo towns and villages, it was said. Manchukuo dispatched a protest to the Outer Mongolian government threatening forcible action unless the provocations stopped.

Britain Orders Air Raid Practice Blackout Aug. 9

LONDON, June 23.—(AP)—The British government today announced that the biggest blackout maneuver in air raid defense practice thus far would be held on Aug. 9. It will cover all of southeast England, including London.

Hitler to Have Private Airport for New Plane

IRELAND ROUNDS UP MEMBERS OF OUTLAWED ARMY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, June 23.—Ireland's police tonight launched a countrywide roundup of Irish Republican army members after the government issued an order suppressing the organization. Another order banned a Republican commemoration parade to the grave of Wolfe Tone in Bodenstown churchyard in County Kildare, scheduled for tomorrow. Tone was the Irish rebel who took his life by cutting his throat with a penknife in 1798 after he had been sentenced to death at a Dublin courtmartial.

The Irish government has ordered soldiers to be stationed at the graveyard tomorrow with instructions to use force if necessary to prevent the parade. Under the law, Irish Republican army suspects can be rounded up and held for forty-eight hours without charge, during which time they will be searched, photographed and finger printed.

Quake Kills 11, Hurts 28 in British West Africa

LONDON, June 23.—(AP)—An earthquake killed eleven natives and injured twenty-eight in Gold Coast, British West African colony, last night, the colonial office was informed today in a telegram from Accra.

FRANCE, TURKEY SIGN AGREEMENT FOR AID IN WAR

Paris Surrenders Hatay as Price of Accord.

PARIS, June 23.—(AP)—France ceded a part of her mandate in Syria—the republic of Hatay—to Turkey and signed a mutual military assistance pact with the Turkish government in twin ceremonies at Ankara and Paris today.

Georges Bonnet, the French foreign minister, in a statement issued at the demand of Syrian nationalists, affirmed that France had no intention of relinquishing her mandatory obligations in the rest of Syria and Lebanon.

The acquisition of Hatay was considered part of Turkey's compensation for entering the mutual assistance agreement with France.

Seven Point Declaration.

The accord signed in Paris by Bonnet and Suad Davaz, the Turkish ambassador, is a seven point document forecasting continuing negotiations for a "definite accord of long duration" with a pledge that, meanwhile:

"In case of an act of aggression which might lead to a war in the Mediterranean region, France and Turkey would be ready to coöperate effectively and to give each other mutually all the aid and assistance in their power."

Bonnet, in a broadcast explanation, said the accord was exactly the same as the British-Turkish declaration of May 12. Thus the Paris accord further extends the British-French front of nations to the far eastern end of the Mediterranean.

Protection for French Property.

In the ceremony at Ankara, a definite treaty of cession gave to Turkey the Hatay republic, which formerly was the northern Syrian province known as the sanjak of Alexandretta, thereby regulating a question which had been negotiated at length.

Turkey takes over Hatay but agrees to safeguard French property and interests there. Formal annexation was set for Sunday. Citizens of the republic—which comprises about 10,000 square miles and has a population of 220,600—will have six months to choose Turkish, Syrian, or Lebanese citizenship. Those choosing either of the latter two will have eighteen months to leave Hatay and will have complete freedom to take out their personal belongings.

Sukru Saracoglu, Turkish foreign minister, and René Massigli, French ambassador to Ankara, signed the treaty, a protocol, and two letters in the Ankara ceremony.

SLOVAKS DECREE STATE CONTROL OVER BUSINESS

BRATISLAVA, Slovakia, June 23.—(AP)—Stricter supervision of Slovak business and industry, similar to that in force in Germany, was announced today by the government.

Officials with wide powers are to be appointed for companies which had a turnover of more than $40,000 in 1938 or employ more than fifty persons. The little German-protected state thus would direct private enterprise toward a national economic goal, it was said.

Slovakia ordered Jews to register their property yesterday, a day after Jews in Bohemia and Moravia, provinces of the former Czechoslovak republic which were annexed by Germany, had lost virtually all business rights through a decree of the reich protector.

ITALY CHARGES FRANCE BREAKS MANDATE RULES

ROME, June 23.—(AP)—The decision of France to cede the republic of Hatay in Syria to Turkey was described in a communique of Stefani, Italian official news agency, today as a "patent violation on France's part of the mandate intrusted to her by allied and associated powers."

The communique, representing the Fascist government's attitude, pointed out that Italy, as one of the allied powers, had a part in establishing the mandate. France administered the territory under league of nations mandate.

France's act, Stefani added, "is a new manifestation of the recent French policy of no longer giving any practical consideration to its obligations as a mandatory power and tending to consider Syria and Lebanon as territories directly ruled, of which she may dispose at will."

Il Resto Del Carlino of Bologna in an attack on Turkey for joining the Paris-London front, today denounced the Turks as "traitors by nature." "We do not envy any one an alliance with the Turks," the newspaper said.

GANG'S BURNING OF FIREWORKS PLANT PROBED

Motive Is Sought; Watchman Tells of Attack.

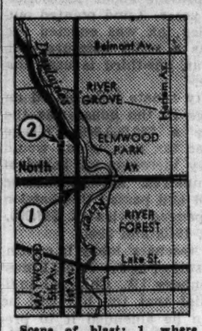
Frank E. Doherty, acting state fire marshal, was striving yesterday to determine the motives of three men who started a fire that destroyed a warehouse of the Acme Fireworks company at 1st and North avenues in Proviso township.



Scene of blast: 1, where plant was blown up; 2, where fuse was placed to blow up second plant.

The building, a sheet iron structure 30 by 125 feet, and its contents of fireworks were destroyed early yesterday by flames and a series of spectacular explosions. The roof was hurled nearly fifty feet by the blasts and windows in nearby residences were shattered.

Frank Folisi, 226 La Crosse avenue, a watchman, told Doherty of the gang's attack on him. He said they appeared about 6 a. m., while he was standing near the front entrance of the warehouse.

Bound by Gunman.

"One man put a gun on me," Folisi said, "and made me get into my own car. He tied me up and threw a sheet over me. Meanwhile the others went into the warehouse. I would judge it was 15 minutes later when I began to hear the explosions."

The three men apparently fled from the place after starting the blaze with a delayed fuse. Folisi did not see them after he was thrust into his car. His plight was not discovered until spectators arrived.

Harry Cohen, 5901 Rice street, head of the Acme concern, said he believed business rivals might have started the fire because they were disgruntled over low prices he was charging for fireworks.

Owner Tells of Sales.

"I formerly owned the American Fireworks corporation on River road, north of North avenue in Leyden township," he said. "Last September I sold this, but retained a warehouse on the site. Under the agreement I was not to enter into the wholesale business again.

"This was observed. I stayed in the retail business, however. I was to start selling June 27 at a stand. I also sold by mail. In the two warehouses I had a stock valued at about $30,000. Today I learned that an attempt had also been made to burn the buildings in Leyden township. Apparently the arsonists were scared away after they had placed a fuse and sprinkled gasoline around the place."

Cohen estimated that $20,000 worth of fireworks were destroyed in the fire. He valued the building at $4,500 and informed Doherty that his insurance was approximately $17,000. Doherty said he was trying to learn whether any large quantity of fireworks had been moved out in the last few days.

Endurance Plane Drones Toward 218 Hour Goal

Springfield, Ill., June 23.—(AP)—The light airplane Miss Springfield droned above the city tonight and her two pilots, Wilbur Parrish and Hunter Moody, reported they felt better than ever as they began their third night aloft in an attempt to break the endurance record of 218 hours flight. The 55 horse power monoplane passed its 57th hour of steady flight at 11:40 o'clock tonight. Parish and Moody reported by radio they were sleeping in shifts on the cabin floor.

AMATEUR FLYERS WINGING TOWARD CITY FOR BIG DAY

174 to Participate in Show Tomorrow.

Amateur flyers were winging their way to Chicago from eight different states last night in their light planes for their big day tomorrow. At 1 p.m. tomorrow at Curtiss-Reynolds airport, Glenview, they will get their chance to show their skill.

The occasion is the second annual Amateur Air show, in which 174 planes have been entered. Many more are expected to participate. The program will include racing, bomb dropping tests, precision flying and landing, and many kinds of demonstrations, including parachute drops and sky writing stunts.

Defense Value to Be Shown.

The show is expected to be a demonstration of the potential value of the amateur pilot to American aviation and national defense. The following list of requirements for pilots of various ratings speaks for itself:

STUDENT PILOT RATING—This is required of all students at the time they take up flying. To get it the prospective pilot must be at least 16 years old and of good moral character, and must pass a rigid physical examination. Eyesight must be above average and hearing good.

SOLO PILOT RATING—This is required of any one who flies alone. To get it the flyer must have a student pilot rating, must pass a written test in air trafic rules and regulations, and must have had at least eight hours of dual instruction.

Passenger Flying Regulated.

PRIVATE PILOT RATING—This is required of any pilot who carries passengers or flies more than ten miles from his home airport. To get it the flyer must have a solo pilot rating and be at least 18 years old. Further, he must pass a written examination on weather conditions he is likely to encounter and prove his ability to read a government weather map. He must pass tests in piloting, navigation, instrument reading, precision landing with throttled motor, and precision emergence from tailspins. He also must have flown at least thirty-five hours of officially recorded solo time, including at least fifty miles of cross-country flying with landings at different points.

None of these ratings permits a pilot to earn money by flying or to instruct in flying. Physical examinations must be repeated at least once a year.

STRANGER PICKET LINES WITHDRAW AT 3 BAKE SHOPS

Union Awaits Decision on Appealed Ruling.

Stranger pickets — nonemployés — who have paraded in front of three south side bakeries since May 25, were withdrawn yesterday in accordance with an agreement reached in the court of Judge Donald S. McKinlay.

The agreement had the effect of an injunction in dispersing the pickets. The court hearing was on a petition for a restraining order filed by Attorney Julius Ruben for the three Widen's bakeries, at 7808 Halsted street, 1449 West 79th street, and 1034 West 59th street, and thirty-two employés. Ruben said the agreement also covers all members of the Associated Retail Bakers of Chicago.

Union Agrees to Terms.

Attorney Harold Marovitz represented the union named in the petition—the Retail Clerks' International Protective association, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor. He announced the union would agree to an order providing withdrawal of pickets and would refrain from any practices alleged in the bakeries' petition, such as interference with customers.

The union's acquiescence to the order yesterday was said to be based on the fact that there is a motion for a rehearing before the Illinois Supreme court on the court's decision Monday in the Swing Beauty shop case. In this decision the court declared stranger picketing illegal.

Federal Appeal Foreseen.

Labor leaders said that if the state court stands by its decision, the picketing case will be taken to the United States Supreme court.

Daniel D. Carmell, counsel for the Chicago and Illinois Federations of Labor, and Victor A. Olander, secretary of the Illinois federation, both referred to a United States Supreme court decision of 1921 as laying the groundwork for the practice now known as stranger picketing.

Justice Taft wrote the opinion, in the case of the American Steel Foundries vs. the Tri-City Central Trades council, which grew out of a strike at Granite City, Ill. The opinion held that a central labor body had a right to undertake organization of employés in a plant which had no union membership and to picket the plant for the purpose if peaceful means were used.

Traces Idea Back to NRA.

Olander indicated that passage of the national industrial recovery act [NRA] in 1933, however, was the real cradle of stranger picketing.

"The New York Court of Appeals," declared Carmell, "once ruled that 'a picket without a strike is as lawful as a strike without picketing.' The Illinois Supreme court appears to have lost sight of that and other decisions."

He said the depression, with its pinching of workers, had been at the bottom of many labor disputes and hence was responsible for the growth of picketing and its offshoot, stranger picketing.

The Illinois court's decision in the Swing case was applauded by Gordon L. Hostetter, executive director of the Employers' Association of Chicago.

"Without wishing to be antagonistic toward unionism," he said, "I believe the decision should be stimulating to business and encouraging to employés who in some cases have been harassed by organizers. The employés should have the right to determine whether they should join a union or stay out."

SERVICES FOR RAIL VETERAN.

Bloomington, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—Funeral services for John J. Boylan, 75 years old, an employé of the Chicago and Alton railroad for fifty years, will be held here tomorrow. For more than twenty-five years Mr. Boylan was manager of the tool department of the Alton's shops here. He died yesterday.

PARTY OF GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS TO CROSS ATLANTIC ON CLIPPER

New York, June 23.—(AP)—With a party of government officials aboard, Pan American Airways' Yankee Clipper will blaze another air mail route to Europe starting tomorrow, crossing the North Atlantic from Newfoundland and Ireland. The flying boat will leave its Port Washington, Long Island, base at 7:30 a. m.

Among passengers tomorrow will be Stephen Early, one of President Roosevelt's secretaries, Senator Dennis Chavez [D., N. M.], Senator Ernest Lundeen [F.-L., Minn.], Representative Carl E. Mapes [R., Mich.] and Representative Clarence Cannon [D., Mo.]. R. Walton Moore, counselor for the department of state; Edward P. Warner, and Clinton M. Hester, of the Civil Aeronautics authority; Brig. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, commanding officer of the GHQ airforce; Charles P. Graddick, superintendent of the air mail service; Rear Admiral Russell R. Waesche, coast guard commandant; and Juan T. Trippe, president of Pan American.

CHICAGOANS PLAN EUROPEAN FLIGHT ABOARD CLIPPER

Several Chicagoans will be on board the Atlantic Clipper, passenger plane for Europe, when the first regularly scheduled flight starts in New York next Wednesday.

James McVittie [upper] and Mark Cresap.

One of them, James McVittie, president of a plating and brass refinishing company, has had an application for a reservation with Pan-American Airways since 1933. McVittie was a passenger on the Graf Zeppelin when it made its first trip from Germany to Brazil in 1931. He was on the airship Hindenburg in 1930 when it made its first journey to the United States.

Other Chicagoans who have booked passage on the Clipper are Mark W. Cresap, president of Hart Schaffner and Marx, clothing manufacturers, and Harold L. Stuart, president of Halsey Stuart & Co.

Boy Saves Dog and Cat Imprisoned in a Cistern

Kansas City, Mo., June 23.—(AP)—Eleven year old Tommy Lynn descended today on a rope 30 feet into an abandoned cistern and rescued a scrubby Spitz dog and a nameless kitten, pets which had been imprisoned for twenty-four hours. "The dog was next to the cat like he was protecting it," Tommy said.

JOBHOLDER ARMY IN LOUISIANA HAS CASE OF JITTERS

Fear New Governor Will Purge State Rolls.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Orleans, La., June 23.—[Special.]—Louisiana politics, a dizzy spectacle for years, had an acute attack of the jitters today. Rumors of a purge when Earl K. Long, brother of the late Huey Long, becomes governor next week to succeed Gov. Richard W. Leche, who has announced his resignation, had the politicians spinning on their ears.

Earl Long has a reputation for political turbulence almost matching that of the late "King Fish." Newspapers are using one stock adjective—"unpredictable Earl." Uneasy is many a head now reposing on the pay rolls, and many a dream last night had nightmares of a falling ax. Involved, too, is national politics and who will be the big state boss in control of the deleration to the 1940 Democratic national convention.

Becomes Governor Monday.

The present program is for Earl Long, now lieutenant governor, to become governor some time Monday at Baton Rouge. At present the talk is of peace but the rumors, and Louisiana politics is temperamental and plays hunches as it does the horses, are of shakeups.

One report was that Attorney General David M. Ellison might resign but at Baton Rouge it was stoutly denied by Ellison.

Close observers here declare that the ascendancy of Earl into the governor's chair is not so congenial to the New Dealers at Washington. Last year, Earl was lashing no less a personage than Postmaster General James A. Farley, declaring if the latter never came back to Louisiana it would be plenty soon enough. Some say the new governor—apparent may have modified his stance, but they fall back on the one word "unpredictable."

Overton Against 3d Term.

A Washington despatch widely used here today said that Senator Overton of Louisiana had given a statement against a third term for President Roosevelt, in which he championed the two term tradition and predicted Roosevelt would not seek a third term next year. Overton was made senator by Huey Long. He defeated Senator Edwin Broussard.

Whether this means anything for 1940 and the Louisiana delegation, is listed as one of the "unpredictables."

When Earl Long become governor politicians look for a struggle over who will be the real boss of the state. After the killing of Huey Long in the skyscraper state capitol in Baton Rouge in September, 1935, the machine of which he was dictator fell into the hands of what is known as the triumvirate.

This inner trio, reputed to be the real heirs of the Kingfish's organization, are Mayor Robert S. Maestri of New Orleans, Gov. Leche and Seymour Weiss, operator of the largest hotel in the deep south and president of the dock board, which is the board of commissioners of the Port of New Orleans, the most important board in Louisiana.

NORWEGIAN HEIR TO THRONE TALKS AT SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—Crown Prince Olav of Norway addressed a joint session of the Illinois legislature, visited Lincoln's tomb, and spoke before a luncheon club during six hours spent in Springfield today. Crown Princess Martha, who was to have accompanied her husband, remained in Chicago resting.

Introduced by Lieut. Gov. John Stelle, Crown Prince Olav recalled to the joint session the advent of Norwegian immigrants to the Illinois prairies in 1834, under the leadership of Cleng Person. He referred in a complimentary manner to Gov. Horner's address delivered in 1934 in Noway, Ill., on the centennial of Norwegian infiltration.

"Opportunities," he said, "have been afforded them [the Norwegians] here to create, hand in hand and in perfect harmony with their fellow Americans, those free, democratic institutions which have as their aim the physical and spiritual well being of every man, woman and child living here."

The prince rejoined his wife in Chicago tonight and will go to Cleveland tomorrow.

PRESIDENT GOES TO HYDE PARK FOR FEW DAYS

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt left the White House tonight for a five day visit to his family home at Hyde Park, N. Y., where he entertained King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth June 10 and 11.

Tomorrow Mr. Roosevelt will motor twelve miles north of his home to Rhinebeck, N. Y., where he will attend the wedding of Miss Margaret Delano, daughter of Lyman Delano, first cousin of the President, and Drexel Paul of Philadelphia.

Next Wednesday he will be host at a luncheon to governors attending the conference of governors at Albany, N. Y. He plans to spend the remainder of his time in relaxing from official cares.

MARJORIE HILLIS.

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—Marjorie Hillis who wrote "Live Alone and Like It," announced today that she is going to marry. The woman whose book helped many unmarried girls to endure living alone, will wed Henry Roulston of Brooklyn, president of a chain of grocery stores, in August.

CALLS BUCKNER TRIFLE BIBULOUS, BUT NOT A THIEF

Lawyer Insists He Did No Wrong.

New York, June 23.—(AP)—William P. Buckner Jr., the young promoter accused with four others of conspiracy to manipulate the market in defaulted Philippine railway bonds, was described today by his counsel as perhaps 'a trifle bibulous, but no thief."

Telling the jury of what he expected to prove, Attorney John Minton pictured the gay Buckner as an "impetuous, inexperienced young man," but one whose activities were undertaken in good faith.

The government charges Buckner, as chairman of a protective committee of Philippine railway bondholders, headed a scheme under which the accused conspirators planned to buy bonds in a low market in anticipation of their redemption by the Philippine government. Buckner is accused as well of having flung away in high living much of the money advanced by fellow bondholders.

No Intention to Defraud.

Minton said Buckner never had any intention to "defraud the bondholders;" that he had spent his own money in an effort to improve the position of the bonds.

Buckner's campaign to have the bonds redeemed at par, Minton said, "may have been an absurd idea, but it was sincere, and he did everything he could to influence senators and congressmen to obtain the legislation necessary."

"There is nothing wrong in entertaining congressmen [here the reference was to government charges that Buckner put on champagne and show girl parties in Washington with bondholders' money] in an effort to accomplish a legitimate purpose," Minton said.

Minton denied that Buckner ever had bought a single bond for himself or ever had told any prospect, including Hollywood notables, that the Philippine government definitly would redeem the securities.

Witnesses from Night Spots.

Tillie Fripp, a Negress who operates a Harlem "chicken shack"; Joseph Moss, a night club proprietor, and Louis Viola, a taxicab driver, testified to Buckner's convivial evenings, but said they had no knowledge that he had paid the bills with bondholders' money.

Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard dismissed various counts in the indictment against Buckner's co-defendants—Felipe Buencamino, a member of the Philippine national legislature; C. W. Turner, a stock broker, and John Stuart Hyde, a former British army officer. Buencamino and Turner remained charged with conspiracy and mail fraud in one count, Hyde with conspiracy only. William J. Gillespie, a broker, the fifth defendant, and Buckner face seven counts of mail fraud and one of conspiracy.

Improvement of Man Held Vital to Nation.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Buffalo, N. Y., June 23.—[Special.]—Instruction in problems of human reproduction and birth control was urged today at the national conference of social work here as means toward improving the physical and mental makeup of man.

Dr. Haven Emerson of New York City, professor of public health practice at Columbia university, proposed the information be disseminated through public health departments and predicted enlightenment some day would bring such a program about. Birth control is of especial interest to the 8,000 social workers meeting here because, as studies have shown, reliefers breed faster than other segments of the population.

Grand Rapids Gets Convention.

The conference, which is a loosely woven forum embracing fifty-six national organizations, prepared to wind up its sessions tomorrow. Miss Grace L. Coyle of Cleveland, associate professor of group work in the school of applied sciences, Western Reserve university, was elected as the next president.

Nominated for the conference president in 1941 was Miss Jane M. Hoey, director of the bureau of public assistance, Social Security board, Washington, D. C. Grand Rapids was selected as the convention city for next year. It agreed to give Negro delegates the same hotel accommodations as white social workers.

Dr. Emerson, who spoke before the Birth Control Federation of America, one of the 56 organizations here, named three functions of the health department in respect to human reproduction as follows: Protection against unwanted or unsafe pregnancies; warning, and where necessary, legal prohibition against hereditary transmission of seriously undesirable physical and mental traits; encouragement of reproduction among parents with sound and superior qualities.

Seek Higher Level of Health.

Of foremost importance, Dr. Emerson declared, was "to meet the reasonable wish of every normal woman to choose the time and circumstance of her child bearing."

"Now that most of the barriers of superstition, law, religion, and prudery have fallen before the persistent crusaders of biological truth," said Dr. Emerson, "we can look forward with some confidence to extensive use of the more precise and constructive knowledge of human reproduction in the interest of a higher level of health."

DU PAGE COUNTY VOTES FUND FOR MOSQUITO FIGHT

The Du Page county board voted unanimously yesterday to carry its share of the cost of a WPA project to find mosquito breeding areas in Du Page, Lake, and Cook counties. The project is to go before the Cook county board Monday and the Lake county board July 11.

By their vote the Du Page county commissioners authorized the expenditure of $500, the use of county highway department personnel, and payment of expenses of the latter when and if the proposed project is approved by WPA. Cook county must vote $2,000 and personnel, and Lake county $550 and personnel.

The apportionment of the sponsors' share of the project was agreed upon at a meeting of representatives of the three county boards Thursday. The Cook and Lake county representatives said they would recommend that their boards approve their shares of the cost.

Two Caught Looting Gas Station on Far South Side

Morgan Park police caught two men yesterday as they were looting a filling station at 11100 South Western avenue. Those seized are Guy Carbary, 23 years old, 409 West Garfield boulevard, and James Meloy, 25, of 527 West 62d street.

No Party for Her

[Bachrach Photo: From Associated Press.]
MISS EVALYN McLEAN.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—(AP)—Young Evalyn Washington McLean, who balked at a debut, still refuses to let a party be given for her.

So Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, her mother and one of the country's best-known party-givers, invited the younger set in on her own tonight, with dinner and dancing for about 200 at Friendship, the McLean estate.

"I'm doing it so I can see the youngsters," explained Mrs. McLean, owner of the famous 44½ carat Hope diamond. "Evalyn wouldn't let me have it in her honor."

The tall, blonde Miss McLean decided to mingle with the gay crowd, however, along with one of her brothers, John R. [Jock] McLean II., and his wife.

MARITIME UNION PRESIDENT AND 7 ARE ARRESTED

New Orleans, La., June 23.—(AP)—Joseph Curran of New York, president of the National Maritime union [C. I. O.], was released on "parole to his attorneys" late today, three hours after being booked by police on charges of assault, beating and wounding, and disturbing the peace following a near riot in a downtown union office.

Suspicious of an automobile that pulled in behind a cab waiting for Curran at police headquarters following his release, police arrested three men in it and seized the car, in which they said they found a revolver, a pistol, and three short lengths of heavy chain. The men were held for investigation.

Curran, who was scheduled to conduct a labor meeting tonight, and seven others were arrested after twelve policemen answered a riot call in the union office.

ILLINOIS RELIEF BILL RUNS INTO DELAY IN HOUSE

Demands Made for Limit on Monthly Outgo.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—The $72,000,000 relief appropriation bill, nearing the end of its legislative journey, today ran into conflicting demands of house members which blocked its advancement to passage stage.

As the result of a compromise reached last month by Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago and Gov. Henry Horner, the money could be spent at the rate of $4,000,000 a month, although it is supposed to last for twenty-four months. Maximum monthly expenditures would exhaust the fund in eighteen months, but the next general assembly would then be in regular session and could act to remedy the deficiency.

Representative Thomas A. Bolger [D., McHenry], a Hornerite, today insisted on restrictions to make certain that the $72,000,000 will last the full two years. He offered an amendment providing that only three-fourths of the total could be spent by Jan. 1, 1940.

Calls for Safeguard.

"It will be unsound financing unless we do this," Bolger said. "We must protect the appropriation so that only $54,000,000 can be used by the time the legislature meets again Jan. 1, 1941."

This would put Chicago, with its increasing relief population, in a difficult position. Only $3,000,000 a month would be available for the entire state, compared with $4,500,000 now and the $5,000,000 requested by Mayor Kelly.

Protests of Chicagoans caused postponement of a vote on Bolger's proposal until Monday, when other plans also will be debated.

Paul Powell [D., Vienna] offered an amendment to permit spending $5,000,000 a month if necessary because of WPA layoffs. At least 56,000 WPA jobs will be abolished next month, he said.

Wants Sales Tax Used.

Arnold Lund [R., Chicago] introduced a resolution asking that the house require that at least one-half of sales tax receipts be earmarked for relief. With utility tax revenue, this would provide about $90,000,000 for the two years. Lund pointed out that the sales tax was enacted six years ago as a relief measure, but that less than one-third is used for this purpose.

Among fifty senate bills placed on passage stage in the house was the measure for a $52,000,000 Chicago school pegged tax levy, which would permit salary increases for board of education employés. A bill sponsored by the board and passed this session authorizes pegged levies of $48,000,000 for 1939, 1940, and 1941.

The large teachers' lobby is continuing its pursuit of house votes. Elmer J. Schnackenberg [R., Chicago] indicated a belief that the bill will be passed when he amended it to prevent the levy of more than $52,000,000 in the event that the basis of assessment is changed. However, he emphasized that he may not vote for it.

Preparing for the final week of the session, the senate advanced a score of house bills to passage stage. One would relax the requirements for obtaining old age assistance.

CHICAGO RELIEF DISTRICT OFFICES TO BE NUMBERED

Preparations are being made to substitute numbers for the names of the Chicago Relief administration's district offices, Leo M. Lyons, CRA head, announced yesterday. Even numbered offices will be north of Madison street and odd numbers will be to the south.

The present Chase and Northern district offices will be combined July 1 into one office and district to be known as District No. 2, Lyons said. This office will serve the area bounded by Center street on the south, the north branch of the Chicago river and the North Shore channel on the west, the city limits on the north and the lake on the east.

The former Archer and Bridgeport offices already have been combined into District Office No. 1, at 2820 Shields avenue. The present Washington district office, serving the area extending from 3900 to 4700 south and from State street to the lake, will be moved to 3940 Federal street on July 1 and will be known thereafter as District No. 3.

DIES 5 MONTHS AFTER FALL.

MEXICO FLAUNTS VARIOUS CHARMS ALONG THIS ROAD

Trip to Vera Cruz Shows Diversity of Life.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, June 21.—[By Air Mail.]—If one likes scenery, panoramas, and a certain softness in nature, by far the most attractive automobile tour possible out of Mexico City is the 300 mile jaunt to Vera Cruz.

The road is asphalt and more than twenty feet wide all the way, with the exception of three miles now under improvement. Heading southeast from the national capital, the highway winds out through the suburbs, passing the famed Xochimilco floating gardens, followed closely by two big community dairy farms, one with 400 Holsteins on it.

Pass Is 10,000 Feet High.

Twenty-five miles out and just on the outer rim of the big basin's level area the new leper colony is passed. A short stay in the capital accustoms one to its 7,500 foot elevation, but a climbing departure over the basin's rim quickly reminds a traveler that heavy air is scarce. The pass, over which the outlet crosses, is 10,000 feet high.

A new wrinkle in the spoiling of nature by glaring advertisments is found in the desecration of a small pinnacle which has had its vegetation replaced by seven letters cut out of rocks and painted white. The letters are thirty feet high. The chauffeur advised that political pull was responsible for the eyesore.

Good Job of Engineering.

The grade up the mountain is not particularly steep, nor the curves dangerous. Built by former President Plutarco Calles fifteen years ago, the engineering is commendable. Just over the crest the first village one observes is Rio Frio [cold river], located in the first and probably the smallest of the endless chain of basins and valleys leading down to the sea.

The settlement's claim to a river lies in a couple of springs, but its claim to fame goes back to glamorous outlaw days. Local sages advise that in the days of President Porfirio Diaz the bandits, having their homes in the little basin nearly 3,000 feet above Mexico City, were able to live in peace beyond the law because of their strategic location.

The eastern descent is very gradual. One beautiful panorama after another unfolds. The basins and valleys get larger as altitude is lost. Wild flowers, particularly poppies, are impressive. Mile after mile of large trees, planted by the builders of the road, now provide a pleasant green arch. The pretty countryside is conspicuous for its absence of billboards.

A Mexican Market Day.

San Martin is the first sizable town on the route. It is market day there and local color abounds. The approaches are filled with men, women, and children, together with their beasts of burden bearing their possessions for sale or barter. One sight is of particular interest.

A hog, almost as large as the burro on whose back it is tied, succeeds by its squeals in exciting the sleepy burro into a trot. A little Indian boy is dragged on his stomach in striving to restore order. Market day is an important day for Mexican towns. Everything from wild flowers to turkey goblers is on the block.

Puebla is the largest town between Mexico City and the coast. Well over 100,000 in population, it ably upholds its dignity as capital of the rich state of Puebla. The brother of Gen. Avila Camacho, candidate for president of Mexico, is governor.

Town Boasts of Parks.

Among the boasts of the town are its parks, gayly decorated old Spanish houses, a beautiful large cathedral, and a penitentiary in the center of the town.

From Puebla to the gulf is a continuation in changes of scenery and one large plâteau after another. Farm land is such as to make Illinois and Iowa take a look. The land is there, but progress in farming is absent. Instead of tractors there are steers. Instead of hoes there are human hands. Two crops per year are grown. Men weed corn with their hands twelve hours a day for 30 American cents.

And yet the most impressive remembrance of the eight hour trip is the fact that all of the countryside seems to be busy, prosperous, and contented, while the inhabitants of the towns appear indolent and poverty stricken.

GERTRUDE CRIPPEN.

Gertrude Crippen and Harry Fleer, two Northwestern university students, learned yesterday that they were the winners of three month scholarships to Max Reinhardt's Hollywood workshop, a school for the development of stage, screen, and radio talent.

Miss Crippen was graduated two weeks ago from the university's school of speech. Her home is in Billings, Mont. Fleer, who is from Quincy, is a musician as well as actor, and has appeared in campus musical shows.

Recordings made by Miss Crippen and Fleer were selected from 100 which were taken here during a month of auditions conducted by workshop staff members. Miss Crippen and Fleer will be the first outside of California to take the workshop course. The school's enrollment is limited to 80 students. The winners will be given actual production experience under Reinhardt's direction.

AMID MUCH POMP, KING REPORTS ON AMERICAN TOUR

Hopes Visit Will Influence Britain's Future.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 23.—As the strains of the British national anthem mingled with the cheers of a huge crowd, King George VI, and Queen Elizabeth drove from Buckingham palace in an open carriage at noon today to receive with maximum pomp and ceremony the official welcome of the city of London upon their return from what is described here as their "triumphant tour of North America."

Escorted by brilliantly uniformed mounted Life Guards, whose gleaming helmets are topped by white plumes, the king and queen drove to the boundary of the city at Temple Bar, where the carriages of the royal procession pulled to a halt as two policemen barred the way, holding a red cord across the street.

On this historic site the lord mayor of London, Sir Frank Bowater, decked out in a rich robe of ermine, advanced toward the king and presented the pearl sword of the city to his majesty. The king touched the sword to signify his acceptance and the carriages rolled on through cheering crowds to Guildhall, where the lord mayor, by dint of a little fast work, managed to put in another welcoming appearance.

Kennedy at Luncheon.

Prior to the arrival of the king and queen, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador from the United States, drew cheers from 700 London big wigs who had come to honor their majesties at the luncheon. State trumpeters blew a fanfare as the royal guests marched in. The lord mayor sat at the right of the queen and his wife at the left of the king. Others at the royal table were Queen Mother Mary, Kennedy and his wife, the archbishop of Canterbury, Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, and his wife and other officials.

Their majesties sat in arm chairs of crimson velvet and gold beneath a crimson velvet canopy embroidered in the royal monograms.

The king, who has apparently gained considerable self confidence from the trip abroad, gave a speech which was described as his best ever.

King Tells of Trip.

"It was the desire to serve the ideals of the commonwealth which led me to undertake the journey, to show if I could that its headship, which I have been called upon to assume, existed today as a potent force in promoting peace and good will among mankind."

He said he had found as a result of the tour that in "even this age of machines and mass production the strength of human feelings still is the most potent of all factors in the world."

Quoting a "North American historian," he said that "over all nations is humanity," and added that "in no part of the world, perhaps, is that truth more evident than on the continent from which I have just returned."

[He apparently referred to Goldwin Smith, a Briton who was a professor at Cornell university from 1868 to 1871.]

The king said he hoped his tour might "be of some importance in its influence on the empire's future destiny," and referred to "Canada's great and friendly neighbor, the United States."

WIFE, FREED IN SON'S DROWNING, IS DENIED 2D CHILD'S CUSTODY

Mrs. Sara T. Ballengee, 34 years old, who two years ago was acquitted of a charge of drowning her infant son, Harold Jr., in a bathtub, yesterday was denied custody of her other child, Nancy, 7 years old, at a hearing before Judge Oscar F. Nelson.

Mrs. Sara Ballengee.

Mrs. Ballengee's petition was opposed by her estranged husband, Harold, 1020 Dempster street, Evanston, who is suing her for divorce. She now is deputy county superintendent of schools at Rapid City, S. D.

The Ballingees were living in Winnetka when Harold Jr. was drowned. Mrs. Balengee was found insane by a jury and committed to Kankakee state hospital. She was freed in 1937.

Dr. G. W. Morrow of the Kankakee institution testified yesterday that while he considered Mrs. Ballengee to be normal, there is a likelihood of a recurrence of manic depressive moods.

A KID WITH A KITE

By CALEB

GIVEN a boy, a wide-open space, a wind, plenty of stout string, and a suitable contraption of crossed sticks and fabric . . . and you have all the makings of one of play-time's happiest pictures.

And who knows, as the breeze veers and tugs, and small fists grapple the taut cord that dizzies up into the cloud-hung sky, what serious fancies are being fathered in the small brain busy under those blown locks? Fancies to be focused, later, into all sorts of revolutionary realities?

Just such a carefree flyer of kites back in Kansas some forty-five years ago, nursed just such fancies. And today their stern counterparts throw huge shadows across the terrain, to the tune of giant motors flinging giant air-wings against the sun. As the boy was bent, the man inclined. The arrowhead patterns of kitehood became the crossbow contours of air-craft . . . and among world-makers, the name of Glenn L. Martin is one both to conjure and to reckon with.

In the huge plant near Baltimore, Md., this kite-flying lad of 1894—now one of America's Big Five in plane manufacture—finds himself swamped with orders. Air transport for Russia, the Argentine, the Netherlands, Turkey, China, France, the U. S. A.—millions in unfilled orders waiting, while capacity is doubled, and thousands of men are already on twenty-four hour production—picked engineers putting in 60-hour weeks to keep pace with tomorrow's planning . . . such is 1939's sequel to the story of an Iowa hardware clerk's son who loved a windy sky, and a paper steed riding it, tethered to its owner by a cotton string. . . .

The years intervening well maintained the pattern thus set for them. At 31, Martin was a typical stunt pilot of the barnstorming days—and from him many a celebrity got his first taste of height and flight. In his own home-made plane he hunted, competed in air-meets, played in the first aviation movie, built records that branded him an ace. And today, at 52, he is still married only to the Goddess of Speed, whom he woos with all the ardor of a boy running crosslots with his first kite! . . .

The miniature skyships of uncanny realism and mechanical perfection on our fourth floor would have been such marvelous things to fly, when Martin was a boy! But who can say what lad just like him, with shiny eyes and drumming heart, may not, in launching one of these play-machines into the summer skies, be preparing in his own unpredictable way, for some equally tremendous triumph of tomorrow?

FEDERAL AGENTS RAID JAP SHOP IN CUSTOMS FRAUD

Charge Failure to Value Imports Correctly.

United States customs agents yesterday raided and closed the exclusive shop of Yamanaka & Co., Inc., Japanese art goods importers at 846 North Michigan avenue. The agents disclosed that the company is accused of defrauding the government of thousands of dollars in import duties. The raid coincided with similar action against Yamanaka stores in New York and Boston.

Preparations for the raid were completed with utmost secrecy. A warant was issued by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday morning. A few minutes later a squad of six agents took possession of the store and its basement store rooms, locking out all customers. The agents began cataloging all goods and will continue this work through today.

Goods Can Be Seized.

William H. Tidwell, supervisor of customs agents in Chicago, said a special agent in Kobe, Japan, discovered that the Yamanaka company has been fraudulently undervaluing dutiable goods imported into the United States.

"We don't know yet how much the government has lost, but it will total several thousand dollars," Tidwell said.

"Under the law the government can seize the goods or exact a forfeiture of money equivalent to the value of the goods in this country. In addition, persons responsible may face criminal charges. The maximum sentence is two years in prison and the maximum fine is $5,000."

According to an affidavit filed with Commissioner Walker, the importing company has been valuing dutiable goods shipped from Japan at a price below the actual cost of the goods in Japan.

Overvalue Other Goods.

To cover this discrepancy in its total figures on shipments to the United States, the company overvalued its nondutiable goods by similar percentages, the affidavit charges. Ninety-one separate shipments from Osaka or Shanghai are listed in the affidavit.

"This indicates a consistent and gross undervaluation in relation to the price paid for the goods by the Osaka parent company," the affidavit said. "There is cause to suspect a systematic practice of falsely and fraudulently undervaluting and overvaluating the value of imported merchandise which has continued up to the present time."

According to Tidwell, the government levies duty on such goods as precious stones, silks, jades, pottery, bric-a-brac, ivory, and similar materials sold by the store. Goods exempt largely include objects of art of little intrinsic value and antiques more than one hundred years old.

The raid on the store was directed by Customs Agent William H. Reilly. He carried with him lists of shipments and invoices which will be compared with the merchandise in the store.

Toyekichi Shimotshuma, secretary of the company and manager of the store, declined to comment on the raid.

YOUNG CRIMINAL TRIES TO ESCAPE IN COURT DRAMA

A young robber made an unsuccessful dash for escape yesterday in the Criminal court of Judge George Fred Rush after he had been sentenced to one to twenty years in prison. The prisoner is George Bongeorno, 16 years old, 1037 South Racine avenue, who, with Frank Francucci, 18, of 1017 South Racine avenue, was sentenced on two charges of robbery. Francucci's term also was one to twenty years.

George Bongeorno, handcuffed after attempt to escape.

"I can't take it! I can't take it!" Bongeorno screamed as sentence was pronounced. He broke away from the bailiff, leaped into the jury box, and tried to climb the wall at the far end of the box before attendants subdued him. The young men were arrested by Park Policeman John Belskey, who heard them boasting about their crimes. They were found guilty of the holdup of a gasoline filling station at 3535 Ogden avenue on May 23 and the robbery of John De Caro, 908 South Fairfield avenue, on May 20. A third member of the gang escaped after his arrest and is being sought.

Called Gambler

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Rose Levinthal outside of courtroom yesterday.

Maurice Levinthal, owner of four downtown parking lots, charged yesterday that his wife, Rose, was so fond of gambling that she broke into their children's banks for gambling money.

He made the charge in reply to her bill for separate maintenance, which is pending before Judge Oscar F. Nelson. Levinthal said his wife used grocery money and pawned her jewels to get money for gambling. She also borrowed money, he declared.

Mrs. Levinthal, who is 35 years old, accuses her husband of cruelty, asserting he knocked her down once, and knocked her unconscious another time. He denied the charges. The Levinthals live at 1052 Balmoral avenue. They have been married thirteen years. Their children are Audrey, 10, and Vera, 6.

ROBBER KILLED BY POLICEMAN, WHO ALSO DIES

Wife of Bandit Sees Duel in Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., June 23.—[Special.]—A wife who planned a holdup saw her husband shot to death here this afternoon after he had wounded a policeman fatally. The gun duel occurred a few minutes after the husband had robbed a finance company of $300.

Arrested when she was trying to get away from the scene of the shooting, the woman identified the slain bandit as Anthony Phillip, 27 years old, formerly of St. Louis. The policeman was Warren K. Raby, 38.

At police headquarters the woman said she is Mrs. Hildegarde Phillip, 33, a former Detroit nurse. She said she and Phillip were married in St. Louis last December and had been traveling through the south and middle west since January.

Pick Victim on Chance.

The fact that the Theodore Hartman Auto Finance company was the victim of the holdup was mere chance, Mrs. Phillip said. She told police she and Phillip came to Detroit June 6 and that when their money became low they decided that a finance company robbery would be the easiest way to get funds.

Mrs. Phillip said she selected the Hartman company from a list in a telephone directory and then visited the place several times to study the layout of the offices.

Traced by License Plates.

Illinois license plates on the Phillip car made him easy for a cruising squad to find a few minutes after the holdup today. When the police car cut off further flight Phillip stepped out of his car and shot Raby when the policeman approached him. Despite his wounds Raby returned the fire and killed Phillip. Raby was dead when he reached a hospital.

Mistakes Woman for Wife So Shoots and Kills Her

Twenty-nine Palms, Cal., June 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Jennings Payne, 38 years old, was shot and killed while walking with her husband and 10 year old daughter along a highway. Today Lloyd Ogles was quoted by Deputy Sherif James Stocker as confessing he shot her, mistaking her for his wife with whom he had quarreled.

A Posthumous Novel Upholds Wolfe's Genius

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Web and the Rock," by Thomas Wolfe. [Harpers, $3.] Published Thursday.

Thomas Wolfe, who died less than a year ago at the age of 38, was the author of two novels, "Look Homeward, Angel" and "Of Time and the River," which at first placed and then secured their author in the ranks of great American novelists of today.

His untimely death did not, however, deprive us of more proof of his genius. He left, complete, the manuscripts of two vast novels, of which "The Web and the Rock" is the first. Or perhaps it should be said he left one superhumanly long tale, for this book ends with the phrase, "You can't go home again," and that phrase is the title of the second book, which will be published in a year or so.

Thomas Wolfe's method has no madness in it. It is as all-comprehensive, as slow, and as all-inclusive as a census. Indeed, it IS a census, in literary form, of all the people and the stimuli to the senses and to the consciousness of its hero. Like Mr. Wolfe's previous novels, this one gives the impression of autobiography. Its hero is felt from the inside out, not merely seen so, and Mr. Wolfe's occasional trick of calling him "the young man" or "the young traveler" emphasizes rather than denies that impression, as if, feeling himself too closely identified with his hero, the author picks his hero up by the scruff of the neck and holds him at a distance in a pretense of observation.

The web of George Webber's life, according to Mr. Wolfe, is woven in the pattern of the generation of small town boys who "twenty-five years or so ago were lying stretched out in the grass" and dreaming of their future. George lives his childhood and youth in Old Catawba [Asheville, N. C.], goes to a small college and then to New York, gets a job, and falls in love and writes a book. There is little novel in that general pattern. It is Mr. Wolfe's intricate weaving which makes "The Web and the Rock" a big book in more than physical bulk.

There will be—there already are—many readers who cannot give themselves to the slow, heavy rhythm of Thomas Wolfe's method. They will find "The Web and the Rock" too turgid. Others will feel, almost from its beginning, the impressive thoroughness, the ponderous strength of Thomas Wolfe's genius. However, few, and those only Wolfe devotees, will find the book living up to Mr. Wolfe's hero's avowed dream of a book which "in the end, as the strands increased, extended, wove, and crossed, would take on the denseness and complexity of the whole web of life and of America."

A Rare Beauty in This

"Wind, Sand, and Stars," by Antoine de Saint Exupery. [Reynal & Hitchcock, $2.75.] Published Tuesday.

Joint choice of the Book of the Month club. Just awarded the Grand Prix Academie Française, highest literary honor in France.

This is a book of a quality as pure and rare as the upper reaches of the air which its author makes as vivid as the great prose poets have made the sea and the earth. Antoine de Saint Exupery gives us, with the zest of a Christopher Columbus finding a new continent, a new "land" of fact to stimulate the imagination.

From the cockpit of his airplane, tilted off plumb, he looks out and down on what he thinks are the lights of a village in the Sahara and finds them glittering stars in the sky, man's new roadway. Awe at a world so little known to man fills him also when he is forced down in a meteor-strewn crater.

That sense of the joy of discovery triumphing over death carries him through one of the epic tests of man's endurance, when he and another man are wrecked in the Libyan desert. For days they wander over its glassy surface, the moisture slowly drying out of their bodies, waiting for the moment when blinding lights in their eyes will tell them they have only two hours more to live. And still he is able to say, with simple honesty, "I am so made that I have to believe that everything is simple. Birth is simple. Growing up is simple. And dying of thirst is simple."

M. de Saint Exupery is in fact what the jacket of this extraordinary book declares him to be—a poet and a philosopher. His is a soul as sensitive to beauty and to reality as a geranium leaf is to the sun. And yet there is no more sentimentality about his philosophy than there is about nature. It is a belief in man and in man's need for his fellow men. "Why should we hate one another?" he asks.

A short review cannot hope to make even vaguely evident the beauties and the charm of this simple record of one man's memories of wind, sand, and stars. It is a classic in the genre of Anne Lindbergh's flights into the same rare element of truth and beauty. "Wind, Sand, and Stars" is translated from the French with delicate skill by Lewis Galantiere.

Two Books on Adventuresome Lives Are First Rate for Vacation Reading

"Me," by Brenda Ueland. [Putnam, $3.]

"Head Wind," by Winifred Loraine. [Morrow, $3.50.]

If you're planning a vacation soon these two books, a biography and an autobiography, will make pleasant hammock reading. Brenda Ueland, the writer, and Robert Loraine, England's actor-aviator, were adventurous souls who thrilled to excitement. But there the similarity ends.

In her own story Miss Ueland believes there may be merit in telling what happened to her from her childhood on, what she thought about it, and why, all the time being as honest as is humanly possible. She achieves her purpose in her lively story of a modern woman of conservative background who goes through a Greenwich village phase, works hard, and becomes in maturity wise, tolerant, sympathetic, and lovable.

Robert Loraine was one of the most glamorous figures of this century in England. A handsome matinée idol, he was an actor of wide talents. From the age of 15, when he ran away to the stage, until his death in 1935 he continued to achieve success in vastly different types of plays. His greatest recognition came from "Man and Superman," which he bought from his close friend, George Bernard Shaw, many of whose original letters are included in this biography by Loraine's widow.

But the stage was not Loraine's only field. In the Boer war he was a dispatch rider. In the world war he took to the air and became a hero. A poor pilot but utterly fearless, he also pioneered in the earliest planes, helped start night flying, and was the first to fly the Irish channel.

Civil War Memoirs

"The Road to Richmond," by Maj. Abner R. Small. [University of California Press, $3.50.]

Abner Small, a slim young fellow of 24, went off from Maine to the civil war in time to run away at Bull Run with the rest of the Union army. He fought at Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, and with Grant at Petersburg, where he was captured, sent to the squalor and starvation of rebel prison camps for six months, and exchanged in time to lead his regiment up Pennsylvania avenue in the victory parade after Appomattox.

These memoirs were written shortly before he died in 1910. Edited by his son, Harold A. Small, editor of the press that published them, they carry a youthful freshness at variance with the lapse between the events and their description.

The memoirs will prove interesting to the general reader, for they set forth the reaction of the man on the firing line to the hazards of combat and the discomforts and humor of camp life. Maj. Small wrote with humor and without pretense. He told what he saw, attempting no essays on strategy, and he was a good teller of a tale.

Pioneer Days in Nebraska

"Nebraska Coast," by Clyde Brion Davis. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50.] Published Monday.

The author of "The Great American Novel," one of the best books about the newspaper man who is always about to [but never does] write the great American novel, has deserted the present for the 1860s in this story of pioneer Nebraska.

It begins in "York State," where the broad-fisted father of the "I" of the tale buys a canal boat because picking rocks from an upstate farm does not satisfy the demand for wide horizons of fact and deed which impels him. He is no believer in war and the growing passion of his fellow townsmen after the fall of Fort Sumter makes him even more uncomfortable. He uses the threats against him—as well as the argument that there is no whisky to be had on a farm in the territory of the Nebraska coast—to persuade his wife that life on the unknown plains will be—what she knows in her heart it can never be—good.

The MacDougalls find life harder than even Mrs. MacDougall had feared, but somehow good, and as the book chronicles the growth of the little settlement which finally bears their name pioneer life in the west flows through the pages with freshness and vividness.

The steam wagon and the railroad were there, rivals for the development of the west, the one not only forgotten but to most of Mr. Davis' readers never known. Abraham Lincoln was not the idol which history has made of him. The civil war was more of a noise off stage than a leading part. In these pages "Nebraska Coast" might well have been a pioneer island in the sea of the civilization of the 60s.

A Scholarly Account of Great Triumvirate in American History

"America's Silver Age," by Gerald W. Johnson. [Harpers, $3.50.]

Gerald W. Johnson has recreated young America's Great Triumvirate, painting in the vivid colors of their times Henry Clay, Daniel Webster, and John C. Calhoun. These three dominated political thought for forty years and, though all were denied the presidency, each left his imprint unmistakably upon the shaping of our government and nation.

Though scholarly and meticulously done, this book is alive and eminently readable. Clay was a pestilential fellow, but was loved as few of his countrymen have been. Calhoun was the very incarnation of the wrath of God. Webster was simple and direct, an eloquent poet and the servant of the moneyed interests. The author draws an amazing parallel between the silver age and the present turbulent times.

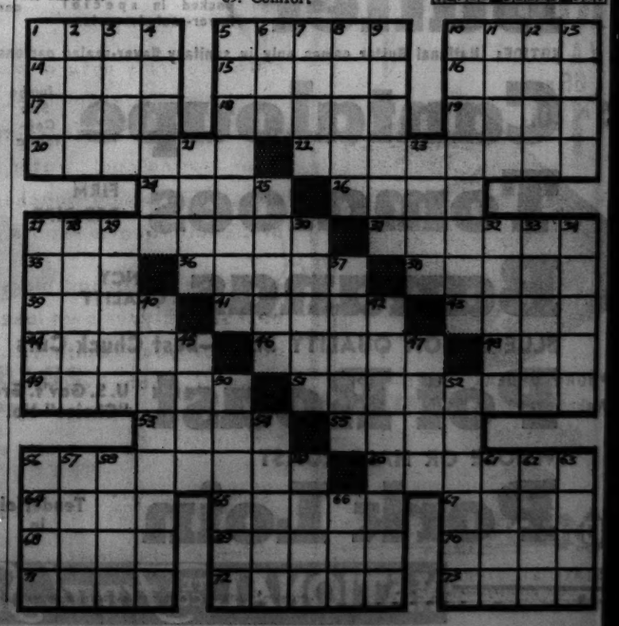
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



3 ST. CHARLES GRADS CONFESS 25 BURGLARIES

Captured with Pal While Looting Residence.

Three parolees from the St. Charles School for Boys and a companion admitted to Sheffield avenue police yesterday that they had committed more than twenty-five burglaries on the north side and in Niles Center and Elmwood Park in recent months.

The parolees were seized Thursday night while looting a home. One of them, Raymond Schroeder, 16 years old, 1017 Montana street, was carrying a stolen revolver. Schroeder was paroled from St. Charles three months ago after serving a year for purse snatching.

The others held are William Koss, 17, of 1419 Laramie avenue, who was paroled two months ago after a fifteen month term for burglary; Alfred Giovenco, 17, of 840 George street, paroled three months ago after a year and one-half for burglary, and Alex Quattrocchi, 16, of 1047 Webster avenue.

Loot Found in Homes.

They admitted the burglaries to Detectives Fred Susebach and John Ellis yesterday after another stolen revolver, four watches, and several rings were found in their homes. Most of the thefts occurred in the Sheffield, Town Hall, and Jefferson Park districts.

The parolees told Detective Susebach that they renewed their crime careers shortly after being released from St. Charles.

"Schroeder, Giovenco, and Quattrocchi began pulling the jobs soon after the first two got out," Susebach said. "Koss said that he met Schroeder on the street a few days after he himself got out of St. Charles and asked him, 'You pulling any jobs?'"

Schroeder told Koss that he and the others had committed several burglaries and invited Koss to join them, Susebach said.

$100 Stolen in Raids.

Most of their burglaries netted each of them about one or two dollars, Schroeder told Susebach.

"We got only about $100 in all," he said. "We used to pick up any jewelry that was around. One time we took a locket that had Nelson Eddy's picture in it. We threw away the picture and kept the locket."

The four were discovered robbing the home of William Reise, 1841 Wellington avenue, late Thursday night. Harold Gettersloh, 2314 Roscoe street, and Walter Klein, 3338 North Oakley avenue, friends of Reise, saw the four as they passed the house. They ran in, persuaded Schroeder to give up the revolver, and held them until police arrived.

ENDS OWN LIFE 24 HOURS AFTER SHOOTING RIVAL

Galena, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—A jealous suitor who shot his rival for the affections of a Nora, Ill., waitress, killed himself tonight while fifty peace officers were hunting for him in Illinois and Wisconsin.

Shortly after 8 o'clock deputy sheriffs came upon an automobile parked along a highway near Darlington, Wis. In the car they found Lawrence Reed, 45 years old, dead of monoxide gas. Reed was a salesman.

Officers had been hunting Reed since last night after he shot Frank Keeley, 45, Nora grocer, whom he found sitting with Miss Alice Campbell, 24, in a parked car on the outskirts of Nora. Tonight Keeley is in a Freeport hospital recovering from bullet wounds in his head and neck.

According to Sherif Percy Hutchison of Jo Daviess county, Reed, who was married and the father of five children, had been keeping company with Miss Campbell for several months. Recently she spurned his attentions in favor of Keeley.

TWICE FREED, 2 THIEVES FINALLY GET TO PRISON

James Callaghan, 15 years old, and Donald Lanktree, 18, young burglars who were sentenced June 7 to a year to life in the penitentiary by Judge Walter T. Stanton in the Criminal court, were taken to Joliet yesterday. They were arrested early in April and confessed twenty-five burglaries. Despite the convictions, however, they were twice found not guilty by Criminal court juries. The state continued to bring new charges against them and the pair finally pleaded guilty and sought probation.

BOYS 13 AND 15 ADMIT SLAYING FARMER FOR CAR

Toulon, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—Two young brothers confessed to authorities tonight that they ambushed and shot to death a neighboring farmer to get his car so they could embark on a career of crime.

The boys are Clifford Lodwick, 13 years old, and Edgar Jr., 15, who lived on a farm with their parents near Duncan, about ten miles southeast of here.

Their confession cleared up the three day mystery surrounding the disappearance of John W. Rude, 30 years old, a bachelor who lived near the Lodwick farm.

The body of Rude, who had been missing since Wednesday morning, was found today by a searching party of twenty-five farmers and deputy sherifs. It lay in a clump of bushes near Rude's home, a bullet hole in the temple. A hedge knife lay nearby.

Armed with a .22 rifle, they crept upon Rude as he clipped a hedge near his house. Edgar, the older boy, held the rifle as he sent a bullet into the farmer's temple. Then they dashed to Rude's garage and took his car.

They left the car in Galesburg, and continued on without it to the home of their uncle.

THIRD TERM ANNOUNCEMENT.

Recently Thurman Arnold, who was put in the department of justice to regulate American business by criminal prosecutions, was asked when the government intended to produce something out of its monopoly investigation. He said that something big was coming and it might be coming sooner than was generally expected. Apparently Mr. Roosevelt's new plan for a 3 billion 800 million dollar spending program is the something big.

The monopoly investigation, as it is called, has been conducted by the temporary national economic committee merely to air the views of the newer New Dealers who have dropped the old pretense of emergency and temporary expedients. They now talk economic and political revolution and propose that the socialist government take over productive properties. They sounded off with Dr. Alvin Hansen, A. A. Berle Jr., and Marriner Eccles.

With the economic committee as a publicity instrument they prepared the way for Mr. Roosevelt's new schemes by saying that private financing and production in a free economy had failed and could not recover. Mr. Roosevelt asked the committee why private money was collected in unused pools. The answer was: Failure of capitalism.

With the preliminaries thus attended to, Mr. Roosevelt abruptly pulled out the three billion 800 million spending program and asked a startled congress to hitch it to the one billion 735 million dollar WPA and relief appropriation and pass it before June 30.

The scheme, which covers a period of from two to seven years, is itself a preliminary. It is only a beginning in the substitution of federal government credit for private capital upon the theory that government ownership follows government money. The duration of the financing means permanency. The character of it means comprehensive expansion and therefore national socialism. The political meaning is the third term.

THE SUPERHIGHWAY BILL.

The members of the legislature who voted in the roads committee of the house to bury the superhighway bills will have blood on their hands if the decision is not altered. The bills were intended to prevent automobile deaths in Chicago in the only practical way they can be prevented: by constructing elevated streets, free of cross trafic in congested areas. There is not a reputable highway engineer in the country who has any solution except such a separation of grades for the problem.

On the day the roads committee acted, the number of deaths in automobile accidents in Chicago this year reached 300. Three hundred innocents were sacrificed to old fashioned highways. They will be sacrificed at the same rate in the years to come unless provision is made now for the construction of a modern superhighway system.

The members of the committee who opposed the bill voted in a spirit of impatience. They are under heavy pressure in these closing days of the session, but that is an explanation, not a justification, for their hasty action. Fortunately there is still a chance to save the bill provided the house as a whole votes to discharge the committee. If the members of the house are men of conscience, if they would shrink from condemning innocent men, women, and children to death, they must give their approval to the superhighway program.

The bill has been amended to remove the objections raised by some members against it. As it now stands the measure permits Cook county and Chicago jointly to issue notes secured by their share of the gasoline taxes. No funds of the state highway department, present or future, are encumbered. The improvement will be a local one in the financial sense. Outside communities will contribute nothing to the superhighway system and will sacrifice nothing.

The benefits, however, will extend throughout the state and especially throughout all of northern Illinois. Communities like Barrington and Joliet [whose spokesmen in the legislature must have overlooked this point] will benefit immensely from the construction of superhighways through the congested areas of Chicago. Such roads will not only save lives in Chicago—they will greatly enhance property values in outlying sections.

The majority of the committee gave scant attention to the amendments of the original bill. The point was overlooked that if the gas tax money is not spent for superhighways it will be spent for pork barrel roads in Chicago and Cook county which will benefit neither the metropolitan district as a whole nor any one else except favored property owners. The bill gives the state highway department general supervision over plans and contracts with a view to assuring that the superhighways will be integrated into the state's road program, viewed as a whole.

The bill should be passed. The defeat of the measure will mean that the members of the legislature approve the massacre of the innocent in our streets.

WALLACE THE TRICKSTER.

We made a mistake in an editorial entitled "America's Bread," published on June 17. Speaking of the government's forecast of the wheat crop of 1939 we said: "This year again we shall be dependent upon foreign farmers." This statement was inaccurate. To be sure, the crop this year, according to the official forecast, will fall short of our domestic requirements, but from that it does not follow that we must again depend upon foreign farmers for our bread, for we have a surplus of wheat left over from last year upon which to draw.

We regret the error. Our regret is tempered, however, by the knowledge that the slip gave Secretary Wallace an occasion to expose once again not only his incompetence but more especially the crookedness of his thinking.

Informed citizens, aware of the fact that Mr. Wallace's acreage reduction scheme to stimulate the sale of its high priced hybrid seed, could hardly have been shocked by any subsequent conduct of his. But even those who have Mr. Wallace's number must have been shocked by the evasive trickery of his defense. It recalls his suppression of the official report of the failure of the cotton program.

Mr. Wallace delivered his tirade not in Chicago nor in the grain belt but before the Alabama Press association meeting in Washington. The Alabama editors could hardly be expected to know a great deal about wheat or to realize that he had snatched a sentence out of its context to make a crooked point.

The first paragraph of the editorial read:

"This country isn't going to raise enough wheat this year to feed the American people. The forecast is based on the department of agriculture's official estimate of the crop on June 1."

Mr. Wallace quoted the first of the sentences but not the second. By doing so he sought to establish his charge that we were spreading what he called an atrocity story. He said we were guilty of "notorious misrepresentation." The truth is that Mr. Wallace's own crop forecasters had foreseen, as of June 1, a winter wheat yield this year of 523 million bushels and had estimated the condition of the spring wheat crop as 71 per cent of normal. That meant a total yield of between 668 and 693 million bushels.

Last year's consumption of wheat in this country was 706 million bushels. The year before it was 703 million bushels.

As Mr. Wallace warmed to his subject he attempted a further deception. He said the new crop, together with the carryover, provide an excess of 450 million bushels above human consumption, as if seed requirements did not constitute a first lien upon the crop and as if all the available wheat were fit for human consumption.

Those who heard Mr. Wallace might reasonably have suspected that under his administration no such thing as dependence upon foreign farmers for our food had ever occurred. The fact, as stated in the editorial, is that "until the New Deal and its planned economy there never was a wheat deficit in this country. But in five of the seven years since the New Deal undertook to boss the farmers we have consumed more wheat than our farmers were permitted to raise."

That was the heart of the editorial and Mr. Wallace had nothing to say in reply to it and didn't even mention it. As to four of those five years, the statement cannot be questioned because the figures are in the public records. Mr. Wallace thinks that in the fifth year, 1939, we may break even. Even if he is proved right, it will still be true that under his administration we have had four short crops in seven.

That is Mr. Wallace's record as planner and administrator and, as the editorial said, against this record must be set the fact that never before did our farmers fail to provide this country with its bread in all the years in which the department of agriculture has been collecting statistics.

Mr. Wallace had nothing specific to say about that because there is nothing he can say. The free economy worked better than his planned economy and it worked better for the farmers as well as for every one else. The official records prove it. That was the point of the editorial and our inaccurate statement regarding dependence upon foreign farmers this year in no way vitiates the point.

Editorial of the Day

[San Antonio Express.]

The people of the United States generally pride themselves upon tolerance, and rather smugly look back upon the witch-persecuting and other practices of the Pilgrim and Puritan days for illustrations as to how far they have advanced in that regard. They sympathize with old world peoples who may not worship as they please nor criticize their governments; and they scoff at the totalitarian states whose decrees prescribe what the people may read, what music they may hear, and what food they may eat, and what dances are permissible.

Even so, one sees evidence that the democratic barriers to such restrictions are dangerously thin, and that Americans have not come along so far in tolerance as they like to believe. Consider this excerpt from a chapter on "The Good Old Days," in Neal O'Hara's "Take It from Me":

"Back in 1676, in Northampton, Mass., one Hannah Lyman was summoned before the judge for having publicly worn a dress trimmed with gold lace and bright colored ribbons, 'to the shame and mortification of her betters.' And the kindly judge slapped her with a fine of a couple of pounds."

Now compare that account—ludicrous to enlightened moderns—with this [May, 1939] Associated Press dispatch:

"Charles Kutovicz, Lawrence, Mass., high school boy, has a haircut and won't have to worry about going to school until it grows out again. He attributed the Iroquois haircut to Redskins Athletic club which he joined, and he was ordered by the head master not to return to school until he can grow a new crop around the scalped topknot."

What is the essential difference? It is doubtful whether even Italy and Germany have gone so far as to dictate the people's hairdress. To be sure, photographs show the Massachusetts boy's haircut as unconventional—perhaps even unattractive by current standards. However, there is nothing impractical or offensive about it, and punitive action cannot be justified by any means. To forfeit a boy's educational privilege because a head master does not like the way he wears his hair is hardly a democratic procedure.

If We Are Collecting Tiger Stories . . .

There is Paul Moyer's about the stranger from India who was boring his drinking companions at the club with his experiences with tigers. Once, he related, when he was quartered in a small village in the tiger country he encountered a big man-eating tiger skulking inside the regimental mess. He was unarmed and alone, but with great presence of mind he dashed a handy bowl of water in the tiger's face, and the creature turned tail and fled down the narrow street. He was about to relate further adventures when he was interrupted by one of the listeners who had been silently appraising the orator.

"As a matter of fact," the listener said, "I am in a position to verify Maj. Blank's experience because I happened to be in the same village at the time. I was on my way to mess and saw the tiger running down the street and as I pushed him aside in order to pass I remember distinctly that his whiskers were wet."

A manufacturer of women's clothing was asked how business was.

"Swell; it's a slack season," he answered.

Department of Folklore.

It's the age of television, and speed, and synthetic marvels, but recently a woman in Neenah, Wis., told that a mare's milk would remove freckles if applied warm, tried it. So did her sister, who is employed in the publicity department of Northwestern university. They were disappointed to find it didn't work.

As a child, we remember being told that dew would remove freckles and trying it. The other bit of folklore we believed in was that if a horse hair was immersed in a dish of water it would turn into a snake. Wonder if that was a purely local belief.

Menominee Note.

A new type of festivity was reported to us last week—the alphabet party. An alphabet party is one to which each guest brings food beginning with the first letter of her last name. Thus, at a recent alphabet party at Menominee, Mich., a Mrs. Anderson brought apple pie; a Miss Fernstrom, fish balls. A Mrs. Zeiser was stumped until some one suggested zinnamon buns.

THE PERIL IN CENSORED NEWS

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—The danger of suppressing news inconvenient to the government of the day, with the intention of sparing the public alarm, is discussed by Sir Arthur Salter in his recently published book, "Security." He gives an instance from his own experience as director of allied shipping during the war, which shows how government officials may come to mislead even themselves.

The admiralty, he records, used to publish weekly statements of the losses of merchant ships by submarine attack. All was well while the losses were small. When the losses became large the figures of loss were correctly announced, but their significance was veiled by giving out at the same time a statement of the number of arrivals and departures of British ships.

This number included not only the overseas ships, which were subject to submarine attack and never numbered more than 150, but also cross channel vessels, ships shifting ports, or small coastal craft never in serious danger from submarines.

The contrasts between the figures of ships sunk and the figures of safe arrivals suggested a much smaller risk than actually existed.

"One day," says Sir Arthur, "I received a visit from the admiral who bore the main responsibility for the naval protection of merchant vessels. He said he thought the weekly return should be amended, and asked me if I could supply the true figures of ships arriving and departing to and from overseas.

"I replied that I could, but that I did not think he would publish them.

"'Why not?' he said. 'What were the figures for last week?'

"I replied [I gave the approximate figures], '35 losses and 140 arrivals—not 2,500—a 20 per cent loss.'

"His face blanched and for a moment he could not credit the figures. The weekly return remained unchanged.

ARE YOU A GOOD SAILOR?

THOSE who are about to embark upon a sea voyage are the recipients of more gratuitous advice than any other class of potential invalids. Every one who has enjoyed a smooth cruise prides himself on the fact that his plan is the best. People who are habitually reticent about their internal complexities will launch into vocal pyrotechnics whenever the subject of seasickness is mentioned.

Remedies range all the way from extract of garlic to gum, from Seidlitz powders to senna, while hypnotics include every drug known to have the slightest depressing effect. But what will be successful with patient A may be worthless with B. The reason is that we all exhibit individual reactions toward the pitching motion of the ship and 1,001 factors may be responsible for the symptoms.

The classical manifestations—nausea and vomiting—vary widely. Some will complain only of slight squeamishness with either a headache—which is more or less constant—or minor feelings of dizziness. A single emptying of the stomach may terminate the episode. With others, if nausea has hung on for a day or two, three or four glasses of warm water followed by vomiting will wash the gastric pouch thoroughly. Curiously enough, this group responds to the signs of illness in a very peculiar fashion. For example, the pulse rate is unusually slow and the blood pressure may drop appreciably.

But there is another class of persons who behave quite differently because the sympathetic nervous system is at fault. The sufferer seems to be a victim of migraine—sick headache. Vomiting seizures recur repeatedly without the slightest relief and retching may continue long after the stomach is clear. The patient may be markedly flushed and excited and the blood pressure is increased rather than lowered. In this variety, headache and vertigo are neither frequent nor persistent. Basically the cause is ascribed to fear, apprehension, or worry over the successful termination of the passage.

In this latter type the employment of sedatives is essential. Twenty-four to forty-eight hours before sailing, mild doses of belladonna may be combined with some hypnotic such as a bromide or one of the barbituric acid derivatives. Chloral hydrate is also a valuable aid and many a ship's surgeon will use phenobarbital and chloral hydrate in proper proportions.

In those who start off with a headache immediately, belladonna is the remedy of choice and benzedrine—a stimulant—has given excellent results in some instances. Nervous individuals, however, cannot use this drug at all.

There is no treatment quite so efficient as sleep and with those who are extremely excitable the taking of a slumber inducing compound is begun several days before starting. But even this régime will fail if the hurry and bustle of packing, going away parties, and farewells keep one so keyed up that rest is out of the question.

As soon the the vessel is out of the harbor—unless confinement to one's cabin is imperative—the more fresh air one can obtain the better. Here the deck chair plays an important rôle, and relaxation may alternate with short periods of walking. In addition, one should keep the eyes fixed upon the horizon rather than the prow of the ship or nearby objects.

A snug abdominal binder—which compresses the organs below the diaphragm and squeezes a generous amount of blood out of them—may prove an open sesame to a comfortable trip.

The very mention of food is horrifying to many. Strangely enough, sugar is helpful, as the great majority will find themselves able to digest this nutriment and thus maintain the glucose level within the blood at normal. The rule, "eat sparingly for the first twenty-four hours," is a safe one. Thereafter, appetite may prove a safe guide. But heavy meals with little exercise may precipitate an attack even on the third or fourth day.

About as many cures have been attributed to ginger ale as to champagne and there is nothing to be gained by making a beeline for the bar. Even plain carbonated water may be helpful. There is no doubt that mental suggestion influences the behavior of the gastric pouch. If the emotions are as quiet as a mill pond, a pleasant and enjoyable crossing is in prospect.

BACKACHE.

R. L. H. writes: Because of backaches I have had X-rays taken of teeth and spine, pelvic examinations, urinalyses, etc. Nothing has been found. I suffer most when I sit for any length of time. Is there anything else that can be investigated?

REPLY.

This may be due to a strain of the sacroiliac joints. A skilled orthopedic surgeon is suggested. Frequently a support known as a sacroiliac belt will relieve all symptoms.

AVOID ICE COLD DRINKS.

E. D. writes: Of what importance are liquids in the diet of a person suffering from gall bladder trouble? Should they be taken before meals? Are cold drinks harmful?

REPLY.

Plenty of fluid early in the morning before breakfast will aid elimination. During the balance of the day, thirst is a safe guide—before or after meals. Ice cold fluids should not be used under any circumstances.

LABOR RACKETEERS.

Danville, Ill., June 21.—As one who for thirty-five years has worked for a living and never been discharged by an employer for not doing what was expected of me, I wish to protest against the vultures in human form who call themselves organizers or business agents. In the last five years I have been compelled against my will to become a member of three different groups in order to be retained by the employer at the work I was doing. In one instance they were still deducting $5 a week as a membership fee when the job was completed.

Experience has taught me that at least 50 per cent of men who belong to unions do not work for the interest of the employer, but on the other hand take every unfair advantage that presents itself and expect the union to protect them in filching the employer and the public.

I know that in writing this that I am voicing the sentiments of all true Americans, that this is not a free country when any group can dictate how many persons shall be assigned to a job and that they must belong to some union and contribute a part of their wages to support these racketeers. AMERICAN.

STATES THE ALIENS' CASE.

Chicago, June 21.—As a social worker, I am convinced that every alien residing in the United States wants to become naturalized, and would but for the fees and expenses, from $30 to $50, which either he doesn't possess or would have to starve to pay. There may be fees of $20, several calls by the applicant, three calls by witnesses, two sets of different period photographs, study to know things which the average citizen doesn't know, etc. That the WPA alien law is based on prejudice and class hatred is indicated by the fact that it also denies to every alien the time allowance required for him by law to obtain his naturalization, before his ineligibility to WPA employment becomes effective.

ELIZABETH E. BEHRENS.

BOOSTING "THE GREAT HERO."

Rock Island, Ill., June 19.—Senator Lucas of Illinois, in trying to boost the great hero for a third term, made the statement that you do not want the 10 cent corn of Hoover's time again. Why don't some of these amateurs refer to the Grover Clevaland times when millions of bushels of corn were burned because corn did not bring anything on the market? You could not trade a bushel of corn for a package of Duke's Mixture or a loaf of bread. Just the same old political trick; forget the blunders of the Democratic party whenever they have been in power. The blunders of the Democrats during Wilson's terms are still fresh on our minds, but the blunders under the New Deal stand out above it all. E. C. BURKE.

MME. PERKINS' NEW CAR.

Chicago, June 22.—I have read in THE TRIBUNE this morning that President Roosevelt has requested congress to authorize the expenditure of $1,800 on a new car for Secretary of Labor Perkins, the car previously used by the secretary having been damaged in a fire. The President should increase the amount of his request about $15 so that the new car will be covered with a fire insurance policy. Then if the new car is also damaged or destroyed by fire the taxpayers will not be called upon to furnish another car. I. A. G.

A MASTER OF ELOQUENCE.

Chicago, June 22.—In your Eloquence series for the Sunday paper I trust you won't forget that old master of human speech, Col. Robert G. Ingersoll. His classics on life, "The Volunteer Soldier" [here in the Palmer House at the reunion of the army of Tennessee]. His famous speeches on liberty, the flag, and Decoration day messages at New York City and Indianapolis, and his brother's grave, are such supreme orations that Demosthenes was a poor second.

GEORGE F. GOODRICH.

OUR PRESIDENTIAL CORNER.

Chicago, June 22.—Amid the wrangling over renaming Crawford avenue, let me note that Chicago has the distinction of possessing the only presidential corner in the United States. I refer to the corner where Lincoln, Cleveland, and Garfield avenues converge on the near north side.

Now those smart young whippersnappers have changed Cleveland to Dickens. No doubt Dickens is entitled to have a street named for him, but why pick on our ex-President Cleveland, especially when it wrecks our own presidential corner—internationally known?

THOSE CULTURAL PROJECTS.

Chicago, June 19.—I wish a cry as loud as the crack of doom from all the intelligent people in America might rise in protest at the abolition of the WPA cultural projects! Now the need of fostering the talent that through depression years must lie dormant—the need for keeping artistically trained and competent people out of ditch digging for a living—this need which was filled, is to be canceled.

How many of us have enjoyed the wonderful Illinois Symphony concerts, the American Concert orchestra's performances, and the lovely chamber concerts? Who in Chicago did not swell with pride at the success of the Swing Mikado? I have seen students in the Chicago public junior colleges react—for the first time—to a painting hung in one of the WPA art exhibits in these schools.

The federal artists stood firmly on their own feet, needing only a discriminating audience to prove their worth.

GENEVIEVE M. ARMBRUSTER.

WOULD REFORM GRAND JURIES.

Freeport, Ill., June 20.—Can we not, in the spirit of democracy so often referred to, revamp our grand jury system and save the taxpayers money by securing indictments based only on facts? Perhaps few know that under the present system the person the government seeks to indict is not allowed to be present or even represented in the grand jury room.

In many instances, it seems, our grand juries blindly follow the advice of the district attorney. Thus his power can be used to punish his enemies and reward his friends, thereby climbing to political heights over the ruined reputations of those he persecutes and prosecutes—while the gullible voter is highly impressed with this horn blowing "crusader."

ARTHUR W. SCOTT.

FIRST DUTY OF CONGRESS.

Kalamazoo, Mich., June 19.—Now is the time for congress to take back the powers granted the President during the crisis instead of granting him more powers, as proposed in the Pittman and Bloom administration neutrality bill.

Just one step further toward giving in to this administration and its cracked brain radicals and congress will witness a gathering of minute men in this country that will do the housecleaning which congress has failed to do.

Honest neutrality is desired by the people. We want no foreign entanglements with any country and we refuse to fight for or help any other nation in war. We are for the United States only.

SUIT FOR DAMAGES.

Chicago, June 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Two years ago my husband's car hit another car and destroyed the other car, also caused bad injuries to the woman who was riding in the other car. She got judgment against my husband. We own our house with a $900 mortgage and we get $50 monthly rent. My husband's salary is $35 per week and we own our furniture.

2. How about the rent money?
3. How about our furniture?
4. Other property? M. A.

1. Yes. As to real estate you have a homestead exemption of $1,000 worth; as to personal property $400; and as to wages $20 per week.
2. The above mentioned $1,000 worth would be based on the assumption that you are occupying the property as a home. It is not clear what you mean by the reference to rent money. In general, there would be no exemption to income you are receiving from such a source.
3. The exemption is $400 worth.
4. You should have employed an attorney to defend the personal injury suit and the attorney so employed would be in a better position to advise you than we are.

JOINT PROPERTY.

Chicago, June 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My mother and I own two homes, both of which are in our names as joint tenants. I am the only child. My father is dead.

1. If my mother dies does the clause [joint tenants] make me owner without probate?
2. If I marry does my husband acquire any share of it either before or after mother's death?
3. I want to remain sole owner of this property with right to sell without my husband's signature [if I marry].
4. Would it be safer to strike out my name entirely making my mother sole owner and then have her will the property to me by legal will? D. M.

1. Yes.
2. Clearly his rights would be no greater than yours in the sense that if you died before the other joint tenant neither your estate nor your husband would take anything, but if you were the survivor then the property would be yours just like any of your other property and he would have the usual dower interest.
3. We advise you to employ an attorney to effect this purpose. Several matters would call for discussion.
4. Striking out your name in the present deed would not deprive you of the one-half which you now own.

WIFE NO. 1 HEARS NO. 2 IN HER SUIT INVOLVING NO. 3

Mrs. Alma Alderman Denies Charge.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 23.—(AP)—While wife No. 1 looked on, Mrs. Alma Alderman, wife No. 2 of Myrl Alderman, denied heatedly today at the trial of her $150,000 love suit against wife No. 3, Torch Singer Ruth Etting, that she ever lived with Alderman before she married him.

The blonde witness, whose marriage ended in divorce from Alderman, resumed her testimony after Superior Judge Samuel R. Blake denied a motion of attorneys for Miss Etting for dismissal of the suit.

Denies Living with Alderman.

"Isn't it a fact that for a period of ten months prior to your marriage to Mr. Alderman you lived with him as his wife?" Miss Etting's attorney asked.

"I did not," Mrs. Alderman replied. "I lived with my father and mother in Highland Park."

She testified she met Alderman in February, 1934, and they had gone out on many occasions together. She denied she knew he then was married to his first wife, Mrs. Helen Warne.

"He told me he was divorced," Mrs. Alderman said.

Musician Tells of Quarrels.

Edward L. Stockbridge, a musician, testified concerning quarrels between the Aldermans early in their marriage. He quoted Alderman as saying he didn't know why he married.

Stockbridge quoted Alma Alderman as complaining: "We don't seem to get along on anything. We argue all the time."

George Lowery, employé at Alderman's frog farm, said when he and Miss Etting visited there they occupied separate sleeping quarters.

CHICAGOAN SEES MAN HE THINKS IS SLAYER OLSON

A Chicagoan, driving home from Wisconsin late yesterday, reported to police on his arrival that he saw a man he suspects was Ray Olson, wanted for the slaying of two deputies in northern Wisconsin. The Chicagoan is Grey Scott, 4860 North Kilbourn avenue, a traveling representative.

Just south of Milwaukee, in highway 41, he said, he noticed a red sedan ahead of him. The driver wore working clothes and had a heavy blond beard. He seemed nervous. Every time Scott tried to pass him the man put on a burst of speed and kept ahead.

The man finally turned into a road leading to Burlington, Wis. Scott did not suspect the man might have been Olson until he saw a newspaper account mentioning that Olson was using a red car. Chicago police transmitted Scott's information to Burlington authorities.

TAVERN OPERATOR ROBBED.

John Coasi, operator of a tavern at 448 North Franklin street, was held up yesterday by three armed men and robbed of $274 while he was at Illinois street and Hubbard avenue, returning from a bank.

POLICE CHIEF SHOT, HIS FORMER WIFE IS KILLED IN QUARREL

Flint, Mich., June 23.—(AP)—A domestic quarrel brought death to a woman tonight and bullet wounds which may prove fatal to her police chief former husband, Sherif Thomas W. Wolcott reported.

The dead woman was Mrs. Irene Wright, 30 years old, shot at the home of a sister in Clio. Sherif Wolcott said she was killed by Charles Wright, 33, Clio police chief. Wright was brought to a Flint hospital and was not expected to survive.

There were conflicting reports as to how Wright was wounded. The sherif said members of the family reported that Wright shot himself after killing the woman who divorced him a month ago. A deputy sherif said Wright told him Mrs. Wright grabbed his gun, shot him, and then he got the weapon and shot her and himself.

FALLS FROM BOAT AND DROWNS.

George L. Rolf, 48 years old, 6000 South Whipple street, was drowned yesterday when he fell from a boat while fishing in Fox lake, in Lake county. The body was recovered in ten feet of water.

11 BLUE ISLAND TEACHERS QUIT POSTS THIS FALL

Eleven out of forty-six teachers at the Blue Island Community High school have notified Supt. H. L. Richards that they will not return to their teaching posts in the fall. They based their action, they said, on what they considered the "precarious financial condition" of the school.

The school was forced to close for several weeks last spring because of lack of funds. It reopened in time to complete the school year, which ended yesterday.

Two Striped, Streamlined Antelopes Arrive at Zoo

Two streamlined antelopes have been received by Brookfield zoo. They are sitatungas, a swamp variety of antelope, and have decorative transverse stripes on their bodies. They also have long, narrow, and cloven hoofs which enable them to speed over the soft mud of their habitat. They are the only pair of this species owned by a zoo in this county, Director Edward H. Bean said.

FIND MOLECULE SHAPE MAKES A TOMATO RED

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Physics and chemistry, which deal fundamentally with the same centers of energy, the atom and the molecule, united yesterday at the University of Chicago to reach a better explanation of the statistical and visible part of the universe.

There may seem to be no relation between the nature of cosmic rays and why tomatoes are red. But when it is known that the amount of color in organic matter depends upon the shape of its molecules the relation comes closer.

Symposium on Cosmic Rays.

A symposium on liquids and polyatomic molecules which opened yesterday at the university will combine next Tuesday with the annual symposium of the university on cosmic rays. The cosmic ray meeting will bring together many great physicists, including five Nobel prize winners. These are Arthur H. Compton, Victor H. Hess, discoverer of the rays, Werner Karl Heisenberg of the University of Leipzig, and Robert A. Millikan and Carl D. Anderson of the California Institute of Technology.

Dr. Heisenberg is the physicist who in 1927 announced the principle of indeterminacy in nature, which holds that there are certain behaviors in the electronic field forever beyond the ken of man, and which seems to upset the old cause and effect determinism. The speculation on this theory has invaded the philosophical field, Dr. Compton, for instance, finding in it some analogy with free will. Man, it has been said, only became a free agent after this 1927 dictum.

Molecule's Relation to Color.

Dr. Robert S. Mullikan, University of Chicago physicist, reported results of research into the shape of the molecule and its relation to color. He has worked out formulas revealing that certain kinds of long molecules produce colors of tomatoes, carrots, dandelions, and buttercups. These produce more visible color. When the molecules are curled, or when the long and the curled are mixed, the intensity of the color is reduced. Dr. Mullikan also found that prototypes of molecules of the dye type also obey this same principle and hence explain the color power of dyes.

"If enough scientists work long enough," he said, "we should be able to calculate correctly all sorts of properties and be able to do a great deal in explaining fundamentally the behavior of matter generally. We should be able to explain elasticity and ductility of metals, for example.

Work in Field of Dyes.

"In the field of dyes, beyond the visible spectrum, we might determine more effectively, for example, what dyes should be used to make photographic plates sensitive to infra-red rays."

The theory of color of organic substances was also discussed by Dr. Linus Pauling of the California Institute of Technology.

JUDGES SHORTEN COURT VACATION BY TWO WEEKS

Judges of the Circuit and Superior courts, at their annual meeting yesterday, decided to start the summer recess of the courts on July 1 instead of July 5, as has been customary. A full schedule will be resumed Sept. 5, two weeks earlier than under the old system.

The change had been recommended by the Chicago Bar association. A skeleton staff of judges will be on duty through July and August to handle emergency matters.

Judges were assigned to special branches at yesterday's meeting. In the Superior court Judges Oscar F. Nelson and John F. Bolton are to hear divorces. Appointed to the chancery division are Judges Charles A. Williams, Robert C. O'Connell, John J. Lupe, and Donald S. McKinlay. Judge Grover C. Niemeyer continues as chief justice and Judges James Fardy, Joseph Graber, William J. Lindsay and John Sbarbaro are to serve in the Criminal court.

Judge Cornelius J. Harrington was chosen chief justice of the Circuit court and was assigned to hear divorces. Judge Frank Bicek is to continue in the Juvenile court. Appointed to the chancery division are Judges William V. Brothers, Robert Jerome Dunne, Philip J. Finnegan and George Fred Rush. It was recommended that Judge John Prystalski be made chief justice of the Criminal court. Two others to serve in that court will be chosen later.

SUES OVER DEATH OF GIRL SLAIN IN MELON QUARREL

A suit for $10,000 damages, the limit under the law, was filed in Superior court yesterday by William Campbell, 1228 South Mason avenue, Berwyn, for the death of his daughter, Muriel, 18 years old, shot to death in a fruit store on May 30. Campbell is administrator of the girl's estate. The suit, filed by Attorney Alex Meyerovitz, names Athon Papas, the clerk-watchman who shot the girl in a dispute over a smashed watermelon, and his employer, Peter M. Pappas, owner of the store at 5624 North avenue, as defendants. Papas is in jail awaiting trial next Monday for the slaying.

Bury Dr. Grace Abbott; Tribute from Roosevelt

Grand Island, Neb., June 23.—(AP)—President Roosevelt expressed "sincere sorrow" today at the death of Dr. Grace Abbott, 60, social worker and pioneer in child welfare legislation, who died Monday in Chicago. In a telegram to relatives attending funeral services for Dr. Abbott here today, the President described the former head of the United States children's bureau as a great humanitarian.

5,000 VETERANS OF 33D DIVISION CONVENE TODAY

Lay Wreath Tomorrow on Leader's Grave.

Five thousand members of the 33d Division War Veterans' association will meet here today and tomorrow for their 13th annual convention.

Early arrivals held an executive meeting and get-together last night in the Morrison hotel. Registration will begin in the hotel at 9 a. m. today. The business session will be disposed of at 2 p. m. There will be a dinner for the veterans and their wives at 7 p. m., followed by a midnight entertainment.

Writer Will Speak.

Speakers at the dinner will be Junius Wood, former war correspondent, who recently returned from Germany, and Edward Hayes, former national commander of the American Legion. Wood will talk on "Flaming Germany."

At 10:30 a. m. tomorrow the veterans will lay a wreath on the grave of Maj. Gen. George Bell in Rosehill cemetery. Gen. Bell was the wartime commander of the 33d. Memorial services for the division's dead will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Mural room at the Morrison hotel. Oscar Carlstrom, former attorney general, will talk. The convention will end tomorrow night.

War Babies to Welcome Vets.

The veterans will be welcomed to Chicago by a committee composed of "war babies" and Gold Star mothers. Each state in the country is expected to be represented at the convention, although approximately 60 per cent of the association's members live in Cook county. Arrivals from Texas, California, and Washington, D. C., already were reported last night.

Raymond L. Keegan is president of the association. Others helping with convention plans are Harry A. Daly, general chairman and first vice president of the association, and Joseph A. Jaworski and Col. Robert M. Wiglesworth, co-chairmen.

TWO MORAN AIDS SENTENCED FOR COUNTERFEITING

Daniel Keller, alias Driscoll, 39 years old, and Robert Sexton, alias Sloan, 33, were sentenced yesterday to nine months each in the county jail by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in Felony court. They pleaded guilty to charges of passing a counterfeit American Express company traveler's check for $50.

The men were connected with the George [Bugs] Moran gang which was broken up last year as it was preparing to circulate $62,000 in counterfeit checks. Moran and Frank Parker, former airplane bootlegger, were sentenced to a year in prison and fined $2,000 each on charges of conspiracy to counterfeit the checks. Moran is at liberty on a $35,000 bond, and Parker is serving a two year sentence in Leavenworth penitentiary on a federal counterfeiting charge.

WILLIAM J. COOK LEAVES $550,000 TO AID SCHOLARS

Most of the estimated $550,000 estate of William J. Cook, for whose grandfather Cook county was named, was left to provide university scholarships for worthy and needy boys, his will revealed yesterday. John F. Keeley, assistant to Probate Judge John F. O'Connell, admitted the document, Mr. Cook, a retired coal merchant and banker, died June 7 in his home at 136 Chestnut street, Winnetka, at the age of 76.

Under the will, the scholarship recipients must be graduates of high schools in Cook county. The Chicago Community fund is named to make the selections and manage the trust. The Northern Trust company and a friend, H. T. Griswold, 1232 Ridge avenue, Evanston, are named co-executors.

GEORGE HEGNEY, RESIDENT OF CITY 50 YEARS, DIES

George B. Hegney, a resident in Chicago for more than fifty years, died yesterday. He was 75 years old. Mr. Hegney came to this city as a young man and for many years was the local route agent for the Wells-Fargo Express company. In recent years he was associated with the A. B. Leach brokerage house. He retired from business in 1932. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Connelly, three grandchildren, and two nieces, Mrs. Edward Connor and Miss Rose G. Brady, an employé of THE TRIBUNE, with whom he lived at 4416 West End avenue, and a nephew, William J. Brady. Funeral services will be conducted at 9 a. m. Monday in St. Mel's Roman Catholic church. Burial will be in Mount Carmel cemetery.

M'NUTT ARRIVES IN CALIFORNIA; MUM ON POLITICS

San Francisco, Cal., June 23.—[Special.]—Paul V. McNutt, United States high commissioner to the Philippines, arrived here today from the orient. He was accompanied by his wife and daughter. They are scheduled to entrain for Chicago Monday afternoon.

McNutt had nothing to say about politics, his probable successor or the situation in China and Japan. Not until he has conferred with President Roosevelt, reported on his office and turned in the resignation he carries with him will he have any comment on those several subjects, he indicated.

He was outspoken only on the matter of Philippine independence, which he criticized as a mistake. He disagreed with those who charge the Philippine market is not worth the military expense of protection.

GEORGE PRATT, 91, ADVENTURER IN WILD WEST, DIES

George A. Pratt, 91 years old, whose name in his native town of Wayne, Ill., was synonymous with wild west adventure, died yesterday in the Du Page county home near Wheaton. He will be buried today in the Little Woods cemetery, the burial place of three generations of his family.

Gold prospector, trapper, Indian agent, and Canadian "mounty," Pratt knew the west from Colorado to Alaska. He said that "Wild Bill" Hickok taught him to shoot. He rode with "Buffalo Bill" Cody in the Black hills, and was a scout for Gen. George Custer.

A few years ago he returned to Wayne to be near his brother, "Farmer" Frank, who died last year, and his nephews, George and Walter Pratt.

Steeplejack Plunges 150 Feet to His Death

Bloomington, Ill., June 23.—(AP)—Stanley Simmons, 46 years old, a steeplejack, fell 150 feet to his death today. The scaffolding slipped while he was repairing the city waterworks smokestack. Simmons was a native of Syracuse, N. Y.

RITES TO BE MONDAY FOR J. L. DEVEREUX, POLICE LIEUTENANT

Funeral services will be conducted Monday for Lieut. James L. Devereux of the Chicago avenue station, former chief of the county highway police, who died Thursday in Ironwood, Mich. The services will be from the chapel at 4050 Harrison street to Our Lady of Sorrows church, 3112 Jackson boulevard. Burial will be in Mount Carmel cemetery.

Lieut. J. L. Devereux.

Lieut. Devereux was 45 years old and lived at 3361 Adams street. He had been a member of the Chicago police force since 1923. In 1927 he obtained a leave and was appointed chief of the county highway police. He returned to the police department in 1929. Lieut. Devereux served twenty months in France during the world war and was a former commander of the Police post of the American Legion.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Catherine Sutton Devereux, and a sister, Miss Frances Devereux, who lived with him, and two other sisters.

HUSBAND KILLED AS WIFE WAITS OUTSIDE PLANT

Mrs. Roy Mattix drove to the Du Pont-Grasselli Chemical company plant at 5215 Kennedy avenue, East Chicago, last night to take her husband home from work. The Mattix home is at 6631 Madison street, Hammond.

While waiting, Mrs. Mattix, mother of three children, saw police and fire inhalator squads drive up. She inquired about the excitement and was told an employé had been killed touching a 440 volt wire. Not long afterward she learned that the victim was her husband, Roy Mattix, 42 years old, an electrician.

Two Children Smothered to Death in Refrigerator

Des Moines, Ia., June 23.—(AP)—Two children suffocated today in an old-fashioned ice box at their home here. Their mother, Mrs. Thelma Roberts, 30 years old, found their bodies when she came home from work. The children were James Roberts, 9, and his sister Lavina, 8. Police advanced the theory that the children had removed food and shelves from the refrigerator and climbed in. There was no ice in the box.

TOWNSEND PLAN DELEGATES HEAR ADDRESS BY NYE

Indianapolis, Ind., June 23.—(AP)—Elderly men and women, gathered here from throughout the nation to whoop it up for Dr. Francis E. Townsend's pension plan, heard more speechmaking today and sang of "streamlined motors" and "chicken dumplin's when it [the pension] comes."

Somewhat worn by an Indiana heat wave, delegates to the fourth national convention of Townsend clubs still had plenty of cheers for the day's speakers, among whom was Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.].

One speaker drew something besides cheers. Boos and loud cries of "throw him out" came from the rear of the big convention hall as Clarence A. Jackson, director of Indiana gross income tax collections, said a "terrific administrative expense" would be involved in the Townsend plan.

WARN CHILDREN: FIREWORKS MAY MEAN BLINDNESS

More than half of the accidents to eyes of children are caused by weapons and fireworks. This fact was used yesterday by the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness to strengthen a warning against letting youngsters set off firecrackers.

The society has been conducting a campaign for legislation to forbid the sale of fireworks, which is now permitted between June 27 and July 4 in many villages and in rural areas.

Superintendent of Schools William H. Johnson has urged pupils to avoid the use of such dangerous playthings. He suggested that they refuse to watch displays of fireworks unless they are set off by competent adults.

OBITUARIES

Miss Minnie E. Howe.

Miss Minnie E. Howe, director of nursing and principal of the School of Nursing of the Children's Memorial hospital for the last ten years, died yesterday in Presbyterian hospital.

Miss Howe was a graduate of the Nebraska Methodist Episcopal School of Nursing in Omaha, Neb. She was a member of the board of the First District of Illinois State Nurses' association, secretary of the Illinois State League of Nursing Education, chairman of the committee on care of the child of the National League of Nursing Education, and Illinois state chairman of the nursing service of the American Red Cross. She is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Howard Gittinger, Baton Rouge, La.; Mrs. George Howe, Chicago, and Mrs. Elsie Howe Swenson of Omaha.

Memorial services for Miss Howe will be conducted at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the auditorium of the Children's Memorial hospital nurses' home, 710 Fullerton avenue. Burial will be Monday in Murray, Ia.

Edward A. Kiessling.

Edward A. Kiessling, a world war veteran and former County court employé, died last night in the Hines hospital after a long illness. He was 47 years old, a native Chicagoan, and lived at 6908 Cornell avenue. Mr. Kiessling was active in Republican politics. He is survived by five brothers and three sisters. They are Christian G. Kiessling, vice president of the Cook County Civil Service Employés' association; George J., William A., Robert W., and Frank A., the latter of Waterloo, Ia.; Mrs. F. R. Pearson, Mrs. Jennie Coyle, and Miss Kathleen Kiessling. Services will be conducted in the home at 2 p. m. Monday. Burial will be in Mount Hope cemetery.

Mrs. Ida Breitling.

Mrs. Ida Breitling, 67 years old, suffered a heart attack and died yesterday in the North Western station as she was about to leave on a pleasure trip for the west. Her son-in-law and her daughter, with whom she lived, Mr. and Mrs. F. X. Milnamow, 588 Mitchell avenue, Elmhurst, had accompanied her to the train. Funeral services for Mrs. Breitling will be conducted at 2 p. m. Monday in the chapel at 134 South York street, Elmhurst, and burial will be in Elm Lawn cemetery.

Shirley H. Olympius.

Funeral services for Shirley H. Olympius, formerly advertising representative of the Hearst newspapers, will be conducted at 2701 Clark street at 3 p. m. today. Mr. Olympius, who was 57 years old, died Thursday after a long illness. He had resigned from the advertising department of the Chicago Herald and Examiner last January because of ill health. Surviving is his widow, Mrs. Blanche Olympius.

Howard C. Bradley.

Howard C. Bradley, a wholesale representative for the Packard Motor Car company of Chicago, died yesterday of a heart attack in Highland Park, Mich. With him were his wife, Edna, and their son, Howard Jr. They had gone to the lake resort for the summer. Mr. Bradley was 50 years old and had been connected with the motor business for many years. He lived at 4446 North Winchester avenue.

Janne Mattson Sjodahl.

Salt Lake City, Utah, June 23.—(AP)—Janne Mattson Sjodahl, 85 years old, Swedish immigrant boy who became one of the best known writers of the Mormon church, died today. He was the father-in-law of Senator William H. King of Utah and a former editor of the Deseret News.

James M. Kent.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, June 23.—Supreme Court Justice James M. Kent, 67 years old, died here today. Justice Kent was recognized as one of the most competent jurists ever to sit in the Supreme court of Newfoundland.

Francis A. Scott.

Belleville, Ill., June 23.—(AP)—Francis A. Scott, 82 years old, for thirty-five years a live stock judge at state fairs and national exhibits, died of heart disease today at his home here.

LEITER HEIRS WIN RIGHT TO LIVE IN CITIES OF CHOICE

The three grandsons of the late Mrs. Levi Z. Leiter, wife of one of Chicago's pioneers, can live anywhere they wish now without losing an inheritance totaling about half a million dollars.

The three, Thomas Leiter of Washington, Cecil John Howard of London, and Colin L. Campbell of Goleta, Cal., have been forced to spend at least six months of each year in Chicago or forfeit their trust funds.

Judge Charles Williams in Superior court yesterday followed the recommendation of Master in Chancery John J. Kelly and set aside the trusts, which now will be distributed. Denis E. Sullivan Jr., representing the grandsons, said this action would relieve the grandsons of the necessity of living in Chicago half of each year. Mrs. Leiter, who died in 1913, had sought to insure a close watch on large real estate holdings in the city through her residence provision. Now, however, most of the estate is in stocks and bonds.

Social Circles Wish for Fair Weather Today

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE weather of this last Saturday in June is of great moment to more than the Lake Forest Horse Show association, for here are a dozen brides who remember the old superstition "happy is the bride the sun shines on."

Only one wedding is planned to take place outdoors, that of Miss Phoebe Massey and George W. Ryerson, which will be solemnized high on a bluff overlooking Lake Michigan at the Winnetka home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ayres Boal. Several receptions, however, have been planned as al fresco ones, but even if a ceremony and the reception are to take place indoors, it is not pleasant for a bridal couple, or guests, to be rained upon.

More than brides and horsemen are hoping that Chicago has had its quota of rainfall for this week, for several dancing parties are planned for outdoors.

Saddle and Cycle To Hold Terrace Party.

"Unless it pours there'll be lanterns and violins out of doors" wrote Edwin M. Ashcraft III. in the rhymed announcements of the Saddle and Cycle club's first party on the new terrace. He also wrote "For that summ'ry effect on the place at night we suggest that gentlemen's coats be white, and light [preferably white] evening dresses" so if tonight is fair, the dinner-dance should be a picturesque one.

Some of those who have reservations for the affair are Mr. and Mrs. Nelson L. Barner, who will have a table for 20; the Henry McIntyres, who will have 28 in their party; the Bowman C. Lingles, whose party will number 10; the Byron S. Harveys, who have invited about 30 to be with them; the Theodore S. Garys, whose table will be set for 26; the Marshall Campsells, who will have 10 guests; the Arthur Hollomans, whose party will number 8, and the Robert Harveys, who will have a party of 12. There will be a large Dutch treat party, too.

Hold Horse Show Ball At Onwentsia Tonight.

The cocktail party Albert B. Dick, president of the Lake Forest Horse show association, and Mrs. Dick are giving this evening at Applegate, their home, is planned as a garden affair. Tonight there will be the horse show ball at the Owentsia club, with a dinner for 300 preceding it. Dining and dancing both will be outdoors, weather permitting.

Edward A. Cudahy Jr. is having his annual Field day at his farm in Aurora today. The Columbus Healys, who live on the Cudahy property on Sugar Grove turnpike, will assist Mr. and Mrs. Cudahy in playing hosts to the three or four thousand farmers who will visit the farm to see the Belgian horses and to have luncheon, consisting mainly of hot dogs and coffee.

Paul Rowans Are Parents of Daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rowan [Lydia Swift] became the parents of a daughter, their first child, yesterday at the Passavant hospital. The baby has been named Robin. Mrs. Alden B. Swift is the infant's maternal grandmother. Mr. and Mrs. Rowan live in Lake Forest.

Several Weddings Take Place Today.

It is fortunate for the Winnetkans who are friends of the Louis H. G. Bouscarens and of the George B. Masseys that two weddings today are at different hours. Heri V. Bouscaren, the Bouscarens' son, will take Miss Katherine McNulty as his bride. Miss Phoebe Massey, the Massey's daughter, will become the bride of George W. Ryerson.

There will be plenty of time for the guests at the Bouscaren-McNulty wedding at noon in Our Lady of Mount Carmel church, Chicago, to re-

Mrs. Hugh McBirney Johnston is among the exhibitors at the Lake Forest Horse show. The final performances of the four-day show will be held this morning and this afternoon.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

The little compressed disks which swell into full sized washcloths when immersed in water always strike us as being faintly Victorian. We don't know why, exactly. But they do remind us of such rather old-fashioned niceties as the powder leaves and soap leaves that our fastidious grandmothers carried in their capacious pocketbooks.

But unlike a lot of Victorian gadgets these little sponges are completely practical for the traveler. A few packages of them take up a minimum of space and are far superior to the clammy washcloth that so unkindly communicates its dampness to your well pressed clothes. They're quite inexpensive, sanitary, soft and easily disposable.

These are enjoying renewed popularity this summer, when the world, the wife and the kids all seem to be taking to the road.

The newest wrinkle in gloves was created not to conceal the nails but to dramatize them. The maker of one of the best nail polishes has worked it all out. There are new old-fashioned gloves of lacy net, with a tiny nosegay of flowers to match the polish that peeps through at the finger tips, and some show-off gloves that reveal the nails entirely. These last are of white doeskin, perforated, with fingers cut off below the nail tip. For evening, she has introduced gloves in soft kid, fingerless, in the colors of three of her prettiest polishes.

The polishes are extremely pretty, in shades that are soft rather than strong. The little nosegays to match —for neck or wrists—are nice touches to picturesque get-ups.

Good Morning!

All of the folks in the story are such awfully nize pipple! She lady IS a lady—not a snob. The prize fighter's a gentleman, unlearned but fine. The lady's father is a genuine, human guy. The fighter's manager is another such, minus the polish, and the small son, who becomes such an important factor in the lives of Lady Eleanor and Fighter King Cole, is one great little person!

With such strings to pull—in the hands of a scenario writer and a director who are masters of manipulation, what could a movie be but a winner?

It's a rare picture these days that hasn't its psychological slant, and "Invitation to Happiness" deals with both brawn and brain, managing to be intelligent on both counts.

Eleanor Wayne is the daughter of the man who becomes King Cole's patron. The moment her eyes land on him, she knows he's her man. . . . She wants him and she gets him—AND she keeps him. The "keeping" resolves itself into an absorbing domestic drama. For the son who, to be trite, comes to bless the union, takes an active dislike to the father he feels fails to make his adored mother happy. . . .

And now King must fight his heart out in more ways than one—to win his boy's respect and love and find his real place in his wife's life. . . .

Sounds complicated? IS—a little. But situations of the sort have a way of being like that—and it takes nice people to straighten out the kinks. . . .

Irene Dunne, though overdoing the comedy stuff a mite—yes, the piece has its laughs—gives, in the main, a sincere and appealing performance, looking perfectly beautiful in coiffure and clothes that are off her beaten track. . . . Fred MacMurray is magnificent! Can HE take it! He CAN!

Charlie Ruggles does a serious character rôle with amazing adroitness and William Collier Sr. is expert and lovable as Wayne.

You'll be tremendously impressed by the craftsmanlike performance of young Billy Cook. What splendid child actors they ARE turning out these days!

I suppose the yarn has its weak spots—in fact I know it has. But they'll never bother you. They didn't me.

Looking at Hollywood by Ed Sullivan

Standouts

Hollywood, Cal., June 23.—In Jack Benny's "Man About Town" there is a bit of business which answers the query: "Whatever became of vaudeville?"

Edward Arnold, as the irate husband, rushes to the theater where Benny's show is playing, intent on shooting him down. Arnold is accompanied by another irate husband, so all avenues of escape are cut off. Arnold covers one side of the stage, the other husband blocks the other side.

To get away from them Benny hastily dons the long tights of an acrobatic actor and goes out on the stage with the group of muscle men. As the acrobats fly through the air in their various formations Jack wanders in and out of the act completely bewildered. It is an old vaudeville routine, this one, but Director Mark Sandrich has predicated it upon such a logical situation that it is a showstopper. Comedy is best when it stems from a situation sensibly arrived at.

In "Daughters Courageous" the Lane sisters and Gale Page retire to the dressing room to trade some confidences about their father, who has returned after a twenty year absence. What makes the scene a standout is the manner in which Mike Curtiz staged the dialog, the girls talking in snatches as they powder their noses.

This is the way that conversations really are carried on and Curtiz, in holding the mirror up to life, rates a bow.

Greater emotional wallop is packed in the scene in which Fay Bainter tells Claude Rains why he must go away again, to protect the future of his children.

In "Young Mr. Lincoln" the standout scene to this reporter is offered by Alice Brady, refusing in the witness chair to tell which of her sons stabbed the bully to death. Tears gush to her eyes and she opens her mouth to speak, but no words issue from it.

The unsaid things become more audible and compelling than any speech that could have been written. It is one of those dramatic moments which sweep you out of the theater and give you a ringside seat at life itself.

Lionel Barrymore, as the veteran doctor in "Young Dr. Kildare," supplies a sock scene when he explains to Lew Ayres, the younger doctor, that the art of healing is not founded on the dissection of guinea pigs.

"Look into a patient's heart and mind and find out what ails him," thunders Barrymore. "Maybe it's a blonde in the chorus of a show or a stack of unpaid bills that really is the disease from which he's suffering."

At the preview, the Hollywood audience broke into applause, either because they enjoyed the scene mightily or because there are a lot of locals with unpaid bills or unresponsive blondes.

Ann Sothern enlivens "Maisie" with a scene that rings true, a scene that stage people will relish most, perhaps. Driving along in the station wagon with Ian Hunter, Miss Sothern, as a former strip-tease performer, is telling him about an act to which she belonged in Kansas City.

She recalls it in glowing terms, dwelling on the costumes and the applause which it won from critical audiences. A few minutes later she says suddenly: "I guess it was a pretty lousy act at that." Nostalgia had been K. O.'d by realism.

Mischa Auer and Bing Crosby team brilliantly in "East Side of Heaven," but the comedy scene that was a standout arrived when Crosby returned home and learned from Auer that a detective had been at the flat looking for the baby.

"What did you do with the baby?" asked Crosby. A wail from the direction of the bathroom answered him. He swung open the door and found the baby hanging on it, a laundry bag serving as a breeches buoy. Auer spread his hands apologetically as the baby dangled in midair. Crosby glared at him. The baby chortled. Director Dave Butler never did a better scene.

"Love Affair," thanks to Director Leo McCarey, was a series of sharply etched scenes, such as the one when the little girl with the cold returns to Irene Dunne's bed and whispers hoarsely: "Merry Christmas."

Another scene that was a standout, from the standpoint of believability, was that on the parapet walk of the Empire State building, where Charles Boyer is waiting for her. As each elevator arrives at the top floor Boyer starts forward and then retreats in disappointment. He shakes his head as the operator asks: "Going down?"

It happens five or six times, each time the elevator operator growing more suspicious, Boyer becoming more downcast. It was a great scene because it's happened to each one of us, at one time or another.

In Walt Disney's ice hockey short with Donald Duck, the three little ducks finally have stolen the hockey puck from him and are having a swell time manipulating it. Donald sets out in furious pursuit, but can't catch them. He is about to apprehend them when the little ducks swerve abruptly into a snow bank and disappear from view.

At top speed Donald crashes into the snowbank after them and, as he disappears, the exact pattern of his figure is outlined in the snow. There may be some tricks of this trade that Disney and his staff don't know, but I doubt it.

Winona Lake Camp of Boys' Club Will Be Opened Monday

The Winona Lake, Ind., camp of the Chicago Boys' clubs will be opened Monday to nearly 600 boys. Boys from eight branches will be picked up by bus and taken directly to the camp.

Included will be eight bands, one from each club. Some 150 young musicians are expected. They will be in charge of John Sovinec, bandmaster, and Howard Tooley, music and dramatic director.

Good-bye To Vienna

By Olga L. Rosmanith

(Copyright: 1939: By News Syndicate Company, Inc.)

SYNOPSIS.

An American girl and her Viennese sweetheart, Franz Gruenwald, in a café in Vienna, hear the radio announcement of Hitler's entry into Austria. The girl, Marian, has been staying in Franz's home, studying voice. Franz fears for his foster father, Prof. Josef von Plasy, author of a recent anti-Nazi book. He refuses to flee the country and leave his wife, Gisela, and son, Johann, who has the mind of a child. Leopoldine, a pro-Nazi woman surgeon, in love with Franz, sends for him and asks him to send the American girl home, threatening him if she doesn't go. Her brother, Karl, is a Storm Trooper. Gisela confides in Marian that she is worried about getting her money out of the country. Marian promises to take it out for her and deliver it to Emil Wiedermann, a friend, in Riga. Marian takes a room with an Austrian linguist, Frau Radovic. Von Plasy is taken off to jail to die from shock. Marian decides to invest Gisela's money in rare stamps, easier to take out of the country. Through a dealer she reaches Herr Otto Speyer, a stamp merchant. He guesses her purpose but is sympathetic and asks her to deliver a picture to a friend of his in Riga, a Mme. Lonska.

INSTALMENT XII.

SAFELY OVER THE BORDER.

Marian paid the money and took over the precious packages with a wild elation. Now all was set for her adventure except for convincing Franz that it was safe for her to travel alone to Riga. She would not tell Gisela what she had done till it was a fait accompli. It would be a marvelous surprise for her.

Herr Speyer let her out again with a repetition of his Hapsburg period ceremony. It was all so convincing that the little demon of doubt did not begin to harass Marian till she was on the way home.

Suppose he were false. An informer. Suppose he had cheated her about the stamps. But no, he couldn't have. She had seen the catalogs, and they couldn't all be fakes. But suppose he told some one and they would be watching for her to take the stamps from her on the train.

Franz was at the apartment on the Kai waiting for her. "The laboratory is closed temporarily," he told her bleakly. "The boss has disappeared ever night. The inference is that he's helping to overcrowd the central prison."

"O, Franz darling——"

"Don't worry about me. You're as nervous as a wild bird in a human hand. You're trembling all over. What's the matter?"

She was tempted for one weak moment to tell him, but restrained herself. She knew what the result would be. He would not let her take the risk and, after all, there might not be any.

"It's nothing, Franz—I mean it's everything. How can I walk in my darling lovely Vienna and see such things and remain the same."

"I know. I told you it would never do for you to stay."

This was her chance. "You were partly right. While it's all in a state of flux and the conservatory closed I might as well go away on a little vacation."

He looked dubious and startled. "Where, for instance?"

Marion pointed to the open map on Frau Radovic's table. "Latvia. I've often heard of the beautiful Baltic beaches, the old Russian towns, the forests. I'd like to see them."

He surprised her. "It's a happy choice. It's one of the few consulates not besieged by armies of refugees. Not that that would make it difficult for an American citizen."

There was a catch somewhere waiting for her. It was all too easy. "Then you'll come with me to the consul?"

"No, darling. I'm Austrian. My foster father has been in trouble with the Nazi party and is now dead. Go alone as a nonpartisan American visitor and you will have no trouble. My help might only complicate things for you."

"That's true." But she was regretful. "What about Gisela? Is it all right to come and see her to say au revoir?"

"I think not. And I don't think she'd want to see you yet. She's as brave as a lion, as you can imagine, but it breaks my heart to see how she suffers. She says she is glad he died. This way he is free."

They turned to each other and wept silently in each other's arms. "Life is terrible," said Franz at last, "but love makes it bearable. It gives you such superhuman courage. I wish every unhappy soul in Vienna tonight had a love like ours."

"Then they wouldn't be unhappy."

"Perhaps more unhappy. Love is a shield. But it is also a weak place where life can wound. Dear God, if anything should happen to you——"

He could not bear to part with her, he told her, but it would be a relief to see her go away.

The train left at midnight. Marian leaned from the high carriage looking down on the bleak station. There were no refugees on the train. The Czecho-Slovakian and Polish borders were too tightly closed. She had a strange feeling of guilt as if she were fleeing and leaving unsuccored prisoners behind. Franz stood with her in the little sleeping compartment.

"When you write be careful, liebling. No politics of any kind. Don't on any account mention Gisela or the professor."

"No, I won't. But are we just being jittery, or is such exaggerated caution really necessary?"

"Most necessary. All the people I know who get foreign letters say they are opened and resealed with official stickers."

"How lovely to be precious to the person you love most in the world. Franz, I don't want to leave you."

"But I'm glad you're going."

They clung together for a long minute before he left her to jump down on the platform. The high train began to move slowly out. Marian hung out of the window till she could not see Franz any more, then closed it and pulled down the blind. She opened her dressing case to get out her night things. Among her lingerie lay the stamp album and the little envelopes. Her mouth went very dry, and a queer sensation fluttered in her stomach. Suppose that man had taken the money and informed about her. Suppose the bitterest disappointment, the deepest humiliation of her life waited for her on this train? The wheels beat rhythmically. In a few hours—in a few hours—you will know—you will know—faster—faster—you will know.

The guard was friendly and agreeable. Typical round faced, smiling Viennese. He took her passport. "I wish I didn't have to disturb you," he said genially, "but they'll have to search your luggage. They're being very thorough just now. When they're coming along, I'll let you know."

"Thank you," she said, smiling with difficulty.

"I'm just a coward," she told herself as she undressed in the narrow confines of the sleeper, glad that she had it to herself. She looked at the innocent looking stamp collection as if it were a venomous snake that would bite her. "Should I take it out? Should I put it under the mattress? Should I hide it?"

Reason saved her. If they were watching for her they would search, and any such behavior would be evidence of guilt. If they were not, what could be more innocent than a few foreign stamps among the possessions of a young American girl? They were less impressive than the concealed pearls that lay warmly heavy around her neck.

She was awake when the guard came to tell her that the officers were coming. The one who stood in her doorway was stern and bored, but he treated her with stern politeness. It occurred to her to conceal the fact that she spoke fluent German. It made no difference. He began to speak fluent English. How much money had she? How much had she brought in? How much was she taking out? He looked at her credit note. And what remained of her travelers' checks bought in New York. They tallied with the amounts officially entered on her passport by the Nazi commissioner. He turned her clothes over in her dressing case, completely uninterested in the stamps. Had she any other bags? Where? Open them, please. Any money in them? No. He was satisfied at last, and unsmilingly departed. Everything was all right.

Marian shut the door and bolted it. Sat down on the edge of her little bed. She had laughed at Franz when he had brought the small flask of cognac brandy, said she would rather die than drink any. Now she felt she would die if she didn't. She poured some out in the glass from the toilet cupboard and drained it. Now she could breathe again.

Some time later the Czech officials came to see if her luggage was in transit or going off at Warsaw. The guard explained to them. Marian felt something of the freedom and lightness of the successful refugee. She was safe, and so was Gisela's money. She was over the Czecho-Slovakian border.

HERE'S A GOOD IDEA: It's a ure and certain way to turn out hose jellied aspics and other ring nolds without melting them, breaking them, or having them slide all ver the place.

Some one has invented a new kind f ring mold. You turn the mold, ontaining its jellied salad, upside own on the serving plate, and pour arm water over it. The mold is o constructed that all of the warm ater is caught in the pan. Not a rop of it runs onto the plate. There's o jerking or jiggling necessary. Out omes the salad, in perfect form, all eady to be served! Of course, this an doesn't look quite like the familiar ring mold. It's really a ring old upside down inside a tall, round ake pan.

WHO HAS A RECIPE? The cooking department confesses to lacking walnut catsup recipe, requested y a reader. Therefore, we'd like to sk any other reader who has a tried nd true formula for this relish to end it in. And many thanks.

OTHER MILK DRINKS for hot eather may be ready by adding fruit uices to fresh, whole milk. Try adding ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup grape- uice, ½ teaspoon lemon juice, and tablespoons sugar to 1 cup milk, or a "grape blossom." . . . Or make ½ cup prune juice and add another teaspoon of lemon juice to the ecipe just given. You'd call this runeade. . . . Then, for something xotic, make this fruity milk and oney nectar: Mix ⅓ cup mashed anana, 1½ tablespoons orange juice, ½ tablespoons honey, ⅛ teaspoon alt, 1 drop almond extract, and 1 up milk. Beat it all to a froth nd serve cold with a spoonful of hipped cream.

SURPLUS FOODS: Bacon, milk, utter, ice cream, and other dairy roducts seem to be flooding the markets. Now's the time to use them n quantity, for prices are low, and esides taking care of the surplus roduce we'll be adding health value o our menus.

MALNUTRITION is easier to prevent than to cure. Diets which are dequate for prevention of nutritional iseases seldom suffice if the disease as already made its appearance, a recent article in the Journal of the merican Medical Association states.

SECRET POLICE JAIL FAMOUS PRODUCER OF SOVIET THEATER

MOSCOW, June 23.—(AP)—Vsevolod eyerhold, for years one of the greatest names in the soviet Russian theater world and internationally famous or his modernistic and futuristic tage technique, is under arrest. Unofficial reports said he was taken om his Moscow home by secret olice Wednesday night and locked a cell at Lubianka prison.

Four years ago the producer was the peak of his popularity among he theater-going public here and was ding high in official favor. Late in 937 his position was shaken when ravda, organ of the communist arty, attacked him for what the ewspaper called persistent production of anti-soviet plays in the theater bearing his name.

Early in 1938 his theater was closed nd he was banned from the soviet tage. The soviet art committee said is theater had failed in its mission ecause it was unable to bring itself om the bourgeoise attitude, alien to oviet art.

When Treating the Face for Acne, Remember Scalp, Too

Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

One of the most telling discoveries n connection with acne treatment s that in any number of cases the calp must be treated along with the ace. For acne often starts with a isordered scalp, as dermatologists ill tell you. They will tell you also hat the average person concentrates n the face when both face and scalp re companions in trouble, to be treated simultaneously.

Cleanliness is the only word for calp care in alliance with the unfortunate facial disorder. Shampoo the air every week, since it is no doubt ily as is also the acne troubled face. et the scalp toned up with massage, rofessional or self-given. Your hair rush, kept magnificently clean for ach attack, is the easiest known form f scalp massage. You certainly have een the relation between scalp and ace in the matter of circulation. You rush your hair with vim and vigor nd your face glows. That means omething not hard to answer.

It's a good idea to use two hair brushes, so that one always is clean, sun sterilized, and ready for the brushing work. Where there is acne trouble, don't minimize the importance of the scalp and superclean implements touching it. Cleanliness, you know, is the first principle in caring for the blackhead and pimple infected face. It goes equally for the scalp and hair.

Believe that this common form of which we speak is, if not due to inferior face cleaning methods, at least exaggerated through them. If the face were scrubbed thoroughly, rinsed in warm water to get all the soap off, and then rinsed in cold, cold water to close the pores, there would be little trouble. A superclean wash cloth is imperative for every face washing. The complexion brush must be cleaned after each use and set to sterilize in the sun. Too much cannot be said about the urgency of the simon-pure powder puff. Use fresh bits of cotton so that you can't slip up in this regard.

Child Suffers from Surfeit of Attention

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: New Syndicate Co., Inc.]

The bell had rung for midmorning snack and recess to be over, and for the children to begin work again. Carl, the teacher noticed, popped a last something into his mouth after the bell, and continued chewing, his freckled sunny face serious and businesslike, as usual. No mischief here. Glancing at him again some minutes later, she saw he was still chewing.

Going quietly to his desk, she said: "Carl, recess is over. What is it you're eating?"

Thinking it must be a piece of chewing candy, or delicious cookie, she was surprised to hear him answer: "It's my roll, Miss Johnson. It's my crusty roll with fresh butter on. It's so good."

The little boy was the son of the manager of one of the city's most famous hotels, in which they lived. And the teacher couldn't help thinking, as he swallowed the delicious bite and wiped his buttery young fingers, how wise his parents were, living at the hotel with its noted chef to feed him so simply that he ate with such keen relish a crisp, buttered roll.

I'm not one of those people who believe that large quantities of trouble, poverty, and misfortune are necessary for the good of the soul, and that ease, plenty, and happiness are bad for it and softening to the character. I know that happiness, freedom from financial strain have a part of their own to play in developing character and enriching one's personality and spirit.

But I do know that it is possible to have so much of good things that you don't savor them. The expression, "poor little rich girl," is a true as well as a trenchant one, since so many little girls born to wealth are satiated early in life. That they often have too little of the fine, unmaterial things we don't need to go into now.

So, I always feel sorry for a child [rich or not] who is surfeited with toys, clothes, attention, and indulgences in general. When he's little he's smothered by them and robbed of iniative, freedom, and independence. When he's older he's satiated and loses his ability to savor them.

Hodes to Speak as Jewish Law Fraternities Merge

Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes will be the speaker at the convention dinner of Nu Beta Epsilon and Alpha Kappa Sigma, Jewish legal fraternities in Columbus, O., tonight. The two organizations will consolidate at the convention. Mr. Hodes founded Nu Beta Epsilon at Northwestern university in 1917. Alpha Kappa Sigma was organized in Baltimore, Md., in 1918. The combined fraternities will use the name of Nu Beta Epsilon.

ENGAGEMENTS

Two engagements were announced yesterday at the home of George W. Burton at Wheaton. Miss Betty Jane Burton announced the engagement of her sister, Margaret, to Paul Bleiler, son of the Rev. and Mrs. John G. Bleiler of Elk Mound, Wis. And Miss Margaret announced Miss Betty Jane's engagement to Robert C. Strong, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. H. Strong of Beloit, Wis.

Both girls were graduated this year from Beloit college. Mr. Bleiler, who also was graduated from Beloit, is this year's intercollegiate state tennis champion. Mr. Strong is at present vice counsul at Frankfort-on-Main, Germany. He, too, is a Beloit graduate.

Three Patterns for Aprons

WOMAN'S AND MISS' APRONS.

For gifts or for yourself, aprons are practical. We're suggesting three different patterns today. Each requires very little material, and that of the most inexpensive sort, and all are remarkably easy to make. In fact, they'd furnish a grand initial sewing lesson!

At the left, a spic-and-span looking coverall for party occasions when you double as hostess and cook. The neckline is round, the armholes deep, the skirt full and furnishing ample coverage. Ruffling down the sides accents the paneling.

Center, an apron with halter neckline and sash that ties securely in front after having been crossed in the back. The large patch pockets are an added comfort and convenience.

Right, an apron with amusing tomato pockets which you can make with instructions included in the pattern. The neckline is V, the hemline also. Binding is used for trim all around and is the source of interesting color details.

Style No. 2696 requires 3 yards of 35 inch material for the medium size.
Style No. 2154 requires 1⅝ yards of 35 inch fabric; ¼ yard of printed material, ⅛ yard of plain, and 8½ yards of binding.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central station, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

According to CULBERTSON

"This was 'friendly' rubber bridge, with both sides vulnerable and both just as willing to lose a right eye as to lose the rubber. Both stretching a little, the bidding was:

North	East	South	West
1 club	1 heart	1 spade	4 hearts
Pass	Pass	5 diamonds	Pass
Pass	Pass

"To explain this bidding at least partly, let me give you some idea of the caliber of players involved. South, myself, scored 728 in your last self-rating examination. West was too good to take the examination, in his own opinion. North took the examination, but is not bragging about her score. East plays as the spirit moves her.

"West led his fourth best heart and East won. After much brow wrinkling East returned the spade queen. Declarer won and led a low diamond, hoping for a miracle. West's cerebration was almost verbal: 'He's pulling a fast one. He thinks I'm dumb enough to duck and lose my jack to the queen. Then he'll collar my king with the ace. O no, not this baby! Up with the king.'

"As East's ace dropped on the same trick, East remarked with just a trace of acerbity: 'Well, we certainly took that trick, all right!' And that ended a very pleasant evening!

"S. M. R., Chicago."

The ace and king of trump dropping on one trick is a spector that haunts most bridge players and causes shivers of apprehension. There are times when it is very difficult to know whether to play the king from K-x or to duck and permit partner's possible ace to win separately. In this case the dilema never should have arisen, because East should have laid down the diamond ace immediately upon winning the first trick. There was no conceivable reason for East to hold the singleton ace, and although she could not anticipate what was to occur, a play that has nothing wrong with it is almost always automatically correct. I must say, however, that it was astonishing that East should have been on lead at the first trick, because West's underlead of the ace and five other hearts was, to put it mildly, peculiar. It is correct to lead the fourth highest of partner's suit under most circumstances, but this does not apply when the leader has the ace. There is entirely too much chance that the opposition may have the singleton king which, of course, would make the underlead of the ace a catastrophe.

All of this, however, is not an attempt to justify West's play of the diamond king on declarer's first lead toward dummy. West should have known that South would not have led a low diamond if he had held the ace. Surely South must have at least five diamonds for his bid at the five level. Holding the A x x x x, he could not be clairvoyant enough to realize that a low diamond lead would put West on the spot and would make the much more natural play of laying down the ace.

3d Generation of Brides Will Use Prayer Rug

A silk Persian kneeling rug upon which brides for three generations in the family of Mrs. George Clinton Merrick have received blessings, will be used by Miss Nancy Merrick and Phil E. Gilbert Jr. tonight. They are to be married at 8:30 o'clock in St. Mark's church, Evanston, the Rev. Harold L. Bowen officiating.

Among the guests will be the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Richard T. Lake, who was one of the first to use the rug.

The bride will carry her mother's prayer book. Mr. and Mrs. Merrick are giving a reception at their Evanston home following the ceremony. Their four other children will be among the wedding attendants. Miss Jane Merrick as maid of honor; Margaret, a Roycemore student, as junior bridesmaid, and George Clinton Jr. and Richard as ushers. The brothers attend Yale.

Mr. Gilbert, son of the Phil E. Gilberts of Evanston, and his bride will spend the summer touring the west. They will be at home in New York next September.

Miss Alyce Siqueland, daughter of Mrs. Tryggve A. Siqueland, and Ditlef Knudsen of Oslo, Norway, will be married at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the Evangelical Lutheran church in Oak Park with a reception following at the Chicago Norske club. Jens Paasche, who is engaged to the bride's mother, will give Miss Siqueland in marriage. His daughter, Mrs. Hans P. Pettersen, and Mr Pettersen, will be among the attendants.

Mr. Knudsen, who is in the Norwegian diplomatic service, and his bride will sail for Norway on July 6 in the same ship that will carry Crown Prince Olav and Crown Princess Martha back to their home. After a holiday in Oslo the Knudsens will go to Ankara, Turkey.

Miss Eileen Nancy Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clement D. Ryan of 3240 Lake Shore drive, will become the bride of David Chapman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arms Chapman of Evanston, at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the Lady chapel of St. Luke's church, Evanston. The Rev. Gerald G. Moore will officiate. A reception will follow at the Racquet club.

At 10 o'clock this morning in St. Luke's church, River Forest, Miss Florence Helen Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert A. Clark, will be married to John Phelan Gorman, son of the John S. Gormans of Oak Park. The Rev. Richard Cunningham of Detroit will officiate.

The marriage of Miss Phyllis Jane Hitchcock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. Hitchcock of Evanston to William Beekman Near of Evanston, son of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Near of Wauwautosa, Wis., will take place today in the First Methodist church, Evanston, with the Rev. Ernest Fremont Tittle officiating. A reception will follow in Glenna hall at the church.

Miss Doris Elizabeth Hitchcock will be her twin sister's maid of honor, and Miss Doris' fiancé, Maurice C. Boyer of Kansas City, will be among the ushers.

At 5:30 o'clock this afternoon Miss Caroline Elizabeth Rossow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles William Rossow of Hinsdale, will become the bride of Richard de Haan, son of Mrs. Catherine de Haan of Hinsdale. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Wilfred A. Rowell at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Jane Thalman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Luther Thalman of Wheaton, will become the bride of Halvor Gordon Melom at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Gary Memorial church of Wheaton. After a wedding trip to Quebec and New York Mr. Melom, the son of Mrs. Emma Jane Melom of Fresno, Cal., will take his bride to California to live.

June 24, 1939.

This would be an excellent day for a drive in the country. If you can't get away try to have a few quiet hours to yourself.

Those born on the 24th are frequently reformers, magnetic, and protective, with a universal motherly or fatherly attitude. Queen Victoria and John Knox were born on the 24th, and this is the anniversary of the birth of Henry Ward Beecher.

Fault-Finders May Be Jealous of Girl's Beau

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I am 21 and the young man I am in love with is six months older than I. I have a sister, 19, who objects bitterly to my going about with this chap because her dearest girl friend went with him before I got to know him. Both my sister and her friend call me cradle-snatcher. But the young man treats me wonderfully and I think it is the real thing on both sides. Do you think that he is too young for me under the circumstances? Should I give him up just because of my sister? I hate to have trouble in my own family over a beau. DEL."

Aren't you overconcerned about your sister's attitude? We wouldn't be for weighing her judgment particularly because of her disloyalty. She ought to stand by you, not by an outside friend who would desert her probably on slight provocation.

It's your heart affair. There can be no cradle-snatching charge supported when the young man is months older.

If you outsmarted the other girl in your man's affections, that is merely too bad for her. She could not have made any deep inroads, so the coast was clear and free for you to operate your charms. It's all legitimate business in this game called love.

Your sister will fall in line shortly, and all will be smooth sailing. Your parents could easily set her right, you know, if you took them into your confidence. Maybe she is just a little jealous of you herself.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

Sewing Machine Is Requested.

Mrs. G. is the widowed mother of three children. The family income permits them just enough for necessary living expenses. Although the mother is not well, suffering with a spinal condition, she is a neat person and keeps a good home. The children are doing well in school, but the oldest girl, attending a vocational school, is hampered in her work by lack of a sewing machine at home. If she could locate a serviceable one, she would be able to remake clothing for the family. They also need a rug, as the one they have now is so completely worn that it is useless. The address is south and west of the loop.

turn to Winnetka for the marriage at 5 o'clock of Miss Massey and Mr. Ryerson.

Others who have been invited not only to these two weddings but to a third large one today, that of Miss Margaret Walker to George W. Dixon Jr. in Racine, Wis., must miss one. The Dixon-Walker ceremoney will take place at 4:30 o'clock.

Barbara McNulty Only Attendant for Bride.

Miss McNulty, pretty, dark haired daughter of the Joseph Davis McNultys, will have her younger sister, Barbara, for her only attendant. A younger brother of the bridegroom, Anthony Bouscaren, will be best man, and the oldest brother, Pierre Bouscaren, has come from Greenwich to usher. His wife, the former Chloe Watson, did not come with him. Her brother, Cornelius B. Watson Jr., will be among the ushers.

Joseph S. Miller, Nathaniel Blatchford, II., John Creigh, Clinton and Arthur Frank, Frederic De Peyster Jr., Sewell Greeley and Monroe McNulty, the bride's brother, complete the list of ushers. Msgr. Casey will read the service.

Following a breakfast at the Saddle and Cycle club, Mr. Bouscaren and his bride will leave for Bermuda. They will make their home in Winnetka for the rest of the summer and then probably will move to the near north side.

A number of Miss McNulty's former classmates at Vassar have come for the wedding, among them Miss Mary Lou Benson and Miss Katherine Dain of Minneapolis; Miss Vannette Horner of Louisville; Miss Jean Morse of Brookline, Mass.; Miss Susan Bontecou of Millbrook, N. Y., and Miss Constance Barry of Hingham, Mass. Miss Nancy Hickey of Boston, another friend, also is here.

Reception Follows Massey Ceremony.

Dozens of friends and relatives have come from away to attend the marriage of Miss Massey and Mr. Ryerson. A reception will follow at the Boals', and a supper for the bridal party and out of town guests will be given later by Mr. and Mrs. Massey. Mrs. Stewart Johnson, aunt of the bride, and Miss Tita Johnson, are giving a luncheon today for the visitors.

The Rev. Samuel Harkness will read the ceremony. Mrs. Philip W. Moore Jr. [Henrietta Boal] will be the matron of honor, and Miss Florence Walsh will be the maid of honor. The bridesmaids will include Miss Anne Gould of Seattle, Wash.; Miss Mary Trumbull, Miss Peggy Sargent, Miss Lucy Rumsey, Miss Jean Wilson, Miss Johnson, Miss Theodora Finney, Miss Natasha Wentcher, Miss Grace Topping of Manistee, Mich., a cousin of Mr. Ryerson, and Miss Mary Olive Winslow of New York.

Raymond High will be best man. Ushering will be the bride's brother, Loren J. Massey, and their cousin, Thomas Boal; J. De Navarre Macomb Jr., Benjamin Crawford, Ives Waldo, Ward Cheney Thorne of South Manchester, Conn.; Dr. Murray Shipley Howland of Buffalo; Howard Cobb of Louisville, and William Dickel of New York and John Kupmeier of Milwaukee, who have brought their wives with them.

After a wedding trip Mr. Ryerson and his bride will be at home in Winnetka for two months. Then they will move to the near north side.

The junior George B. Masseys did not come from Mexico City for his sister's marriage for the good reason that they became the parents of a son on Wednesday. The baby, their first child, has been named John Atherton for his late maternal grandfather.

Three Children In Walker Bridal Procession.

Instead of two flower girls, as planned, there will be only one in the procession that will precede Miss Walker to the altar of the Racine college chapel. The Stanley Zarings' little Sandra is in Wesley hospital convalescing from an illness, so she will not be able to be the partner of Suzanne Walker. Sandra's brother, Dixon Zaring, and Suzanne's brother, Willard, will be ribbon bearers.

Mrs. Zaring, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Gordon R. Walker, mother of the Walker children and sister-in-law of the bride, will be bridesmaids. Miss Mary Clausen of Racine will be the maid of honor, and Mrs. John Raymond Murphy Jr. of Glencoe, formerly Alice Batten of Racine, will be the matron of honor.

William McSwain will be best man. Ushering will be Kenneth Montgomery, Mr. Walker, Richard K. Juergens, William A. Little, Mr. Zaring, and Wade Fetzer. Mr. and Mrs. Willard Thornton Walker, parents of the bride, will give a reception at the Racine Country club following the ceremony.

Mr. Dixon and his bride will go to England on their wedding trip and will be at home at 1448 Lake Shore drive after Aug. 15.

Plastron Effect Makes Knitted Sweater Striking

BY JEAN MACDONALD.

The knitted sweater with the plastron effect in the front is one of the newest fancies for daytime or evening. Knitted in a rich metallized crêpe wool in black or white, it is ideal for formal or informal evening wear. Knitted of downy soft vicuna with contrasting collar and cuffs, it is perfect for sports wear. The design is available in sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement.

For instructions in knitting the sweater with the plastron effect, No. X-288, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Use Hair Pins in High Colors as Accent Trick

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Here's something new in costume accents—long, lightweight hairpins to anchor a swathed turban. Composition stuff is used for these rather dangerous looking long pins in vivid colors like flame red, burnt orange, carbon blue, Kelly green, and so on. Gold metal affairs with big blobs of metal make more decorative duets that give an oriental pomp to the headgear.

New flowered necklaces and dual purpose bands of artificial flowers and foliage are attached to long grosgrain ribbon. These are worn for headdress or belt. Apple blossoms are especially lovely in delicate pastel tints, and the necklace of white stalks of wheat couldn't be better for simple dull black linen daytime dresses.

Dead white jewelry can be overworn . . . just a big barbaric choker and earrings assure enough dramatics for any costume when the footgear, dress, and hat are all of the same color.

If you're weary of white as a summertime cooler for dark costumes try the delectable charm of pale pink . . . you can find it in the multistrand necklaces of beads as small as pin points, or the larger stuff in simple round balls.

Clear prystal jewelry combined with green looks as cool as ice cubes and mint leaves, jingles musically and contrasts any color in clothes. Featherweight prystal gypsy bangle jewelry is just a couple dozen open rings the size of a 50 cent piece strung on a colored cotton cord. But it is the lightest loot in the shops, makes a nice noise when you move and combines a lot of effective colors ready for contrast duty on all-white outfits.

HOLD HOPE FOR SUPERHIGHWAYS AFTER RECESS

Chicagoans Plan a New Move in Assembly.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—Proponents of Chicago's superhighway legislation were hopeful tonight that the week-end recess will ease opposition to the measures. They said representatives will be home tomorrow and Sunday among friends and neighbors more interested in reducing the dangers, delays, and annoyances of automobile travel than they are in party politics and personal grudges.

"I warned the Chicago delegation that I was going to get even for their failure to help us with downstate bills," said Representative Oral P. Tuttle, [R., Harrisburg], who led the opposition to the superhighway legislation. He recruited other downstate Republicans to this cause. The clique buried the bills in a subcommittee of the house roads and bridges committee, which consists of seven members from Cook county and forty from downstate.

Seeks Committee Discharge.

On Monday night, Representative Arthur M. Kaindl [D., Chicago], will move to discharge the committee from further consideration of the bills.

On the floor of the house, proponents are hopeful that the bills will escape sectional and party antagonisms. Amendments have been introduced to eliminate both of these issues.

The bills were passed in the senate a few weeks ago without a single Republican vote. In their original form, the measures would have authorized the state to issue 60 million dollars worth of notes to be retired with future gasoline tax revenue, half to be spent on secondary roads downstate and half to be spent on Chicago superhighways.

State Aid Eliminated.

A proposed amendment would eliminate state finances from the legislation. The bills then would provide solely for Cook county and Chicago each to issue 30 million dollars worth of notes to be retired with their gas tax revenues.

ICKES CONSIDERS PLEA FOR TIME ON TRANSIT DEALING

Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes, head of the Public Works administration, indicated yesterday that he would grant Chicago more time to draft a unified traction ordinance and to present plans for extending its subway system and for widening Congress street. He also denied the request of loop merchants and property owners for high level subways in the loop and ruled that low level tubes be built as called for in plans drawn last fall by PWA engineers.

Ickes' statements on traction and subways were contained in a letter to Mayor Kelly which the mayor made public yesterday on his return from Washington, D. C. The mayor conferred with the secretary for several hours Thursday in Washington, explaining why the city was asking more time to draw a transit ordinance. He asked for a sixty day extension. It is expected Ickes will grant an extension of not more than thirty days from July 1. This is the deadline that the PWA set in making its $18,000,000 subway grant to the city.

Navy Pushes Completion of Squalus Sister Ship

Portsmouth, N. H., June 23.—[Special.]—A large crew of workmen is engaged in completion of the navy's newest submarine Searaven, which was launched at the navy yard here this week. The Searaven is a sister ship of the Squalus, which sank 15 miles from the launching scene with a loss of 26 lives.

THE MASSACRE
Chicago's 1939 Trafic Toll

More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

BOY, 12, FATALLY INJURED BY CAR IN OUTER DRIVE

John Persley, 12 years old, 4140 Drexel boulevard, was fatally injured by an automobile yesterday in the Outer drive at 49th street. Harry Bairstow Jr., 1627 Wilmette avenue, Wilmette, was the driver of the car. Bairstow, who is treasurer of the H. Bairstow company, contractors erecting the south side filtration plant, was not held. Witnesses said the boy ran into the side of the automobile.

Michael Sesterhenn, 58 years old, 949 Madison street, died in the Bridewell hospital late yesterday of injuries suffered Thursday when the truck he was driving crashed into a street car near 3673 Grand avenue.

Andrew Weglowski, 77 years old, 4841 South Marshfield avenue, was killed last night when he walked into a moving truck driven by Sol Klein, of 4940 Kimball avenue. The accident occurred in front of 4813 South Ashland avenue.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 388 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 301 were killed in Chicago, where 9,675 were injured in the same period.

CHICAGO YOUTH ELECTROCUTED BY POWER LINE

Anthony Gregor, 16 years old, 3217 53d street, was killed yesterday near Shawano, Wis., when he walked into a high tension wire that had sagged downward from a loosened insulator.

Young Gregor was walking through the woods with a friend, Jack Knight, 6934 West 29th place, Berwyn, and Knight's mother, Mrs. Frank Knight. He accidentally walked into the sagging wire. It struck his forehead, and as he fell he pulled the wire down upon himself. Mrs. Knight seized her son's leather coat and with it pulled the wire away from young Gregor. Although she wore crêpe soled shoes, she was knocked down by the current when she touched the 2,400 volt line. She was not injured seriously.

HIT-RUN DRIVER OF CAR KILLING 2 JAILED 10 DAYS

Walter Muehlmeyer, 31 years old, 5328 Potomac avenue, was sentenced yesterday to ten days in the county jail by Judge Jay A. Schiller in Jury court on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. Muehlmeyer was arrested June 3 following an accident in which two sisters, Mrs. Hannah Gahagan, 80 years old, and Mrs. Bridget Horan, 86, were injured fatally by Muehlmeyer's car near their home at 4738 North avenue. Muehlmeyer told the police he became excited when he saw he had struck the women and drove away. A coroner's jury previously had exonerated Muehlmeyer.

HARVARD BEATS YALE OARSMEN BY 1¼ LENGTHS

Sweeps Three Races for 2d Straight Year

New London, Conn., June 23.—(AP)—The Harvard varsity crew, stroked by Bill Rowe of Cincinnati, beat out a smashing climax to an otherwise ordinary season this evening by rowing a front race all the way to whip Yale by a length and a quarter before 50,000.

Rated little more than an even money shot, the Crimson boat shot to the front at the start, easily held off two Yale challenges, and came down the final half mile through a lane of yachts to score Harvard's fourth-straight varsity triumph over Yale.

Yale Supplies the Drama.

This four mile contest of the 77th regatta on the Thames found Harvard completing its second successive sweep of the river. In the morning two mile races, the Crimson yearlings had won by nearly three lengths and the junior varsity by a length. It was the first time in the history of this rivalry, the oldest in American intercollegiate sports history, that Harvard has won all three races two years in a row.

Though Yale appeared beaten only halfway through the downstream duel,, it was the Elis who injected drama into the race. Two hundred yards from home Bucky Byers, Yale's coxswain and captain, whipped out a Crimson pennant and waved it over his head in a final effort to bring up the Yale beat and the Yale boat.

Weather Is Perfect.

But Stroke Clement Gile already was setting a pace of forty strokes to the minute for his Eli mates, four of them sophomores, and they couldn't raise it any higher.

Harvard's time was 20 minutes, 48 2-5 seconds, almost a minute off Yale's downstream record set in 1934, while Yale was clocked in 20:53. The contest was run under virtually perfect weather conditions.

Harvard led by a half length after the first half-mile, and by a shade less than a length as they passed the one-mile stakes. At this time Yale was rowing far more evenly than later in the race. Harvard moved out to an open-water advantage, but when they passed the half way point, Yale had cut the open water out of the Crimson's advantage.

Victory Is Harvard's 38th.

The Eli spurt didn't last long, however. It was Harvard by a length and a half at two and a half miles, by a length and a quarter at three miles, by a shade under that as the Elis made another bid half a mile from home, and then a length and a quarter at the finish. It was Harvard's thirty-eighth victory in the series begun in 1852, to thirty-nine triumphs for Yale, which last won in 1935.

RIGGS LOSES IN ENGLISH TENNIS TO VON CRAMM

LONDON, June 23.—(AP)—Baron Gottfried von Cramm, Germany's ex-Davis cup star, thrashed America's No. 1 player, Bobby Riggs, 6-0, 6-1, in a semi-final match of the London Grass courts tournament at the Queens club today. Rushing to the club from the reception at Guild hall to King George and Queen Elizabeth, Von Cramm won two hard games at the start of the match, then took nine more in a row before Riggs managed to win his only game.

In tomorrow's final Von Cramm will play Ghaus Modhammed of India, who beat Scotland's I. G. Collins in the other semi-final, 6-4, 6-2.

For the second straight year Jadwiga Jedrzejowska of Poland and Mrs. Hilda Krahwinkel Sperling of Denmark will play for the women's title. The Polish star defeated Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Brookline, Mass., 11-9, 2-6, 6-4, and Mrs. Sperling eliminated Peggy Scriven of England, 6-4, 6-2, in the semi-finals today.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

J. LOUIS COMISKEY, like other major league owners who have tried the adventure, undoubtedly will find night baseball a profitable arrangement. . . . It doesn't require mental gymnastics to learn that a comparatively small percentage of a ball club's potential customers find it consistently convenient to leave their business in the afternoon. . . . Few teams could operate at a profit if it were not for the Saturday, Sunday, and holiday crowds. . . . A night game is the equivalent of a Sunday attraction, provided the schedule is not overworked. . . . The problem of getting the boys out of the taverns into the bleachers has required profound speculation, but now that we have a 2 a. m. closing ordinance the patrons have plenty of time to make the rounds. . . . The prospect of rolling over to the ball park and absorbing a nine inning game after the evening victuals ought to lure a great number of people who otherwise would be content to get their baseball out of the box scores. . . . Certainly if Al Jolson in "Rose of Washington Square" or Fred Astaire in some other cinema epic can entice the old man out of the house after a long day at the office, it is reasonable to assume that the manly charms of Luke Appling or Ted Lyons would not leave him utterly cold and unmoved. . . .

Howard Wedebrook, one of the best punters in Ohio State football history, may be forced to quit school because of the recent death of his father. . . . He had a year of competition remaining. . . . Stanley Coveleskie, South Bend business man who helped pitch Cleveland and Washington to American league pennants, agrees with Ty Cobb that Joe Jackson probably would hit .800 with the present day ball, but adds that Cobb himself would roll up a .900 average under the same circumstances. . . . Which goes to show that Stan still is pretty swift. . . . Only five amateurs have won the national open golf championship. . . . The list includes Francis Ouimet, Jerome Travers, Chick Evans, Bobby Jones [four times], and Johnny Goodman. . . . Nick Cutlich, Northwestern tackle, will spend the summer working on a fishing boat out of San Francisco. . . . Bob Saggau, Notre Dame's brilliant left half back, wore No. 77, the number Red Grange made famous, when he was playing for Denison, Ia., High school. . . . Paul Cavalier, former heavyweight boxer, is well liked as a referee in eastern rings.

If Walls Could Speak.

The sun porch is opened up again,
For summer time is here,
And thence we gather as evening comes
With friends that are most dear.

And contentedly we sit and rock,
Exchanging many dreams,
And often the fresh young voices rise
In lilting modern themes.

Sometimes for a change a hush will fall,
And within the dimness there
Only the sound of clinking ice
In cooling drinks we share.

How precious the hours we spend this way
With friends that are most dear—
If the walls could speak how much they'd tell
When summer time is here.

Nebular Theory.

Long eons ago, in eternal space,
God in his wisdom stirred apace
The slumbering ether.

Podlike hardening to inclose the seed,
The universe whirled with cyclonic speed,
Roaring and melding.

Filled with embryo worlds of fire,
Centrifugal force split this pyre,
And it burst asunder.

Globes of fire through illimitable space
Whirled and coursed at tremendous pace
Through the infinite void.

From chaos came order by his will,
And the luminous bodies obeyed until
The heavens took form.

A finite speck in stellar space
Slowly lessened its terrific pace
And cooled and cooled.

High flung gases arose from this sphere
To form a cover, an atmosphere—
And earth was born.

But in the trust they place in me.

The birds I gladly give a home,

From creatures cruel and bold.

Straight and unashamed I stand,
My arms upraised to thee—
Giving thanks to you, O Lord,
For creating me a tree.

CARLSON MEETS DAWSON TODAY IN STATE GOLF FINAL

Illinois Star Wins from Burkemo on 20th Hole.

Champaign, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—George Dawson of Glen Oaks and Ralph Carlson of Lombard, captain of the University of Illinois golf team, survivors of a field of 125 golfers, will meet in a 36 hole match tomorrow at the Champaign County Country club to decide the 1939 Illinois amateur championship. Eighteen holes will be played in the morning and eighteen in the afternoon.

Dawson and Carlson went through the qualifying round of twenty-seven holes, won their matches in three rounds of eighteen holes each and remained in the running by winning in the semi-finals this afternoon.

Winner Takes Emmerson Trophy.

In addition to gaining the title the winner tomorrow will be awarded the Louis L. Emmerson championship trophy for one year.

The finals will bring together teacher and pupil. Five years ago Carlson, who now is 22 years old, caddied for Dawson at the Glen Oaks Country club, Chicago, and learned some of his golf from him. That same year Carlson won The Chicago Tribune golf school trophy.

Dawson, who scored the major upset of the tournament Thursday by defeating his brother, Warren, state champion in 1931 and 1932, and then won over Gus Moreland of Peoria, medalist, beat Robert Price of Waukegan in the quarter-finals this morning, 2 and 1, and then eliminated James Frisina, Taylorville, last year's medalist, 4 and 2, in the semi-finals. Frisina had beaten George Victor of Glen View, 1 up, in nineteen holes this morning.

Wins on 20th Hole.

Carlson reached the title round when he won over Charles Boywid of Big Oaks, 5 and 3, in the quarter-finals this morning, and then, in a bitterly fought contest with Walter Burkemo of Evanston this afternoon won 1 up on the twentieth hole. In the quarter-finals Burkemo, 21 year old Evanston star, had stidetracked Johnny Holmstrom of Rockford, dedending champion, 2 and 1.

Burkemo and Carlson both played the first nine holes of the semi-finals in 35, one under par. Three holes were halved and they split the other six, Carlson winning three by birdies and Burkemo two in the same way. They made the second nine in par 36 for a total of 71 strokes. The nineteenth hole was halved and the Illinois star fired a birdie three on the twentieth to enter the finals.

Dawson Takes Lead Early.

Dawson led Frisina 2 up after nine holes. He shot a 37 while Frisina went around in 39. All but the fourth and fifth holes were halved. Frisina lowered Dawson's advantage to 1 stroke on the tenth, the eleventh was halved, and Dawson took a two stroke advantage on the twelfth. Frisina won the thirteenth. He lost the match on the sixteenth, which Dawson won with an eagle two.

Quarter-final results:

George Dawson, Glen Oaks, beat Robert Price, Waukegan, 2 and 1.

Carlson beat Burkemo, 1 up, 20 holes.

Lincoln Fields 27 Day Meet Ends Today

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Lincoln Fields will close its twenty-seven day meeting this afternoon with a program headed by the $2,500 Lincoln handicap, a gallop of a mile and a sixteenth which has been won by many famous campaigners of other years. Manie O'Hara, heroine of the present meeting by virtue of three stake victories, will try to get her name under that of Sun Beau, Toro, and other performers who captured this prize in previous seasons.

Though the track has been plagued by stormy weather and an epidemic of coughing among the horses, the attendance and betting handle have been only slightly below that of other years. The races have been marked by excellent handicapping on the part of Racing Secretary William H. Shelley, the finishes being so close that the placing judges have been forced to call for photographs repeatedly.

Move to Arlington Park.

Many of the stables are moving over to Arlington Park, where Chicago's racing season will be resumed on Monday. Others are going to Latonia, remaining on the circuit of tracks operated by Matt J. Winn, president of the American Turf association.

Among Manie O'Hara's rivals today will be Her Reigh, which ran a dead heat with the gray filly in last Saturday's Marquette handicap. On the previous Saturday Her Reigh had won the La Salle handicap after a downpour had turned the track into a swamp. Manie O'Hara's other stake victories were the Kankakee at a mile and the Steger at seven furlongs. The veteran Mucho Gusto, owned by Mrs. Kirby Ramsey and R. F. Coppage, will continue his comeback today. He won the Lincoln handicap of 1936 and ran second last year. Since going back into training Mucho Gusto has worked impressively, going a mile in 1:41 1-5.

Chance Ray Tries Again.

Followers of the races will miss J. W. Parrish's Dellor, which won this event in 1937. His owner had nominated him for today's stake, but the courageous old campaigner reached the end of his career in a fatal accident last Saturday when he fell and broke both forelegs during the Marquette handicap. C. E. Davidson's Chance Ray, last year's winner, will try again today. Friedberg and Axton will send out either Montsin or Bala Ormont as a running mate to Manie O'Hara. Mrs. Emil Denemark has entered Some Count and Melodist.

Isolene, a nine to one shot, won the Prairie Avenue purse, a race of a mile for 4 year olds and up, which was one of the features of yesterday's program. Jockey T. P. Martin took Isolene out of the chute at high speed and rated her well while she gradually increased her lead to five lengths in the stretch. Though she weakened badly in the last sixteenth she had enough left to beat Princess Torch by a little less than a length, Wegoway running third.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Summit, N. J., June 23.—Joe Jacobs might have talked about coming events casting their shadows. Instead, he said, "Kid, I believe in doubles."

"Yeah, laugh. But when I saw Dave Clark knocked out by Gus Lesnevich in one round last night with Joe Louis and Jack Blackburn in Clark's corner, I had the hunch. I said, 'There it is. Look at that Louis watching Clark stagger around in circles from Gus' left hook. Wednesday night Louis will be staggering around from Tony's left hook.'

"A lot of others had my hunch. That crowd over in Nutley poured it on the champ. They told him what I'm telling you, 'That's what you'll get, Joe.'

Louis Seldom Lingers, Joe.

"Louis left that stadium about as fast as if he'd seen a ghost. Didn't wait for Blackburn or Clark, or even Roxborough. I saw Roxborough and I asked him, 'How'd it happen? Didn't Blackburn tell Clark Gus had a left hook?'

"Roxborough sorta grinned, but starts out serious, 'I guess Louis being in Dave's corner bothered him. Joe's an idol to Dave and just the champ's being there made Dave too tense.'

"'Yeah, past tense,' I cracked. 'And you tell Blackburn not to forget to tell Louis Tony's got a left hook.'"

It was just as well for Joe Jacobs' publicity schemes that he gave birth to this idea before the afternoon's workout. For in his four rounds today Domenico Antonio Galento gave the most inept exhibition we have ever seen.

A Spanking Might Help.

Tony behaved like a spoiled child. He interrupted Jacobs' preliminary announcement of the ticket sale at Mme. Bey's to tell the crowd of several hundred to "buy tickets in Orange; these ain't no good." He set up a screech to drown out introduction of Abe Feldman, with whom he boxed two rounds.

He lost his temper completely during his two rounds with Mickey McAvoy, a ring ancient from Brooklyn, obviously out of condition and whose record dates back to 1915 when he joined the navy. Tony rushed McAvoy so furiously, after Mickey stabbed him repeatedly with a left,

HACK SCORES IN NINTH ON ERROR TO BREAK TIE

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Temperamental Bill Lee yesterday was on the profit end of erratic baseball, for a change, as the Cubs defeated the Phillies, 4 to 3, on two unearned runs. The soothing victory stretched the Cubs' winning streak to six straight and enabled them to gain another game on the leading Reds. A week ago tonight the champs were 10½ games behind the pace setters; this morning they are only seven games behind.

Lee, who made seven tries for his sixth victory, had to make only one for his seventh success. Big Will hadn't quite overcome the prima donna complex that seized him during the days of his adversity. Several times he put on public demonstrations of disapproval with his support, once on a double by Joe Marty which might have been caught and another time on a triple by Morris Arnovich which the best outfielder who ever lived couldn't have caught with a seine. The triple drove in the tying run and had Moe on third with only one out, so maybe Bill had an excuse for his tantrum, at that.

Phils Make Three Errors.

The aforesaid break was an error by Heinie Mueller, which permitted Stanley Hack to romp home with the winning run. It was the third Philly misplay of the game. The inning started with Lee's strikeout, after which Hack socked a single for his third hit of the contest, and then stole second. It appeared like extra innings when Bill Herman popped to Legrand Scott in short right and Galan started a bouncer straight at Mueller, usually a dependable fielder. But the ball shot off Mueller's glove, hit his shoulder and bounded into right center as Hack ran home with the all important counter.

The Phillies led the Cubs, 2 to 0, going into the home fourth when a double by Jim Gleeson and singles by Hack, Herman, and Galan, the singles after two were out, enabled the champs to tie the score.

The Cubs went ahead in the sixth on an unearned run and the Phillies tied the score in the eighth on the aforesaid walk to Scott and triple by Arnovich.

It was the Cubs' third victory over the tail end Phillies in eight games played.

Phillies Take Lead.

The Phillies, nudged along somewhat by Gleeson's misjudgment of a fly, hopped off to a 2 to 0 lead in the first inning. Bolling opened the game with a single to center, then Mueller struck out, and Scott forced Bolling, but Arnovich singled to center, his 82d hit of the year. Scott stopped at second. Marty sent a high fly to right. Gleeson staggered under the ball, then let it twist away from him and plunk for a double, much to the chagrin of Lee. It scored Scott and Arnovich. Bartell threw out May.

Butcher held the Cubs to a single by Galan in the first two innings, delaying the first Cub threat till the third inning. With one out in the third Lee was safe when Marty dropped his fly, then Hack singled to center, Lee stopping at second. The Chicago hopes for a rally ended when Mueller grabbed Herman's hot grounder, tagged second to force Hack, and threw to Bolling to double Herman.

Marty opened the fourth with his second hit, a single to center, but May hit into a double play and Young bounced to G. Russell. Coble led off the fifth with a single and reached second on Butcher's sacrifice, but he

MIDGET FEATURE WON BY HANSEN; HOUSEHOLDER 2D

10,000 See Californians Take First Four Places.

Mel Hansen of Los Angeles, Cal., won the class A fifty lap feature race in the midget automobile championship meet in Soldiers' field last night before a crowd of 10,000.

The first four places went to California drivers. Ronnie Householder of Van Nuys finished second, Perry Grim of Los Angeles was third, and Duane Carter of Fresno fourth. Paul Russo of New York, national board track champion in 1938, was fifth.

Hanks Forced Out.

Sam Hanks of Alhambra, Cal., who won the feature races last Sunday and Tuesday nights, led last night from the ninth to the thirty-third lap, where his car slid into the guard rail on the south turn. Hansen took over the lead at this point, slipping by Householder, who trailed Hanks in second place after he had lost the lead on the ninth lap.

Tommie Hinnerschnitz of Lebanon, Pa., bumped the guard rail on the north turn on the 38th lap, Bill Shindler of Long Island experienced similar trouble on the 40th lap, and Duke Nalon of Chicago spun along the west stretch of the 48th lap after blowing a tire coming out of the north turn. None of the drivers in crashes were injured.

Hanks Sets Record.

Hanks set a new track record in the time trials, circling the quarter mile oval in 11.85 seconds, an average of more than 80 miles an hour.

Duke Nalon of Chicago won the first semi-final twelve lap race, taking the lead from Lloyd Axel of Denver on the ninth lap. His time was 2 minutes 31.40 seconds.

Hanks, who started in last place in the field of five, nosed ahead of Jimmy Snyder on the last turn to take third. Summaries:

LOHRMAN HOLDS REDS TO 2 HITS; GIANTS WIN, 7-0

Bonura Gets Four Hits to Lead Attack.

Cincinnati, O., June 23.—(AP)—Bill Lohrman, a 25 year old right-hander who wasn't rated a starting pitcher until two weeks ago, shut out the league leading Cincinnati Reds on two hits today as the New York Giants slammed out a 7 to 0 victory in their series opener. It was the first shutout of the season for any Giant pitcher. Lohrman allowed singles by Billy Myers in the third and Bill Hershberger in the fifth, and did not walk a batter.

Zeke Bonura, with four hits in five times at bat, and Frank Demaree, with three for three, led the Giants at the plate. In addition Mel Ott hit his eleventh homer of the season with none on in the fifth. The victory was New York's eleventh in thirteen games.

PIRATES WIN, 2 TO 1.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 23.—(AP)—Making his first start since May 30, Russ Bauers held the Brooklyn Dodgers to seven hits today as the Pittsburgh Pirates opened their three game series with a 2 to 1 victory. It was the first full game this season for Bauers, who has had a sore shoulder. Brooklyn did not score until the eighth. The Pirates scored off Luke Hamlin in the sixth and off Vito Tamulis in the seventh.

Real Galento Isn't a Very Inspiring Chap

that both fell into a corner and rolled over wrestling.

Tony cracked McAvoy with his left elbow, deliberately butted him on the chin, and violated every section in the boxing code which Gen. John J. Phelan, chairman of the New York commission, insists will be observed Wednesday night.

Finally Tony stopped in mid-ring to berate his handlers. He spit out his protective mouthpiece and accused them of putting vaseline on it. He cursed his head gear when it slipped over his eyes and finally insisted on taking it off.

Tony Apologizes.

After time had been called and possibly because he realized the sorry impression he had created, Tony shouted an apology to McAvoy.

"Gee, but ya got me sore. No hard feelings." Then Tony turned on Joe Jacobs. "Why don' youse get in here if ya can do better."

"G'wan and punch that big bag," Joe ordered. But Tony, perspiring and puffing, decided to talk with Lou Nova, who visited camp today to write an official prediction on the championship scrap. Lou took refuge in generalization. He buoyed Tony's spirits by sagely admitting Tony was doing all right. To Mrs. Mary Galento, who asked Nova his opinion of Tony's workout, Lou hedged, "He's better than when I saw him at Asbury Park."

Nova's newspaper comment will be copyrighted, but sitting next to us this afternoon Lou confided, "Tony may last four or five rounds. He's wide open and easy to hit."

Gen. Phelan, along with Joe Jacobs, has set the tempo in the publicity buildup. He ordered Galento to quit the seashore and establish his training camp in the Jersey hills. The true account of that sudden shift is that Tony went to an Asbury Park movie house and saw Joe Louis and himself in action.

And He Still Drinks.

Tony saw in the comparison that he appeared to be much slower on his feet. He insisted on shifting to Summit. If Nova is correct that Tony appears better in training now than at the shore, it is understandable why Asbury Park citizens practically boycotted the camp.

We have learned in our 48 hours residence here that Galento still drinks beer after his workouts. The New York press has eliminated references to beer bibbling as inimical to the fight. Tony also leaves camp when he pleases, but he does make an effort to get back early enough so that he will not be criticized.

MOON MULLINS—PUT AWAY

INDIANS SCORE 7 IN 7TH TO BEAT ATHLETICS, 12-5

Philadelphia, Pa., June 23.—(AP)—One big inning, the seventh, gave Cleveland a 12 to 5 victory over the Athletics today and Bob Feller his eleventh win of the season. The A's led, 4 to 3, starting the seventh, but Chubby Dean, whose sixth inning single broke a 3 to 3 tie, was knocked out when he replaced Bill Beckman. The Indians continued to hit against Bob Joyce to tally seven runs on six hits.

PUPPY MATCHES IN 3 BREEDS SET FOR TOMORROW

Puppy matches for three popular breeds—Airedales, Boston terriers, and Scottish terriers—will be held in Chicagoland tomorrow. Airedales will compete at the Central States Airedale Terrier club on the Harham farm, Half Day and Sanders roads, Deerfield. All Airedales under 1 year old are eligible and there will be a special nonwinners class for dogs up to 18 months. There will be no entry fee or admission charge and judging will start at 2 p. m.

Scottish terrier puppies between the ages of 2 and 12 months will compete in the sanctioned match to be held by the Scottish Terrier club of Chicago at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Kennicott, Milwaukee avenue, Glenview. William E. Grinestaff of Chicago will start judging at 1 p. m. No admission will be charged.

The Western Boston Terrier club will hold its annual outdoor puppy match and dinner at the Evergreen Golf club, 9140 South Western avenue. Puppies between the ages of 2 and 12 months are eligible. Harry D. Weed of Chicago will judge, starting at 2 p. m.

Rain in Boston Halts Marcum's Debut as a Sox Starting Pitcher

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., June 23.—The White Sox, who since leaving the safety of their own back yard have been leading with their chin, enjoyed a little spare time today for treatment of their mental wounds. Despite the severe pushing around to which they were subjected in three days of association with the lawless Yankees the Sox showed up here, per schedule, for an opener with Boston's second placers, but rain intervened and delayed the party until tomorrow.

Johnny Marcum was supposed to make his first start as a Chicagoan today, but the postponement didn't alter Manager James Dykes' hopes that Johnny will be able to do one of these bad penny comebacks on his old mates. He'll try it tomorrow and if he gets by successfully the Boston manager, Joe Cronin, may find it troublesome explaining what happened to the dead arm that caused him to trade Johnny to St. Louis, whence the Sox obtained him in exchange for John Whitehead.

May Alter Infield.

Before many more days, possibly not before the Sox reopen at home next Tuesday, Manager Dykes may deem it necessary to make another infield alteration. He recently put Eric McNair at third in place of Marvin Owen and subsequently benched Ollie Bejma so that Jack Hayes could return to his former second base job.

The next move may return McNair to the dugout and restore Owen to the far corner. McNair was a great help at second base until his activity was cut down by Joe Gallagher's football block but as a third baseman he has been in sort of a stumbling daze.

McNair's chances of recovering his second base job are not bright at the moment. When Hayes was put there for the Yankee series there was doubt as to how he'd get around on his bum knee, but apparently he has forgotten about the trouble. He says the activity hasn't brought forth any soreness.

Just Scaring 'Em Doesn't Count.

So far on the journey the Sox have accumulated only three victories. They split even in four at Washington, lost two of three at Philadelphia, and then lost those three in succession to the Yanks. The Sox had leads in each of these three games—happenings which caused Joe McCarthy of the Yankees to remark: "Well, they at least give us a scare, which is more than the other teams can do." To which Dykes replied: "You don't get any credit in the percentage column for scaring people."

After a Sunday double-header in which Ted Lyons will shoot for his eighth straight victory and Thornton Lee for his second triumph of the journey, the Sox will leave here for Chicago.

was speared at third, Bartell to Hack, on Bolling's grounder. G. Russel made a great stop of Mueller's smash to retire the side.

Gleeson Gets Double.

Gleeson opened the Cubs' fifth inning with the third Chicago hit, a double off the wall in left center. He loitered on second while Bartell flied to Arnovich and Lee bounced out to Young, then scored on Hack's second hit, a single to center. Herman singled to right, Hack stopping at second. Galan dropped a Texas leaguer just out of Mueller's reach in center, Hack scoring the tying run and Herman reaching third. Reynolds lined to Marty.

An error by Arnovich enabled the Cubs to take a 3 to 2 lead in the sixth. After Hartnett had flied to Arnovich, Russell lined a single to left and when the ball got past Arnovich, Russell got to third. Gleeson walked, then Russell scored on Bartell's sacrifice fly to Arnovich. Gleeson reached second on a passed ball, but the inning ended with Lee's fly to Marty.

And Then That Gift.

Here's the way the Phils tied the score and threatened to go ahead in the eighth: After striking out Mueller, Lee walked Scott. Arnovich tripled to the right field wall, Scott scoring with the tying run. Marty grounded to Bartell for the second out, Arnovich holding third. May flied to Galan after narrowly averting a collision with Reynolds.

After Lee had fanned at the start of the Cub ninth, Hack knocked his third single, then stole second. Herman flied to Scott. When Mueller failed to grab Galan's bouncer and let it roll into right center for an error, Hack scored the winning run.

150 COMPETE IN A. A. U. MEET AT WINNEMAC FIELD

With the entry of a full team from the Chicago Catholic High School league, more than 150 of Chicago's leading trackmen will compete this afternoon in the thirty-eighth annual Central A. A. U. outdoor meet in Winnemac athletic field, Winnemac avenue and Leavitt street. Olde Tymers club, defending champion, will receive its chief opposition from Washington park, Ogden park, Morton Athletic club, and the Catholic High School league teams. The Morton Athletic club team is composed of former Morton Township High school athletes. The Olde Tymers team is coached by John Brooks, former Maroon, A. A. U., and Olympic star. Twenty-one track and field events will be contested.

Harvard's Ninth Inning Rally Beats Yale, 5 to 4

New London, Conn., June 23.—[Special.]—Al Stevens of Yale struck out ten Harvard batters on Mercer field today but lost, 5 to 4. For six innings the Yale lefthander held the Crimson hitless while Yale enjoyed a 3 to 0 lead against Harvard's sophomore pitcher, Charley Brackett. Harvard made a ninth inning finish, however, capitalizing on Stevens' four passes, one of which forced in a run.

Root Will Face Philadelphia and Mulcahy Today

Charley Root is scheduled to pitch today's game between the Cubs and Phillies in Wrigley field. Hugh Mulcahy probably will oppose him.

Some of the Cubs are said to be a bit weary of Bill Lee's public outbursts of temperament and disgust, staged whenever he thinks he hasn't received gilt edged support. They hold that Bill, perhaps justified in some of his earlier beefs, has progressed in his pouts to the point where he thinks everybody should be retired through some sort of miracle. His squawk on Arnovich's triple yesterday was a case in point.

Larry French is reported to be in the Hartnett doghouse in so far as starting assignments are concerned. There are several cute little stories as to the reason, but they probably will disappear in vapor if Larry starts against the Phillies tomorrow. Larry beat Claude Passeau, 3 to 2, in the only game the Cubs had won from the Phillies in Wrigley field this year prior to yesterday.

2 UPSETS MARK SEMI-FINALS IN CANADIAN TENNIS

Windsor, Ont., June 23.—(AP)—Two upsets marked the semi-final round of the Canadian Tennis tournament today as Bob Madden of Detroit, Mich., won the right to oppose Morey Lewis of Texarkana, Tex., in the men's singles final while Elizabeth Blackman of Detroit and Mrs. Rene Bolte of Montreal reached the women's singles final.

Madden eliminated the favorite, Martin Buxby of Miami, Fla., 6-1, 7-5, 6-4. Miss Blackman defeated Eleanor Young of Vancouver, B. C., 8-6, 7-5.

Lewis, who represents Kenyon college, scored a 6-1, 7-5, 6-3 victory over Carl Fischer of Detroit, and Mrs. Bolte defeated Constance O'Donovan of Detroit, 6-1, 6-3. Lewis and Frank Froehling of Chicago finished a doubles match interrupted by rain yesterday, beating Ron Sidaway and Jack Shelton of Vancouver, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4, to reach the semi-final round.

Allen McDonald, 17 year old junior star from Wichita, Kas., won the junior championship in straight sets from Irving Levine of Detroit, 6-3, 6-1, 6-1.

GREENBERG WINS AGAIN IN CLAY COURT TOURNEY

Seymour Greenberg, the giant killer of the twenty-ninth annual national clay court tennis tournament, reached the quarter-final round yesterday at the River Forest Tennis club. Greenberg is the only Chicago player to survive the four rounds.

Unseeded, Greenberg beat Bob Kamrath of Austin, Tex., seeded fifth, Thursday, and yesterday took the measure of the hard hitting Norman Bickel of Oak Park, 6-3, 6-0, 8-6.

Meets Mako Today.

Greenberg will meet Gene Mako of Los Angeles, seeded third, on today's card, which will start at 1:30 o'clock.

The upset yesterday in the singles saw Bill Talbert of Cincinnati, O., unseeded, eliminate Ted Olewine of Santa Monica, Cal., seeded No. 10, 2-6, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2.

Frank Parker, No. 1, advanced to the quarter-finals without playing when Warren Christner of Austin, Tex., defaulted to play in the intercollegiate finals in the east.

Sabin Eliminates Murphy.

Hal Surface, Kansas City, Mo.; Gardner Mulloy, Miami, Fla.; Bob Harman, Oakland, Cal., and Wayne Sabin, Portland, Ore., were the others to advance. Sabin eliminated Chet Murphy of the University of Chicago, Big Ten champion, 6-2, 7-5, 4-6, 7-5.

Mako had a busy day. In addition to beating Junior Coen of Kansas City, Mo., in the singles, 6-4, 6-1, 3-6, 6-0, he teamed with Parker to win two doubles matches to reach the quarter-finals, Charles Kenlay and Bill Stonr, River Forest, going down, 6-0, 6-2, and then Charles Shostrom and Art Jorgenson, Chicago, 6-2, 7-5. Mako and Parker are the top seeded team. Summaries:

Eleanor Dudley Will Defend Title in State Golf Tourney

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Eleanor Dudley, husky Ridge Country club swinger, will begin defense of her Illinois state woman's golf championship Monday morning at the Freeport Country club in the sixth annual tournament conducted by the Chicago Women's District Golf association.

Mrs. Thompson Stewart of the home club will be Miss Dudley's partner in Monday's eighteen hole qualifying round, according to pairings announced yesterday by Mrs. George C. Davis of Oak Park, tournament chairman. Ellamae Williams of Medinah, runner-up to her pal, Miss Dudley, in last year's meet, will follow the champion off the tee, paired with Betty Lou Hammerlund of Normal, Ill.

Other stars among the early starters include Virginia Lindblad of Lincolnshire, Helen Peterson of Exroor, Dorothy Foster of Springfield, Frances McCanna of Rockford, and Janet Smith of Rockford.

The low 16 [or 32 scorers, depending upon the entry for the tourney] will qualify for the championship flight in match play, which opens Tuesday with an eighteen hole match. The event will continue through Friday's final.

Walter H. Atwood won the Edgewood Valley Country club's annual invitational tournament, the Valley-Hoo, instead of Walter W. Wood, as reported in THE TRIBUNE Thursday morning.

Chicago's junior players will have their chance next week, when the fourth annual open tournament of the Chicago District Golf association begins Monday at Mohawk. More than fifty entries already have been received, and night onto a hundred are expected to attempt to qualify Monday

Stocks, Bonds

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 23.—A moderate amount of fresh support came into the stock market this afternoon after a sluggish beginning. As a result advances exceeded declines by a modest margin. Both gains and losses were limited. Turnover was 470,000 shares.

News developments today were said to have kept traders in a better frame of mind. Among the items finding favor was the speedy action in bringing the tax bill before President Roosevelt and reports of better retail trade.

United States Steel was one of the leaders in the recovery. It added ¾ of a point. Bethlehem added a similar margin. Both Chrysler and General Motors bulged ¼. United States Rubber led its group higher with a small fractional gain on fair buying.

Sears, Roebuck lead the merchandising section with a gain of ¾. Montgomery Ward added ½. Key copper stocks edged fractionally higher. Oils lagged.

Loft again moved in the largest volume, closing unchanged after inching higher at one time The recent activity in this issue was explained by confirmation of reports that the company would get a bigger cut in Pepsi-Cola's profits.

New York City's offer for properties of the Interborough Rapid Transit company stimulated interest in local traction issues. I. R. T. added ⅝ point. Manhattan railway guaranteed issues jumped 1 and 3¼ points.

New York Bonds.

New York, June 23.—(AP)—Bonds rallied today after an early decline, but the close was mixed. Special buying enlivened parts of the market, notably local traction issues and scattered foreign loans.

The list as a whole closely followed the trend of stocks, and traders, as usual, looked to the share list for appraisal of sentiment on business, trade, tax revision, and other economic factors.

Bonds of Interborough Rapid Transit and Manhattan Railway soared 2½ to 5½ points on announcement of New York City's $151,000,000 offer for the properties.

The best of the foreigns were Panama stamped 5s, up 2. Obligations of this republic have moved up sharply in the last week or so on prospects for new treaties with the United States. Milan 6½s dropped about 2.

United States government loans were quiet with treasuries generally 1-32d to 3-32ds lower.

Chicago Stocks.

Commonwealth Edison advanced ¾ point net to a new 1939 high of 29¾ on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. The stock again was the most active issue, with a turnover of 3,350 shares. A majority of other issues closed higher.

Bastian-Blessing advanced a point to 16½. Mapes Consolidated Manufacturing sold a point higher on a few transactions, reaching a 1939 peak at 21. Fluctuations among other issues were confined to fractions.

Of eighty-three issues traded, forty advanced, twenty-five declined, and eighteen closed unchanged. Transactions totaled 18,000 shares.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stocks worked higher in listless trading yesterday. American National, Chicago Title and Trust and Continental Illinois scored gains.

UNITED STATES, BRITAIN SIGN BARTERING PACT

Cotton to Be Traded for Rubber.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—The United States and Great Britain today signed a barter agreement for the exchange of cotton for rubber, to be stored as war materials. Under the deal the administration will take a loss of nearly 4 cents a pound on its loan cotton held as a surplus.

Under the agreement 600,000 bales of surplus loan cotton held by the Commodity Credit corporation, with a value of approximately $26,600,000, will be exchanged for rubber of an equivalent value, or about 175 million pounds of that commodity. It is a straight barter arrangement and no cash is involved.

Similar to German Scheme.

It is similar to the German barter principle, although government officials today dodged any reference to it as an adaptation of the Nazi barter agreements, which have been assailed by the state department. State and agriculture officials, including Secretary of State Cordell Hull, contended that the agreement differs from the Nazi deals in that the latter are purely commercial whereas the cotton-rubber exchange takes commodities off the market for military purposes.

The agreement was signed in London today by American Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy and Oliver F. G. Stanley, president of the British Board of Trade. The deal was put through by Kennedy despite the opposition of English cotton middlemen and consumers and rubber producers.

Britain Reduces Allotment.

It was originally planned for Great Britain to take 1,000,000 bales of cotton but the government refused to take more than the 600,000 bales finally agreed upon.

The following steps will be necessary before the agreement can become effective:

1. Approval of the agreement as a treaty by the United States senate and parliament.

2. Enabling legislation by congress to release the loan cotton from storage and acceptance of the rubber in exchange.

3. Action by the international rubber regulation committee in releasing the amount of rubber to be supplied the United States government from current production in addition to the normal operation of the rubber regulation scheme.

Surplus to Be Little Reduced.

Disposal of the cotton would make only a small dent in the surplus stocks which the Commodity Credit corporation now holds against loans made to growers. The surplus so held now amounts to approximately 11,400,000 bales. The cotton can be released from either or both the loan crops of 1934 or 1937. None of the 1938 crop could be used, as loans are not yet due on those holdings.

The average loss of nearly 4 cents a pound which the government stands through this deal results as follows: The 1934 loan crop cost the government about 15 cents a pound, including the loan value of 12 cents plus insurance and storage costs. The 1937 crop on the same basis cost about 10 cents a pound. This makes an average of 12½ cents a pound on the two crops. The price basis used in the barter agreement is the average market price for middling ⅞ inch cotton, spot delivery at New Orleans, in the period from Jan. 1 to June 23, 1939, plus costs, or 8.86 cents per pound. This makes an average loss of 3.64 cents a pound on the two loan crops.

Confined ot Cotton, Rubber.

State department officials said that for the present the barter arrangements have been confined to cotton and rubber. A similar plan for wheat and tin was believed to have been under consideration but a reduction in the wheat acreage this year plus an expected short crop made the wheat surplus less acute, they said.

Western meat packers had also tried to get the state department interested in a similar plan for bartering lard with Germany in exchange for farm machinery or equipment. But the state department has turned a deaf ear to this proposal and the packers as a result are trying to get congressmen interested in their plan.

State department officials admitted that negotiations are being conducted with Belgium for an agreement similar to the one made today, but refused to specify the commodities involved.

Stored as War Supplies.

Under the American-British agreement the supplies of cotton and rubber traded are to be stored against the contingency of a "major war emergency.' Each government undertakes not to dispose of its stock, except for the purpose of replacing it to avoid deterioration, unless there is an emergency.

"If, however," says the agreement, "either government should at any future date decide that the time has come to liquidate its stock of cotton or rubber, as the case may be, it may do so only after [a] consulting the other government as to the means to be employed for the disposal of such stock, and [b] taking all steps to avoid disturbance of the markets.

"In no case may either government dispose of such stocks, except in the case of a major war emergency, before a date seven years after the coming into force of this agreement."

If all goes well in the processes of

Cotton Prices Rise Further on Barter Deal

Cotton futures scored substantial gains yesterday for the third consecutive session, moving up 0.10 to 0.15 cent a pound, or 50 to 75 cents a bale.

Signing of the barter agreement with Great Britain, by which American cotton will be exchanged for British rubber, appeared to stimulate buying, although the market had already anticipated the agreement to some extent, brokers said.

The market as a whole stamped approval on consummation of the British-American barter deal, which will affect some 600,000 bales of American cotton. Its chief value, brokers said, was removal of a sizable portion of current tremendous government loan stocks.

Cotton Control Regarded Assured.

In addition, some long program on the new cotton crop is a certainty, Washington dispatches said. The house vote on the senate amendment to the agricultural appropriations bill seemed to make the cotton subsidy certain, and this news too was considered bullish.

Crop reports from Texas said the boll weevil is increasing and causing damage in half of twenty-six fields examined in the last week by a Texas experimental station in the southeast part of the state. In south central Texas eighteen out of thirty-two fields were reported showing damage.

Range of Cotton Prices.

Spot cotton yesterday closed unchanged to 0.10 cent a pound higher, with New York at 9.97 cents; Houston, Galveston, and New Orleans at 9.45 cents. Prices follow:

BUSINESS BOOKS

"Colbert and a Century of French Mercantilism," by Charles Woolsey Cole. Two volumes. [Columbia University Press, Morningside Heights, New York. Price, $10.]

Prof. Cole of the economics department of Amherst college has taken 1,207 pages to describe a century of French economic history, ending with 1683, and the influence of Jean-Baptiste Colbert, minister to Louis XIV. Colbert is regarded the driving force behind French mercantilism, which was characterized by government-encouraged expansion of foreign trade, internal commerce and industry, and seizure of colonial trading monopolies.

"NRA Trade Practice Programs," by Charles Albert Pearce. [Columbia University Press, Morningside Heights, N. Y. Price $2.75.]

A post-mortem on the NRA, this book is a study of trade practice provisions of self regulatory codes adopted by 700 industries during the ill-fated economic experiment of the Roosevelt administration. Attempts to control "destructive competition," and unfair practices through price fixing, production quotas, wages and hours limitations, inventory restrictions, and other methods are analyzed to determine the causes of success or failure of the schemes.

E. J. BULLOCK RETIRES AFTER LONG SERVICE WITH STANDARD OIL

Closing a career of nearly fifty years with the company, Edward J. Bullock announced his retirement yesterday as vice president and director of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, effective June 30. Fifty fellow executives, including Edward G. Seubert, president, gave him a farewell dinner in the Bismarck hotel last night.

E. J. Bullock.

Bullock's career parallels that of the company. He started to work in 1889, the year Standard Oil was organized, as a $3 a week office boy for a Milwaukee company which was absorbed by Standard Oil a few years later. He became director of purchases in 1921, a member of the board of directors in 1922, and vice president in 1927.

James F. Hewson, purchasing agent of the company since 1923, will become manager of purchases. Bullock's positions as vice president and director have not been filled.

Bullock for many years has been a director of the American Petroleum institute. He is past vice president of the Union League club, a 33d degree Mason, a trustee of the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, and a director of the Oak Park First Congregational church. He and two daughters will maintain their home in Oak Park.

INT. HARVESTER EMPLOYES BALK AT NLRB HEARING

Objecting to the high cost of the litigation, attorneys for independent unions composed of International Harvester company employés yesterday walked out of the hearing being conducted by the National Labor Relations board. The company was accused of "unfair labor practices" by the Farm Equipment Workers' organizing committee [C. I. O. affiliate].

The independent unions on Thursday sought to obtain a severance of the complaint from the action brought against the company. Trial Examiner C. W. Whittemore asked the labor board at Washington for a hearing on the request.

"The cost of attending protracted hearings would be prohibitive to independent unionists," said Attorney David Beznar, representing the Harvester Employés Industrial union, composed of Milwaukee plant workers. "Each individual union's case should be heard on its own merits."

CHINESE DOLLAR ADVANCES AFTER LIMIT ON CREDITS

The Shanghai dollar advanced about ¼ cent in terms of the dollar in foreign exchange transactions at New York yesterday, while principal European currencies were firm.

New York brokers attributed the rise in the Chinese currency to Chinese bankers' decisions Thursday to limit credits to depositors, thus creating demand for the currency. They added, however, that the quotation was largely nominal.

The Shanghai unit was quoted yesterday at 13.30 cents in New York. Aside from a drop of .00 1-16 cent in the French franc, European currencies were firm in limited transactions.

The New York Federal Reserve bank's daily gold statement showed imports of $1,675,000 from England and $11,000 from Canada, with an additional $3,901,000 engaged for shipment from England.

New York Bank Clearings Lower; Deposits Higher

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—The statement of the New York Clearing house showed bank clearings in the week ended today were $3,071,532,533, against $3,296,079,856 in the week ended June 16. Average net demand deposits increased $21,355,000 and time deposits increased $2,970,000.

Senator Hill to Head Telegraph Industry Probe

Washington, D. C., June 23.—(AP)—Chairman Wheeler [D., Mont.] of the senate interstate commerce committee named Senator Hill [D., Ala.] today as chairman of a subcommittee to investigate the telegraph industry. Other members of the committee will be Senators Stewart [D., Tenn.], Tobey [R., N. H.], and White [R., Me.].

SILVER WASTE DENOUNCED BY SEN. TOWNSEND

Billion Squandered for Useless Metal.

BULLETIN.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—(AP)—In an effort to break the legislative deadlock in the senate, Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, gave out word tonight that the treasury would continue for six months after June 30 to pay 64.64 cents an ounce for domestic silver. Senator Pittman (D., Nev.), one of the leaders of the senate's "silver bloc," promptly declared, however, that he was "not interested" in the report.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—Senator John G. Townsend Jr. [R., Del.] interrupted the senate silverite-inflationist bloc's filibuster today with a speech denouncing the colossal waste of the whole silver purchase program. He cited figures showing that the treasury thus far has poured 1 billion 100 million dollars down a rat hole for silver that is utterly useless.

Senator Townsend spoke in support of his amendment to the pending bill extending President Roosevelt's dictatorial monetary powers to terminate the acquisition of foreign silver. Under the silver purchase act of 1934, the treasury is required to purchase silver until its price reaches $1.29 an ounce or until the monetary stock of silver equals one-third of the gold stock.

The silverite-inflationist bloc continued its filibuster through the fourth day, still vowing not to permit passage of the President's monetary powers bill without concessions to their demands for expansion of the currency and a higher price for newly mined domestic silver.

Senator Elmer Thomas [D., Okla.] is demanding further devaluation of the dollar down to 50 per cent of its former gold content and the issuance of 2 billion dollars in additional currency. Senators from western silver producing states, led by Senator Pat McCarran [D., Nev.], are participating in the filibuster in an effort to force the treasury to announce a new price of at least 77 cents for domestic silver. The present price of 64.64 cents expires June 30. The world price is about 43 cents.

Like Old Fashioned Holdup.

The filibuster has all the characteristics of an old fashioned stage coach holdup. The western senators, now getting a subsidy of almost 22 cents an ounce for the silver produced in their states, are demanding an increased subsidy, and threatening at the same time to kill the monetary powers bill if they don't get it.

Republicans and conservative Democrats hope that the filibuster will result in killing the monetary powers bill, but fear that the administration will make further concessions to the silverites. If the bill extending the President's powers for two years is not passed by June 30, those powers will expire by limitation, and can not be revived without the introduction of new legislation. President Roosevelt declared at his press conference today that he would demand such legislation at the present session, if the continuing resolution should be defeated.

Many Powers at Stake.

At stake is the President's power to devalue the dollar, now 59 per cent of its former value, down to 50 per cent; his power to maintain the 2 billion exchange stabilization fund; his power to fix the ratio of silver to gold at any point; his power to devalue the silver dollar and subsidiary coins; his power to acquire newly mined domestic silver at any price and issue silver certificates against it, and various other powers.

Townsend explained that the treasury on June 6 held approximately 1 billion 200 million ounces of silver as a reserve against silver certificates, issued at the monetary value of $1.29 an ounce, and more than 1 billion 100 million ounces of silver bullion "absolutely sterile and frozen in the general fund."

"If it used this now sterile hoard of silver for monetary purposes, it could almost double the number of silver certificates outstanding," the senator said. "If the President, in addition, fully used his present power to revalue the bullion in this country, he could quadruple the number of dollars of silver certificates in our monetary system."

Could Mean Currency Flood.

Townsend said it was demonstrated before the banking and currency committee, of which he is a member, that the present silver laws enable the administration to turn a dollar's worth of silver into $12.92 of currency.

The senator cited the testimony of Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve board, to blast the argument that purchasing of foreign silver increases foreign purchasing power and supplies a market for American goods. Eccles told the committee that the United States might as well take copper or seashells and issue money, as to take silver that we do not need in order to find a foreign market for goods.

"Eccles testified that the fact that silver certificates are redeemable in silver does not amount to anything," Townsend continued. "He said, 'the government could issue just as good currency without the cost of acquiring silver. United States notes, for instance, are as good currency as silver certificates.'"

New York City Banks to Close on Saturdays

Banks belonging to the New York [city] Clearing house yesterday voted to close on Saturdays during July and August. This action was taken under new New York state legislation which authorizes permissive closings. Chicago and other Illinois banks are not expected to follow New York's lead. Saturday closing would require the passage of legislation granting this authority, it was said.

The 19 banks belonging to the New York Clearing house approved the action. Whether the many smaller banks in New York also will close on Saturday is not known.

The New York Stock exchange is expected to decide next week whether it will also close on Saturdays during July and August. There has been much agitation among members of the exchange to close on Saturdays during the summer, when business is especially light, and to have the daily sessions remain open an hour longer.

Won't Disrupt Trading.

Members of the exchange pointed out, however, that closing of the banks on Saturday would not disrupt trading should it be decided to remain open Saturdays. Transactions made on Saturdays are not settled until the next week.

Officials of the Chicago Stock exchange said that they would not necessarily follow the action of the New York exchange should it decide to close Saturdays. Members of the Chicago exchange are anxious to pick up all the available business and they may remain open for that reason.

The Board of Trade is not likely to close, officials said. Closing of the New York exchange on Saturday may affect trading in grain futures, it was said, because with the New York market closed the big speculative groups would not be active. However, the trade in cash grain and provisions would not be affected by the stock exchange closing.

Chicago Banker's View.

An official of one downtown bank said that there is no sentiment among the Chicago banks for Saturday closing.

"We have a much different situation in Chicago," he explained. "Here we have large daily arrivals of grain, live stock, and provisions, for which settlement must be made at once. Closing of the Chicago banks would cause a great deal of inconvenience in these lines."

"None of the Chicago banks wants to close on Saturdays. About the only thing that might change this would be the workings of the wages and hours act. The 40 hour week might make this expedient."

This bank official said that Illinois banks cannot be closed without special legislation such as was enacted in New York and California. The governor can declare a holiday, in which event the banks could be closed, but it would not be practical to have the governor declare each Saturday a holiday, he said. Some California banks will close under the new law and some will not.

Motor Lines' Plea Blocks New Haven Freight Cut

Washington, D. C., June 23.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission, acting on a protest of the New England Motor Rates Bureau, Inc., refused today to permit the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad to reduce the rate on mixed carload shipments between Boston and New York. The New Haven proposed to reduce the rate on mixed carloads from the present 33 cents per 100 pounds to 25 cents per 100 pounds.

The National Association of Insurance Commissioners elected C. Clarence Neslen of Salt Lake City as president yesterday at its convention in San Francisco. The group changed the basis of evaluating securities owned by life insurance companies by placing on a market value basis all securities purchased after June 30.

Leaders Push Fund Drive to Boost Chicago

Leaders in the "Greater Chicago" movement yesterday urged their field force to stronger efforts to obtain the $200,000 needed to attain the $625,000 quota for the compaign. The drive for funds ends next Friday. About $425,000 already is pledged.

Dr. Philip Fox tells of Chicago's achievements.

Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the Greater Chicago campaign, and Oscar G. Mayer, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, its sponsor, at a meeting at the Hotel Sherman said the response by business has been much better in the last few days, auguring well for the success of the drive.

Nelson told the group of about 500 volunteer workers that Chicago's achievements of the past should provide the inspiration to make the campaign a success.

Dr. Fox Tells of Developments.

Dr. Philip Fox, director of the Museum of Science and Industry, seconded the view expressed by Nelson by recounting the many contributions that Chicago has made to the well being of man in transportation, science, medicine, architecture, education, engineering, and other fields. What Chicago has done in the past will be but a starter if it will apply itself to the materials it has at hand, he said.

Dr. Fox said that Chicago will possess an invaluable treasure in the Museum of Science and Industry, which will be fully opened early this autumn. There will be presented the tools and handiwork of science in simple fashion which may serve as a guide for men of vision and courage in opening new channels of industrial expansion, he said.

Brings Better Living.

"In looking at the simple instruments used in the first electrical experiments," he said, "who would guess that studies with them would lead to the gigantic electrical industry, which has brought employment and a better way of living to so many millions of persons."

Dr. Fox said that scientists are now only experimenting with cosmic rays but presently great industries will be developed from them. The alloys coming into use are other examples of possible industrial expansion.

"There are many ways in which Chicago can develop its industries," he continued. "I hope that the lessons at the museum will point the way to someone with ability and courage."

MEMPHIS BONDS SOLD TO ACQUIRE LOCAL UTILITIES

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—A banking group headed by the Bankers' Trust company of New York today was awarded $17,000,000 of Memphis, Tenn., general obligation bonds, floated by that city to finance its part of the purchase of the local electric and gas distribution systems.

Bankers had been invited to bid on either general obligation bonds or revenue bonds. The Bankers' Trust group won on a bid of 100.02 for the following combination: The 1940 to 1944 maturities of gas bonds as 3¼s, and the 1942 to 1949 maturities of electric bonds as 3¼s, the balance of each issue to take a rate of 2.10 per cent. The gas issue amounted to $5,250,000 and matures from 1940 to 1954. The electric bonds totaled $11,750,000 and mature from 1942 to 1969. The interest cost basis of the successful bid was 2.19 per cent.

Commercial Credit Plans to Pay Last of Funded Debt

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—The Commercial Credit company has under consideration the elimination of its outstanding funded debt through the early retirement of the $30,000,000 of 3¼ per cent debentures, due in 1951, it was disclosed today. It is expected that funds for the transaction will be obtained both through bank credits and possibly private placement of short term loans.

Week's Auto Production Rises to 81,070 Units

Detroit, Mich., June 23.—(AP)—Ward's automotive reports estimated today that the current week's output of cars and trucks would total 81,070 units, against 78,305 last week and 42,918 a year ago. The survey said that "parts and accessory companies are being currently stimulated by a good volume of replacement business from retail sources."

DEPARTMENT STORES SALES FOR LAST WEEK GAIN OVER YEAR AGO

Department store sales throughout the nation in the week ended June 17 were 6 per cent ahead of the like 1938 week, the Federal Reserve board reported yesterday. Every district in the country, with the exception of Kansas City, showed an upturn. Kansas City district sales were unchanged.

In the 7th federal reserve district, which includes, Chicago, sales were up 7 per cent. Detroit made the best showing in the district with an increase of 11.6 per cent. Chicago alone had a gain of 5.5 per cent.

The percentage increase for the nation was less than in recent weeks. In the week ended June 10 the year to year gain was 10 per cent and in the week ended June 3 it was 9 per cent.

For the four weeks ended June 17 sales nationally were up 8 per cent from last year. In the Chicago district they were up 11 per cent.

NEW YORK MAKES FINAL OFFER FOR TRANSIT LINES

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—New York today offered the representatives of the Interborough Rapid Transit company and the Manhattan Railway company [the elevated system] the sum of $151,000,000 for their properties as part of the transit unification plan.

This was announced by Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia in the presence of city and state transit officials and negotiators for the traction security holders after a conference which lasted several hours and in which they all had participated.

The mayor described the $151,000,000 tender as a "final, definite, and firm offer," and said the representatives of the security holders had agreed to recommend its acceptance to their respective committees.

Acceptance would mean that, after years of negotiations, unification would have been accomplished at a price of $326,000,000 for all the privately owned lines. This includes the $175,000,000 previously agreed upon as the price for the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit lines.

CENSUS REPORT ON CITY'S TRADE FEW YEARS LATE

The Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday received copies of a report on Chicago retail trade for 1935 prepared by the United States bureau of census in coöperation with the association. The report is said to provide the most complete analysis of Chicago retail trade ever given.

The report states that Chicago's retail trade in 1935 was $1,061,253,000. This business was shared by 43,555 stores scattered throughout the city. Each of Chicago's seventy-five neighborhoods is analyzed in detail.

Principal lines of retail business were: 16,968 food outlets, 1,019 general merchandise establishments, 3,794 apparel shops, 1,614 automotive concerns, 1,804 filling stations, 664 furniture and household furnishings stores, 1,434 lumber, building material, and hardware shops, 8,821 eating and drinking establishments, and 1,868 drug stores.

JOHN BAIN, INC., CREDITORS WILL RECEIVE $73,374

Creditors with claims totaling $1,184,025 against the bankrupt estate of John Bain, Inc., will receive a liquidating dividend of $73,374, or 6.197 per cent, under an order entered yesterday by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

John Bain, Inc., was a south side real estate company headed by John Bain, banker and politician, who escaped a prison sentence when the Illinois Supreme court reversed a conviction on conspiracy charges growing out of the failure of the twelve Bain banks several years ago.

This payment, the first since the real estate company went into bankruptcy in 1935, is all the creditors will receive, according to William L. Sullivan, referee in bankruptcy, who told Judge Wilkerson the dividend will exhaust funds realized on the sale of assets.

Crop Insurance Bureau Opens Office in Chicago

Washington, D. C., June 23.—(AP)—The Federal Crop Insurance corporation announced today the opening of a new branch office at 105 W. Adams street, Chicago, to serve Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky and Tennessee starting with the 1940 crop insurance season. The corporation at the same time announced it had closed its branch office at Indianapolis, which handled the grain operations of the agency in eastern central states. S. E. Turvines, a farmer living near Pleasant Plains, Ill., has been named manager of the Chicago office.

FREIGHT GAINS PREDICTED FOR MIDDLE WEST

Car Estimate 8.4 Pct. Above Year Ago.

The Midwest Shippers Advisory board, with headquarters in Chicago, yesterday estimated that in the third quarter of this year middle western shippers will need about 8.4 per cent more freight cars to handle their business than were actually used in the third quarter of 1938. The board estimated the area will require 732,457 freight cars, compared with 675,453 actually loaded in the third quarter of 1938.

In only three divisions do middle western shippers expect declines from the 1938 third quarter actual loadings. These are in grain, with a 12 per cent decline; fresh vegetables, 24 per cent, and gravel, sand, and stone, 10 per cent.

Cause of Grain Decline.

One reason for the decline in grain is the large amount of corn held on farms under seal in connection with government loans, it was said. This corn is not expected to be moved until it is forced out by the arrival of the new crop. If for any reason the government corn should start to move, car requirements would have to be revised upward.

The largest increase is expected in the movement of ores and concentrates. A rise of 100 per cent is predicted. Fresh fruits are expected to show a 71 per cent gain, but the number of cars used in this service is not large compared with the total.

Autos to Show Big Gain.

Autos, trucks, and parts are expected to show a 50 per cent gain in car requirements. Coal and coke form the largest item on the list, with an estimated total of 194,250 cars required. The estimated gain over 1938 is 5 per cent.

Railroad officials report that freight business in Chicago alone has shown a substantial increase over last year. Since the start of this year the gain has been about 20 per cent over a year earlier. The gain for the nation as a whole has been about 7 per cent.

Comparative Figures.

The following table gives actual loadings in the third quarter of 1938, estimated loadings in the third quarter of 1939, and percentage of increase or decline:

Territory Served by Board.

The Allegheny regional board, with headquarters in Pittsburgh, predicts an increase of 17.3 per cent for the third quarter over the third quarter of 1938. It expects 705,041 cars will be required, compared with 600,901 actually used in the third period of last year. The board serves western Pennsylvania, southeastern Ohio, northwestern Virginia, and Maryland.

INDUSTRY NEAR 'NORMAL' LEVEL IN PRODUCTION

Washington, D. C., June 23.—(AP)—The federal reserve board announced today that industrial production once more is approaching 100 per cent of the 1923-'25 average, which is used as a "normal" business period in federal statistics.

The board said its seasonally adjusted index of industrial production stayed at 92 per cent in May, the same as in April, but "increased considerably in the first three weeks of June." The June index figure will not be officially announced, however, for about a month.

The advance, the board explained, was due primarily to increased output of steel and coal.

Jury in Oil Investigation Recesses for Sixty Days

Danville, Ill., June 23.—(AP)—The federal grand jury investigating alleged gasoline price fixing by major oil companies in ten midwestern states recessed for sixty days today without making a report. John Henry Lewin, assistant United States attorney general in charge of the government's case, said no report would be made until after the recess. It was indicated that before the jurors reconvene huge stacks of documentary evidence will be investigated.

HUGE LOAN FUND KEY JOBS GO TO JONES, CARMODY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—President Roosevelt today nominated Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, as head of the consolidated Federal Loan agency. The President also nominated John M. Carmody, rural electrification administrator, as head of the new Federal Works agency.

Both posts were created under the governmental reorganization plan. The two officials will have key positions in the proposed new 3 billion 860 million dollar lending program, which was announced at the White House yesterday, if that program is adopted by congress.

As federal loan administrator Jones will have charge of the RFC, the Home Loan Bank board, the Federal Housing administration, the Export-Import bank and the Electric Home and Farm authority.

Carmody Given Broad Powers.

As federal works administrator, Carmody will boss the Public Works administration, the Works Progress administration, the United States Housing authority, the bureau of public roads of the department of agriculture, the public buildings branch of the treasury and the building management branch of the national park service in the department of interior.

At his press conference President Roosevelt expressed doubt whether funds are available to pay the heads of the consolidated units. He said there was no money available to appoint six White House assistants, even though he should desire to name them. Funds for the six assistants are included in the deficiency supply bill reported in the house today.

Third "Boss" Not Selected.

The President has not selected the head of the third of his major federal agencies — the Federal Security agency. This is to combine social, economic, educational and health agencies.

Jones' appointment occasioned no surprise, but that of Carmody did. He had not been considered a prominent candidate for the post. Secretary of the Interior Ickes had been considered most likely to be appointed.

Carmody was named administrator of the Rural Electrification administration on Feb. 15, 1937. He succeeded Morris L. Cooke of Pennsylvania, who had been acting head of the agency.

Born on Farm.

Mr. Carmody was born on a farm—now electrified—in Bradford county, Pennsylvania. He moved to Elmira, N. Y., in his youth and was graduated from the Elmira Business college in 1900. Later he studied at the Lewis institute in Chicago, the Emerson school at Gary, Ind., and Columbia university.

He began his career as a clerk and bookkeeper, then held various positions with structural steel manufacturers for fourteen years. Later he served in executive posts with manufacturers of women's garments.

Carmody made a special study of labor relations in the bituminous coal industry for the United States coal commission. From 1923 to 1926 he was vice president in charge of industrial relations for the Davis Coal and Coke company.

CHARGES ACME STEEL VIOLATES 'ANTI-TRUST ACT

Washington, D. C., June 23.—(AP)—The federal trade commission today accused the Acme Steel company of Chicago of violating the section of the Clayton act which prohibits exclusive dealing agreements.

The commission's complaint said the company is the country's largest maker of steel strap and band tying tools and kindred equipment. The commission alleged that the effect of leases and licenses entered into by the company "may be to substantially lessen competition" in the leasing and sale of certain products.

The company has branch offices and warehouses in Brooklyn, Atlanta, Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Seattle, and a plant at Riverdale, Ill.

EXPECT JULY HEARING.

Officials of the company said that a hearing is expected to take place in July. They added that they do not know what they have done that could cause any objection by the government.

These Two May Spend Billions

CALL HUGE LOAN PLAN JUST NEW SPENDING EXCUSE

Cpponents Rally to Defeat Scheme.

"It is another effort at pump priming, which already has proved to be a costly failure. The projection of this program at this time is another confession on the part of the President of the New Deal's failure to start this country on the road to economic recovery.

"Apparently he is destitute of ideas except for spending and lending. As Mr. Roosevelt said in his first inaugural address, those who can suggest nothing but the lending of the people's money 'have no vision, and when there is no vision the people perish.'"

Mr. Taber observed that the phrase "self-liquidating" had been used for years and that the government had had much experience with so-called self-liquidating corporations.

Cites Losses of Agencies.

"Let us remember that the Commodity Credit corporation was supposed to be a self-liquidating agency," he continued. "Its losses to date total more than $213,000,000.

"The Home Owners Loan corporation is supposed to be self-liquidating. In its last annual report that agency states that its deficit, 'before full provision for losses which may be sustained in the liquidation of assets,' totaled $40,893,000. No man knows what the total loss for that agency alone will be. The President proposes more billions for the Farm Security administration, but that agency now has on its books defaulted loans totaling $42,000,000.

"The RFC also is described as a 'self-liquidating' agency, but those with good memories will remember that a little more than a year ago congress was called upon to direct the secretary of the treasury to cancel some two and one-half billion dollars charged against the RFC because of loans and advances made by that agency to other government departments and agencies."

Mr. Taber called most remarkable of all the President's proposal to spend 750 million dollars during the next four years for so-called self-liquidating toll roads, bridges, high speed highways, etc. The bureau of public roads investigated the possibility of constructing super highways, he recalled, and reported to congress the plan was impractical.

Criticizes President's Judgment.

Senator Clyde M. Reed [R., Kas.] said he had no confidence in the financial judgment of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"I don't think he knows a self-liquidating project from a 45,000 ton battleship," the senator added.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich] called the President's proposal the exact opposite of the essential formula for recovery. Referring to the proposal to extend the various programs over periods of from two to seven years, Senator Vandenberg declared:

"It evidently expects that the country must rely upon public enterprise rather than private enterprise for the next seven years. It evidently expects private money to be timid and sterile to the end even of a third term. We cannot last that long. This is just more pump priming in this disguise."

Two Items Face Defeat.

In the opinion of congressional leaders, there is a good chance that the proposal to lend 750 million dollars for toll roads and bridges and the proposal to lend 500 million dollars to foreign governments will be defeated.

Even Senator James F. Byrnes [D., S. C.] the administration leader to whom the President addressed his letter proposing the new program, came out against the plan to lend 500 million dollars more to foreign governments. Presumably most of this money would go to South American countries under the new dollar diplomacy of the President's good neighbor policy. The export-import bank already has made loans to Brazil, Nicaragua, and Paraguay in an effort to undermine Germany's economic penetration of South America.

According to the department of commerce, Latin-American countries have defaulted on a total of 711 million dollars of bonds held by American investors.

Mr. Roosevelt conferred this evening with government fiscal officials and congressional leaderr regarding the details of the program.

It was announced after the conference that Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky and House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn of Texas would introduce bills to carry out the President's program next week. The bills will be drafted by the RFC and by Edward Foley, general counsel of the treasury.

UNITED STATES, BRITAIN SIGN BARTERING PACT

Surplus Cotton Will Be Traded for Rubber.

ratification of the agreement it may go into effect by Oct. 1, officials predicted. Delivery of the commodities would then be made within a period of six months with the British taking responsibility for shipment of the cotton and the United States for shipment of the rubber [from Singapore and other convenient ports]. Each government would undertake to divide shipments equally between American and British vessels.

War Condition Is Factor.

It is significant that the agreement does not specify that either the United States or Great Britain need become involved in "a major war emergency" to permit liquidation of the storage supplies. Barring neutrality legislation to the contrary, the two governments could agree to liquidate the supplies in case of a recognized war in any other part of the world.

State officials, however, declared that the spirit of the agreement is that the nations acquiring the materials would retain them.

Secretary Hull maintained that the exchange of surplus commodities between Britain and the United States was not barter in the usual sense and would not conflict with the American trade agreements program.

[In Berlin, there was a stir among German exponents of the barter system, and one authoritative publication said "Convulsion of the international cotton market can be expected as a result of a transaction of this scale." The German press gibed at the arrangement as proving, its writers said, that previous barter statements from the United States were aimed only at keeping down trade between Germany and South America.]

Must Replace Rubber.

Dr. Herbert Feis, economic adviser to the state department, said the rubber in storage must be replaced at least every eighteen months to prevent deterioration. Arrangements will be made by the war and navy departments with rubber manufacturers for use of the storage stocks in industry and their replacement with fresh supplies. The rubber arranged for amounts to between 15 to 20 per cent of our annual normal consumption.

In the senate late this afternoon Senator Walter F. George [D., Ga.] warned Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace not to subsidize exports of loan cotton and said he believed that Wallace at least knows he cannot pay any subsidy on the 600,000 bales involved in the barter deal.

Senator James F. Byrnes [D., S. C.], a sponsor of the barter plan, said that a treaty will be offered in the senate early next week to cover the agreement, which was announced simultaneously in Washington and London. Ratification is expected without much opposition.

Roosevelt Signs Control Bill.

President Roosevelt signed today legislation establishing a permanent minimum cotton acreage under the farm act at about 26,000,000 acres, or not less than 10,000,000 bales. He approved amendments to the cotton sections of the 1938 agricultural adjustment act which makes permanent the limiting provisions that formerly operated only in 1938 and 1939.

SEC HEAD ASKS NEW PROTECTION FOR INVESTORS

Warns Brokers of More Federal Control.

New York, June 23.—(AP)—In his first speech to a Wall street group since he became securities commission chairman, Jerome Frank warned brokers tonight that unless customers are more fully protected wider federal regulation will follow.

He said, before the Association of Customers' Brokers, that if ever the middle class of investors comes to believe it is being unfairly treated by its business leaders, "it may fall victim to the disease of dictatorship, of either the communist or Fascist variety."

The SEC, he said, "has the job of helping to preserve democracy, of preventing dictatorship by depriving potential dictators of one of their most important implements—the anger of mistreated investors."

Favors "Brokerage Banks."

Frank asserted that the SEC still favors the establishment of trust institutions or "brokerage banks" in financial centers for safeguarding customers' funds and securities. This function is now performed by brokerage companies themselves. A central depository system suggested by the exchange, he said, "would not provide complete protection for customers' funds and securities. To protect the investor, Frank said, "something has to be done. The SEC has no choice as to that."

"In other words," he said, "we offer you this choice: [1] You can have more SEC regulation of brokers' activities—regulation designed to insure customer safety—or [2] by the establishment of brokerage banks you can, as far as this subject of customer protection is concerned, in this particular area, get rid of the SEC and of SEC regulations on that subject."

Wants Early Action.

Frank declared the commission favored early action to restrict floor trading by members of the exchanges "to the end that their interests shall not conflict with those of their customers, and also for like reasons to restrict the activities of specialists.

"In the last several years there has been much discussion between the SEC and the exchange authorities on that subject, but as yet little has been done," he said. "We shall not in that field move forward with undue haste, but before long we must do more than we have thus far done to carry out the congressional instructions. The privilege of postponing action does not mean that we can forever ignore the objective."

REFRIGERATOR SALES.

Investors' Guide: How many electric refrigerators have been sold in the United States?—H. J. T.

Answer: According to the Edison Electric institute, 14,465,000 electric refrigerators were sold up to the close of last year.

CATSUP MAKER.

Investors' Guide: Just about seven years ago the Snider Packing corporation took over the business of New York Canners, Inc., and eventually acquired several other concerns. This company is in the food canning industry. Although I'm familiar with their products as a consumer, I'm in the dark about the company's operations from an investor's viewpoint. Can you tell me whether it has made a profit or a loss each year since 1932?—J. P. V.

Answer: Snider Packing corporation, one of the leaders in the food canning field, has a rather stable sales record since 1932. Net income, however, has fluctuated widely since the first full year of operations when the company showed a loss of nearly $400,000. Here's its seven-year record years ended March 31]:

	Sales.	Net Inc.	Earn. per shr.
1938	6,045,705	275,135	1.31
1937	5,496,177	563,036	2.68
1936	6,242,498	630,244	3.00
1935	5,559,100	591,627	2.82
1934	4,377,800	462,746	1.92

*Loss. †Period from July 19, 1932, to March 31, 1933.

Catsup, chili sauce, other condiments, vegetables, and fruits are packed and distributed under the company's nationally advertised "Snider" label. It also supplies frozen products marketed by Frosted Foods Sales corporation. The company is the successor to a business started in 1919, and several years ago acquired six other canning concerns. Snider recently retired $200,000 principal amount of its 3 per cent debentures, due 1942, leaving $500,000 outstanding at the close of its fiscal year. These are considered fairly good grade. Its capital stock, of which 210,000 shares are outstanding, is speculative. An initial dividend of $1.50 a share was paid in March, 1937. A year later 75 cents a share was distributed. No payments have been made since.

TAX EXEMPT?

Investors' Guide: I hear that securities of certain corporations are subject to a personal property tax of four mills on the dollar in Pennsylvania. Does the common stock of Loose-Wiles Biscuit company fall into this class?—J. K.

Answer: No. Both the preferred and common stock of Loose-Wiles Biscuit company are exempt from the Pennsylvania personal property tax.

Catsup, chili sauce, other condiments, vegetables, and fruits are packed and distributed under the company's nationally advertised "Snider" label. It also supplies frozen products marketed by Frosted Foods Sales corporation. The company is the successor to a business started in 1919, and several years ago acquired six other canning concerns. Snider recently retired $200,000 principal amount of its 3 per cent debentures, due 1942, leaving $500,000 outstanding at the close of its fiscal year. These are considered fairly good grade. Its capital stock, of which 210,000 shares are outstanding, is speculative. An initial dividend of $1.50 a share was paid in March, 1937. A year later 75 cents a share was distributed. No payments have been made since.

TAX EXEMPT?

Investors' Guide: I hear that securities of certain corporations are subject to a personal property tax of four mills on the dollar in Pennsylvania. Does the common stock of Loose-Wiles Biscuit company fall into this class?—J. K.

Answer: No. Both the preferred and common stock of Loose-Wiles Biscuit company are exempt from the Pennsylvania personal property tax.

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Miss Ruby Colby, age 32, who yesterday told police how her companion, George Hall, oil promoter, was shot to death by hitch-hiker near St. Johns, Mich. (Story on page 1.)

Paul V. McNutt, high commissioner to Philippines, with wife and daughter, Louise, as they arrived in San Francisco yesterday from Manila. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

McNutt, who visited United States several months ago to boom himself for presidency, will go to Washington ostensibly to discuss sugar quotas. (Story on page 10.)
